

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

THE Grammar, which is now offered to the learned Public, has been compiled already years ago, but as there were no means of printing it, it was laid aside hopelessly. That it has finally been rescued from oblivion is owing to the enlightened patronage of Her Majesty's Government for India, which liberally granted the printing expenses.

I am afraid, that I have given rather too much than too little by endeavouring to render the Grammar as complete as possible; I trust, however, that this object may have been attained to some extent at least.

A beginner will do well, after he has acquainted himself with the Sindhī system of sounds, to commence at once with the declensions and to turn bye and bye to the formation of themes after he has got a fair insight into the fabric of the language. The Introduction is intended for those only, who wish to penetrate more deeply into the origin and nature of the Sindhī.

The quotations, which I have added, I hope may prove useful to introduce the beginner into the study of the Sindhī literature; most of the quotations are taken from my edition of the *Shāha jō Risālō*¹⁾, but many others also from manuscripts in my possession, which I collected during my former stay in Sindh. What we need now most is a critically sifted edition of the popular Sindhī tales and songs, which are very numerous and from which a good collection might be made. The next desideratum is an enlarged Sindhī Dictionary, as the late Capt. Geo. Stack's Dictionary, which is very good as far as it goes, is not sufficient for reading older or more difficult pieces. We may fairly expect, that these deficiencies will soon be remedied by Mr. Peile, the present energetic and enlightened Director of Public Instruction in the Bombay Presidency, for which the thanks of the learned Public will be due to him.

The Sindhī is by no means an easy language, it is on the contrary beset with more intricacies and difficulties than any of its Prākrit sisters. But on the other hand it amply repays to the philologist the labours he bestows on it; for the Sindhī has preserved a great many forms, for which we look in vain in the cognate idioms. For the purpose of intercomparing the modern Ārian dialects the Sindhī is therefore invaluable. For this reason we have pointed out, in the form of annotations, the relation of the Sindhī with the Sanskrit-Prākṛit on the one hand and with the modern cognate idioms on the other hand, to give some impulse to a comparative study of the North-Indian Vernaculars, which as yet has been totally neglected.

The Sindhī Grammar of the late Capt. Stack is an accurate and meritorious work, but as all first attempts (for the Sindhī Grammar of Wathen does not deserve the name) incomplete and destitute of a Syntax. I sincerely wish, that the deficiencies of his work, from the emendation and enlargement of which he was prevented by an untimely death, may have been made up by the Grammar now offered to the Public.

The English reader will no doubt meet in this Grammar with many an expression, which he will consider as erroneous or ill-chosen. For all such and similar mistakes I must beg his pardon, which the kind reader surely will not withhold, when he is told, that the idiom, into which I endeavoured to clothe my thoughts, is not my mother-tongue.

Whilst this Grammar was passing through the press, I had gone to India for the purpose of translating the Sikh Granth. In order not to delay too long the printing of it, I could only see and correct a proof-sheet once. The unavoidable consequence was, that owing to the letters of this Grammar being loaded with so many dots and distinguishing marks, a number of misprints has crept in, which the student is requested to correct first after the affixed list of misprints.

INTRODUCTION.

THE RELATIONSHIP OF THE SINDHI TO THE SANSKRIT AND PRAKRIT.

The Sindhī is a pure Sanskritical language, more free from foreign elements than any other of the North Indian vernaculars. The old Prākṛit grammarians may have had their good reason, to designate the Apabhraṇsha dialect, from which the modern Sindhī is immediately derived, as the lowest of all the Prākṛit dialects; but if we compare now the Sindhī with its sister-tongues, we must assign to it, in a grammatical point of view, the first place among them. It is much more closely related to the old Prākṛit, than the Marāṭhī, Hindī, Panjābī and Bangālī of our days, and it has preserved an exuberance of grammatical forms, for which all its sisters may well envy it. For, while all the modern vernaculars of India¹⁾ are already in a state of complete decomposition, the old venerable mother-tongue being hardly recognisable in her degenerate daughters, the Sindhī has, on the contrary, preserved most important fragments of it and erected for itself a grammatical structure, which surpasses in beauty of execution and internal harmony by far the loose and levelling construction of its sisters.

The Sindhī has remained steady in the first stage of decomposition after the old Prākṛit, whereas all the other cognate dialects have sunk some degrees deeper; we shall see in the course of our introductory remarks, that the rules, which the Prākṛit grammarian Kramadīshvara has laid down in reference to the Apabhraṃsha, are still recognisable in the present Sindhī, which by no means can be stated of the other dialects. The Sindhī has thus become an independant language, which, though sharing a common origin with its sister-tongues, is very materially differing from them.

The Sindhī, which is spoken within the boundaries of Sindh proper, is divided into three dialects, which grammatically differ very little from each other, but offer considerable discrepancies in point of pronunciation. The dialect of lower Sindh, comprising the Indus-Delta and the sea-coast, is called लाड़ी lārī, from लाड़ु lāṛu¹), by which lower Sindh is designated. The dialect, which is spoken north of Haiderābad, is called सिराईकी sirāiki, from सिरो sirō, by which Upper Sindh is designated; the dialect in vogue in the Thar, or desert of Sindh, is called थरैली tharēli, from थरु tharu, the desert.

The dialect of Lār, though employed in most Sindhī compositions, is not the purest; the vowels are frequently contracted and the consonants too much softened down by assimilation. The northern or Sirāiki dialect has remained far more original and has preserved the purity of pronunciation with more tenaciousness, than the southern one. With reference to this superiority of the northern dialect to the southern the Sindhīs like to quote the proverb:

लाड़ जो पढ़ो सिरे जो ढगो

lāra jō paṛhyō sirē jō ḍhaḡō.

The learned man of Lār is an ox in Upper Sindh.

1) लाड़ु is not a proper noun, but an appellation, signifying: „sloping ground;“ the same is the case with सिरो sirō, which signifies the upper country.

The dialect of the Thar is vigorous but uncouth and already intermingled with the Mārṣvārī; it is spoken by the Shikārīs, Dhedhs (देहु carrier) and other out-cast tribes. As far as I know, there are no literary compositions extant in this dialect.

The object of these introductory remarks is to show the relative position, which the Sindhī holds to the Sanskrit and Prākṛit; and in order to elucidate this subject, we shall lay down the rules and principles, by which the present Sindhī vowel and consonantal system has been derived from the Sanskrit by the medium of the Prākṛit. Thus, we hope, a solid basis also will be gained for intercomparing the Sindhī with its other sister-tongues. By this process alone, which will enable us, to assign to the Ārian stock, what has been taken from it, though much altered now in shape and outward appearance by dint of contraction and assimilation, we shall on the other hand be able to trace out a certain residuum of vocables, which we must allot to an old aboriginal language, of which neither name nor extent is now known to us, but which, in all probability, was of the Tātār stock of languages and spread throughout the length and breadth of India before the irruption of the Ārian race, as all the other vernaculars contain a similar non-Ārian residuum of words, which have been already designated as "provincial" by the old Prākṛit grammarians.

The following investigation is destined for such as may be competent, by their previous studies, to penetrate more deeply into the real nature of the modern idioms of India, and for them, I trust, these outlines may prove useful and at the same time incentive, to follow up more deeply the intricate path, which I have pointed out.

I. THE SINDHI VOWEL SYSTEM.¹⁾

We consider first the single vowels, their change, substitution, contraction or elision in Sindhī.

1) च्च (ṛ) and its permutations.

The Sindhī, like the old Prākṛit, has cut off च्च from its system of sounds; for it is either treated as a vowel, in which case it is changed to i, a etc., or as a consonant, in which latter case it coincides with र (r).

At the beginning of a word च्च, if standing by itself, is changed to रि (ri), just as in Prākṛit, e. g. Sindhī रिछु riṇhu, bear, Prāk. रिछ, Sansk. च्छद्.

But if च्च be joined to a consonant, the following rules hold good:

a) ṛ is usually dissolved into i, as: डिसणु diṣaṇu, to see, Sansk. दृष् (but Prāk. दक्ख), Hindī देखना; विछूं viṇhū, scorpion, Prāk. विचुञ्चो (or विञ्चुञ्चो), Sansk. कृच्छिक; किञ्चो kiō, done, Prāk. किद, Sansk. कृत; गिरहणु giṛhaṇu; to take, Sansk. गृह्ण, Prāk. गेरह.

b) ṛ is dissolved into u, if the consonant, to which it is joined, happens to be a labial, as: बुढो būdhō, old, Prākṛit on the other hand बड्ढ, Sansk. बृद्ध; मुञ्चो muō, dead, Prāk. मुदो or already मुञ्चो (by elision of द), Sansk. मृत. In such instances, as सुणणु suṇaṇu, to hear, Prāk. सुण, the original root-vowel (Sansk. शु) has been preserved.

1) In order to facilitate the intercomparison of the Sindhī with the Sanskrit and Prākṛit we have used in these introductory remarks a modified Sanskrit alphabet, the particulars of which see further on under the Sindhī alphabets. The romanized transcription, which we have added-every-where, is in accordance with the Standard Alphabet by Prof. Dr. Lepsius, 2^d edition.

c) In most instances though r is dissolved into ar, irrespective of the consonant to which it may be joined, as:

मरणु maraṇu, to die, Prāk. मर्, Sansk. मृ.

भरणु bharanu, to fill, Prāk. भर्, Sansk. भृ.

धरणु dharanu, to place, Prāk. धर्, Sansk. धृ.

सरणु saraṇu, to move, Prāk. सर, Sansk. सृ.

In such like instances the Sindhī, as well as all the other cognate dialects, is quite in accordance with Prākṛit usage, the Sanskrit verbal noun being taken as the base of the infinitive in the modern idioms. In other instances though the Sindhī is not so liberal in dissolving r, as the Prākṛit; it has managed, on the contrary, in many cases to preserve r by changing it to ir or transposing the same, as: मिर्दगुं mirdangu (or: मिर्धगुं mirdhangu) a tabor, Prāk. मुर्दंगो, Sansk. मृदङ्ग; विरु virkhu, taurus (planet), Sansk. वृष; हिर्यो hirdhō¹), heart, Prāk. हिञ्जञ्जं, Sansk. हृदयम्, but the more Prākṛitical form हिञ्जो hīō, is also in use in Sindhī.

In a few cases r has been preserved by being changed to simple r (subscribed), in conjunction with a dental t, d, or a cerebral ṭ, ḍ; as: जाद्रो jātrō, son-in-law, Prāk. जामाउञ्जो, Sansk. जामातृक; in this form म has been elided, which is rather of rare occurrence, and the dental has passed into a cerebral, the affix क being dropped altogether; similarly माद्रे mātrē, and its derivatives, as: माद्रेजो mātrējō, माद्रेतो mātrētō etc., corresponding to the Prākṛit form माउञ्जो, Sansk. मातृक.

1) The aspiration of घ is caused by the following r, which very frequently aspirates a preceding consonant, as we shall have often occasion to notice.

2) The Diphthongs ऐ ai and औ au.

Properly speaking there are no diphthongs in Sindhī, as little as in Prākṛit; ai is generally pronounced loosely as a-i, and au as a-u. The Sindhī, however, is somewhat tighter in its pronunciation and not quite so effeminate as the Prākṛit, so that it will depend more or less on the option of the speaker, if he will contract ai or au into a real diphthong, or pronounce them separately as two distinct vowels. From the manner of writing, no safe conclusion can be drawn, as a fixed system of orthography is still a desideratum. It may however be laid down as a general rule, that the Sindhī ignores diphthongs and pronounces them as two distinct vowels.

a) The diphthong ai.

α) In such words, as are borrowed from the Arabic or Persian, the original diphthong is generally retained, and written and pronounced accordingly, as: सैरु sairu, journey; Arab. سَيْر; पैदा paidā, created, Pers. پیدَا; likewise in such nouns, as have been taken from the Hindūstānī, as: पैसो paisō, a pice. On the rest it is quite optional, to write and pronounce for instance सैन saina or सइन sa-ina, hint; the Hindūs prefer the loose Prākṛit pronunciation (a-i, a-u), the Muhammedans more the Arabic or Persian method (ai, au).

β) But generally the diphthong ai is contracted into ē in Sindhī, which is always long, and never anceps, as in Prākṛit; e. g. वेरु vēru, enmity, prāk. वइरं (Lassen quotes also a form वेरं), Sansk. वैरं; वेज्जु vēju, physician, Prāk. वेज्ज, Sansk. वैद्य; सेंधोलूणु sēndhōlūṇu, rocksalt (literally, Sindh-salt), from the Sansk. सेंधव, Sindhī, and लवण salt (Prāk. लोण).

In a similar manner also अय ay, which in Sindhī is treated in the same way as ai, is frequently contracted into ē, as: नेणु nēṇu, eye, Prāk. णच्चणं, Sansk. नयनं; सेजा sējā, bed, Prāk. सेज्जा, Sansk. शय्या.

γ) The original diphthong ai may also be contracted to ī, as: धीर्जु dhīrju, firmness, Sansk. धैर्यं, Prāk. धीर. This Sindhī form is so far a proof for the correctness of the Prākṛit rule, as धीर्जु can only be derived from धैर्यं, and not from धीर itself; similarly Hindī धीर्ज.

b) The diphthong au.

The same, that has been remarked on the diphthong ai, may also be stated of the diphthong au; it may be optionally pronounced as a diphthong, but is more commonly separated into its component vowels.

α) This diphthong is generally preserved in words borrowed from the Arabic or Persian, as: दौर dauru, a period, arab. دَوْر; औरत aurata, woman, Arab. عَوْرَت; also in pure Sindhī words it is used and written, as: औखो aukhō, difficult; भौर bhaūru, a large black bee, Sansk. भमर; लाँगु laṅgu, a clove, Sansk. लवङ्ग. In such pure Sindhī words though the diphthong may also, after the analogy of the Prākṛit, be separated into a-u, as: वडणु va-ṇaṇu, to seek, or: वौणु vauranu; भउणु bha-ṇaṇu, to wander about, or: भौणु bhaunaṇu.

At the end of a word no diphthong is admissible, and it must always be pronounced अउ a-u, for the sake of inflexion, as: सउ sa-u, hundred (Prāk. सच्च) जउ ja-u, barley, Pers. چَرْ, Sansk. यव; चउ ca-u, say, imperative of चवणु, to say.

β) But very frequently this diphthong is contracted to ō, as: गौरो gōrō, fair, Sansk. गौर; जोभनु jōbhanu, time of youth, Prāk. जोवणं, Sansk. यौवनम्; मोडु mōṛu, a crest, Prāk. मउडं (Sansk. मुकुट); भौणो bhōṇō, or भउखो bha-ṇō, a vagabond. The same rule also is occasionally applied to Arabic or Persian words, as: कोम kōma, a clan, or: कौम kauma, Arab. قَوْم.

γ) The diphthong au may also be contracted to ū, as: सूरिहाई sūrihāi, heroism, Prāk. सोरिञ्चं Sansk. शौर्य; लुणू lūnu, salt, Prāk. लोण, Sansk. लवणं (अव being treated like au).

3) The vowels a, ā; i, ī; u, ū; ē; ō.

Having considered the diphthongs ai and au in their relative position to the Sanskrit and Prākrit, we submit now the common Sindhī vowels to a nearer examination.

a) The vowels a, ā.

The short vowel अ a, is more tenaciously kept fast in Sindhī, than in the Prākrit, and the Sindhī very frequently recurs directly again to the original Sanskrit, as: पको pakō, cooked, Sansk. पक्क, but Prāk. पिक्क; अंगारु angāru, coal, Sansk. अङ्गार, but Prāk. इङ्गालो; सुपनो supanō, dream, Sansk. स्वप्न, but Prāk. सिबिण; बलि vale, a creeper, Sansk. वल्ली, but Prāk. वेस्लि. But there is no lack of examples on the other hand, in which original a has been likewise shortened to i, as: खिमा khimā, patience, Prāk. खमा, Sansk. क्षमा; मिज miña, marrow, Sansk. मज्जा.

In this way a has been shortened to i in all those forms, which are already alleged by the Prākrit grammarian Kramadīshvara in the Apabhraṁsha dialect (compare: Lassen, Instit. Linguae Prāk. p. 454) as: जिञ्च-तिञ्च jīa-tīa (Apabhraṁsha: जिध-तिध, instead of जध-तध); जिति-तिति jite-tite, where-there (Apabhraṁsha: जेत्थु-तेत्थु¹⁾), from यच-तच); किति kite, where? (Apa-bhransha: केत्थु, from an original form कत्थु, instead of कच, thence the common Sansk. form कुच). The Sindhī adverb ईअ ia or ईअ ia, thus, corresponds to the Prāk. ईअ, and is regularly derived from the Sansk. adverb इत्थम् (not from इति, which Lassen has already doubted) with the elision of h (īa = iha).

1) e is in Prākrit before a double consonant = ऎ = ई.

Short a is occasionally, but rarely, changed to u, as: राउरु rā-uru, tax, Sansk. राजकर (but not in the examples quoted by Lassen §. 173, 3).

Long ā is in Sindhī frequently preserved in such forms, where in Prākrit it has been already shortened (owing to the contraction or assimilation of the following compound consonant): as: बैरागी bairāgī, a religious ascetic, Prāk. बेरग, Sansk. बैराग्य; मारिख mārīkha, way, Prāk. मग, Sansk. मार्ग; जाट्रा jāṭrā, pilgrimage, Prāk. जत्ता, Sansk. यात्रा; वाघु, vāghu, tiger, Prāk. वग्घु, Sansk. व्याघ्र. Long ā has been shortened in कोडरि kōḍare, spade, Sansk. कुदाल.

Long ā is weakened to ī in the following adverbs, after the analogy of the Prākrit, as: जडिहिं-तडिहिं jāḍehē-taḍehē, when-then; कडिहिं kaḍehē, when? which are derived from the Sansk. adverbs: यदा-तदा, कदा.

Long ā as a feminine termination of Prākrit nouns is in Sindhī occasionally permuted for ī or even i (e), as: वाई vā-ī, speck, Prāk. वाआ, Sansk. वाच्; धुरि dhure, origin, Prāk. धुरा, Sansk. धुर. The only example of final आ of a masc. theme being changed to i is राइ rā-e, prince, Prāk. राआ, Sansk. राजा nom.

In a certain number of words, ending in the Sansk. crude state in नृ (but nom. sing. ना), final ā has been changed in Sindhī (as now and then already in Prākrit) to u, as: पिउ, father, Prāk. पिआ (by elision of न), Sansk. nom. पिता; भाउ bhāu, brother, Prāk. भाआ, Sansk. भाता; and by the same levelling process: माउ māu, mother, Prāk. माआ, Sansk. माता; राउ rāu, prince (besides राइ); पंधु pandhu, journey, Sansk. पन्था m.

As regards the vowel changes in the midst of a word, the Sindhī adheres on the average to Prākṛit usage, as: पथरु patharu, bed, Prāk. पत्थर, Sansk. प्रस्तर, Hindī बिस्तर), different from the else identical word पथरु stone, Prāk. पत्थर, Sansk. प्रस्तर (Hindī पत्थर); मया mayā, compassion, Sansk. माया (Hindī likewise मया); देवली dēvalī, temple (in Sindhī with the fem. termination ī), Prāk. देउल्ल, Sansk. देवालय (Hindī likewise देवल).

b) The vowels i, ī.

Short i is in Sindhī pronounced like short ě, when preceded or followed by ह h, and regularly so, when ending a word, as: इहड़ो ěharō, such a one, मिहिति mēhētē, a mosque; गालि gāle, word. Short i corresponds therefore often to the Prākṛit ए ē, which is considered short, when followed by a compound consonant, whereas ए ē is in Sindhī always long; e. g. Prāk. गेण्ह, Sindhī गिण्ह (गिण्हणु), to take; निद्र nindra, sleep, Prāk. रोह or णिह, Sansk. निद्रा; चिन्हु cīnhu, sign, Prāk. चेन्ध or चिन्ध, Sansk. चिह्न.

It is a curious phenomenon in Sindhī, that occasionally a short i is interpolated in a syllable, which the effeminate pronunciation finds too harsh for the ear. This is particularly the case, when a syllable closes with a double n or n followed by another consonant (especially a liquida). The consequence of this effeminate pronunciation is, that the n thus separated by the interpolation of i, becomes nasalized, as: संइन sāina, sign, hint, instead of सच, from संज्ञा; संइसारु sāisāru, world, instead of संसारु; मंइजल māījala, a day's journey, instead of मंजल (مَنْجَل), and is frequently no longer heard at all, especially in the mouth of the Muhammedans, who write: مَزَل ma-izala, سَسَار sa-isāru etc.

Lengthened is ī in की kī, what, Prākrit already की, from the Sanskrit किम्; further in शीहु śīhu, lion, Prāk. सीह, Sansk. सिंह; but not in जिभ jibha, tongue, Prāk. जीहा, Sansk. जिह्वा.

Long ī is kept fast by the Sindhī in many instances, where in Prākrit it has been shortened to i, in consequence of the assimilation of consonants, as: तीर्थ tīrthu, a holy bathing-place; Prāk. तित्थ, Sansk. तीर्थ.

Long ī is rarely shortened to i, and this only, when ending a noun, as: नारि nāre, a woman, Prāk. et Sansk. नारी.

Long ī passes into ē in those instances, which have been already marked out by the old Prākrit grammarians, as Prākrit केरिस्, एरिस् etc., Sansk. कीदृश, ईदृश etc. The corresponding Sindhī forms are: केहरो, kēharō, what? (by transposition of ह, instead of केहो); केरु kēru, who, (by elision of ह, instead of केहु kēhu; in the Apabhraṇsha dialect r on the other hand has been dropped, as: केही). The Prākrit form एरिस् (Apabhraṇsha एही) has not been taken up by the Sindhī, but other forms have been created from the pronominal bases की, जो, तो, इहो, उहो, by adding to them the diminutive affix डो rō, as: किहड़ो kēharō, of what kind; जिहड़ो-तिहड़ो jēharō — tēharō, of which kind — of such a kind; इहड़ो ēharō, of this kind, उहड़ो uharō, of that kind.

c) The vowels u, ū.

On the whole the Sindhī has taken up those changes, which these vowels have been made subject to in Prākrit;

but in some special cases it has remained more original, than the Prākṛit, as: पुरुष puruṣu, man, Prāk. पुरिसो, Sansk. पुरुष; मुखिरी, mukhirī, a bud, Prāk. मउलं, Sansk. मुकुलं.

U is changed to a in: गरो ḡarō, heavy, Prāk. गरुअ, Sansk. गुरु; डबलु ḍaḇalu, weak (Prāk. still दुबल), Sansk. दुर्बल; or it may be dropped altogether, as: परि pare, on, upon, Prāk. उवरि, Sansk. उपरि.

U is changed to ō only in the following instances, as: मोती mōtī, pearl, Prāk. मोत्त (mōtta) Sansk. मुक्त; पोथी pōthī, book, Prāk. पोत्थुओ, Sansk. पुस्तक; कोइरि kōḍare, a spade, Sansk. कुदाल.

Long ū is preserved more tenaciously in Sindhī, than in Prākṛit, e. g. नूरो nūro, a hollow ring on the ankle, Prāk. खेउरं Sansk. नूपुर. — In such cases, where original u has been depressed to ō in Prākṛit, the original vowel generally reappears in Sindhī, as: उखिरि ukhirī, a mortar, Prāk. ओकखलं, Sansk. उलखल; पुठि puṭhe, power, Prāk. पोदिठ, Sansk. पुष्टि, which is, though identical in form, not to be confounded with पुठि puṭhe, the back, Sansk. पृष्ट, Hindī पीढ़.

d) The vowels ē and ō.

In Sindhī, as well as in Prākṛit, ē and ō are no longer looked upon as Guṇa-vowels, but as simple sounds. In Sindhī ē and ō are always long, never aneeps, as in Prākṛit; for the short Prākṛitical ē short i is substituted in Sindhī, as: हिकु hiku, one, Prāk. एक्क; and for the short Prākṛitical ō short u, as stated already.

Both vowels keep their place very steadfastly and frequently reappear in such cases, where they have been already shortened in Prākrit, owing to the assimilation of consonants, as: प्रेम प्रेम, love, Prāk. पेम (pēm); जभनु jōbhanu, time of youth, Prāk. जव्वणं (jōvva-nam); जोगु jōgū, fit, Prāk. जोग्ग, Sansk. योग्य.

Quite exceptional is the shortening of ō to u in लुहरु luharu, blacksmith, instead of: लोहकार (Sansk. लोहकार), where ā has been likewise shortened to ā; and the change of ē to ī in पीजु pīju, draught, Sansk. पेय; खी khī, welfare, Sansk. क्षेम; नीहु nīhu, love, Prāk. खेहो, Sansk. खेह; मीहु mīhu, rain, Prāk. मेहो, Sansk. मेघ.

When ending a noun ē and ō are frequently shortened to ě and ŭ respectively, especially in poëtry; but these changes being peculiar to Sindhī, we shall consider them hereafter separately. The peculiarity of the Apabhraṃsha dialect, as noted by the grammarian Kramadishvara, is fully borne out by the modern Sindhī; it uses likewise in the locative singular ě (i) instead of ē, as परदेहि pa-raḍēhe, in a foreign country, घरि gharē, in a house etc. In the same way, as the Apabhraṃsha, the Sindhī also changes to a great extent the Prākrit termination ō to u, as: कामु kamu, business, Prāk. काम्मो etc. The same may also be said of the ablative sing. termination आदो (= ā—ō with elision of द) which is commonly shortened to ādu in the Apabhraṃsha dialect, and in Sindhī further to ā-u: as घराउ gharā-u, from a house. This old Sindhī ablative termination is now-a-days generally contracted to आउं āū (ā being likewise shortened to ā, and to avoid the hiatus, both vowels being nasalized) but ā-u is still very frequently used in poëtry.

The elision, contraction and insertion of vowels.

These three points, so important in the old Prākṛit, we may, as far as the Sindhī is concerned, sum up under the following brief remarks:

a) An elision of vowels takes far more rarely place in Sindhī, than in the Prākṛit, because the consonants do not so easily give way; there is however no lack of instances; in which the Sindhī accedes to Prākṛit usage, as: दुआरो duārō, temple (different from दुआर door, Sansk. द्वार), Sansk. देवालय, where ē has been elided; सिआरो siārō, the cold season, Prāk. सीआरो, Sansk. शीतकाल; कुंभर kumbharu, potter, Sansk. कुंभकार; पखाल pakhāla, a pair of leather-bags, Sansk. पयःखल; रिणु riṇu, the desert (the Rīṇ), Sansk. इरिणः; धिया dhia, daughter (prākṛit already धीआ, see Lassen p. 172, note); बि bi, also, Prāk. बि, Sansk. अपि.

b) As regards the contraction of vowels, the Sindhī coincides more fully with the Prākṛit, though in some instances I have noticed a deviation from Prākṛit analogy, as: चोथों cōṭhō, the fourth, Prāk. चउत्थ, Sansk. चतुर्थ; मोर moru, peacock, Prāk. मोर, Sansk. मयुर; लूणु lūṇu, salt, Prāk. लोण, Sansk. लवण; सोनु sōnu, gold, Sansk. सुवर्ण.

c) With reference to the insertion of vowels the Sindhī agrees on the whole with the Prākṛit.

α) An original compound consonant is separated by the insertion of a vowel, to render its pronunciation more easy for a Sindhī organ. The insertion of a respective vowel depends on the sequence of vowels or the varga of the consonant, which is to be separated from the preceding one, though this rule is by no means strictly adhered to.

a is inserted in cases like the following: सराह sa-rāha, praise, Prāk. सलाहा, Sansk. स्थाया; सलोकु sa-lōku, a ślōka, Prāk. सिलोच्च, Sansk. श्लोक.

i is inserted, as: इस्त्री istri, woman, Prāk. इत्थी, Sansk. स्त्री; वरिहु varēhu, year, Prāk. वरिसो, Sansk. वर्ष; मिलणु milaṇu, to be obtained, Prāk. मिलाण; Sansk. root म्ले.

u is inserted, as: सुपनो supanō, dream, Prāk. सिबिण, Sansk. स्वप्न; सुमरणु sumaraṇu, to remember, Prāk. सुमर्, Sansk. स्मर् (root स्मृ).

β) On the other hand the Sindhī very frequently has gone a step farther and dispensed with the insertion of a vowel by pushing the root-vowel between the compound consonant and dropping the final consonant, as: सेणु sēṇu, friend, Prāk. सणेह, Sansk. स्नेह; or more commonly it drops simply one of the compound consonants, as: नुहु nuhu, daughter-in-law, Prāk. सोणह, Sansk. सुषा; सघणु saghaṇu, to be able, Prāk. सकणोमि, Sansk. सक्रोमि.

Sandhi, Hiatus and Euphony.

The Sindhī, as well as the Prākrit, dispenses totally with the rules of Sandhī, and vowels may therefore meet, without being subject to the laws of euphony. To separate however in some measure concurring vowels, the Sindhī very liberally employs the use of Anusvāra, whereby a certain nasalizing pronunciation has been imparted to the language, which is in some measure disagreeable to our ear; e. g. झाँज āũ, I; सुखाँज su-khāũ, nom. plur. of सुखा, vows; स्वाँडु khāṇu, to burn; गँज gāũ, cow etc. The Anusvāra is further inserted, to facilitate the lengthened pronunciation of a vowel, as: मीहु mīhu, rain, Sansk. मेघ; this is particularly the case, when a noun ends in a long vowel, as प्री prī, friend, भूँ bhū, earth etc.

On the other hand there are also examples to be met with, where original Anusvāra has been dropped in Sindhī, as: मासु māsu, or माहु māhu, meat, Sansk. मांस.

II. THE SINDHĪ CONSONANTAL SYSTEM.

In comparing the Sindhī letters (see below the Sindhī alphabets) with the Prākṛit alphabet, we see at the first glance, that the Sindhī has retained the letters श ś, ड़ ṛ, ज ṛ and न n, as single letters, which have disappeared already from the Prākṛit alphabet, except when preceding a consonant of their respective vargas.

श ś, is in Sindhī by no means a palatal sibilant, as in Sanskrit, but a simple dental sound, equally unknown in Sanskrit and Prākṛit, which has become naturalized in all the modern idioms (with the exception of the Gujarātī), and which corresponds to our common dental sh. It is derived from various sources:

a) from the Sanskrit palatal sibilant श, as: शब्दु śabdu, word; Sansk. शब्द; शरीरु śarīru, body (besides सरीरु sarīru), Sansk. शरीर; शुक्रु śukru, friday, Sansk. शुक्र.

b) from the Sanskrit dental sibilant स s, as: शीहु śīhu, lion, Sansk. सिंह; शाहू śāhū, rich (by the Musalmāns generally pronounced साऊ sā-ū) Sansk. साधु; the s of Persian words is also now and then changed to ś, as: शीख śikha, a spit, Pers. سیخ.

c) from the Sanskrit cerebral sibilant ष ś, as: कषणु kaṣaṇu, to pull, Sansk. कृष (Hindī कसा); किरणु kiṣṇu,

Krishṇa, Sansk. कृष्ण; विशु viṣu, world (besides विसु) Sansk. विषय.

The letter ش of Arabic and Persian words is always rendered by श, as: शहर ſaharu, town, Pers. شهر; शाहु ſāhu, king, Pers. شاه.

This is a very remarkable deviation from the principles of the Prākṛit, where the letter श has been changed to स, and further to ह.

In Sindhī the use of the letter श is confined to a limited number of indigenous vocables (those, which have been borrowed from foreign sources, not being taken into account), but that it is still to be considered more or less exceptional, may be concluded from the circumstance, that the Prākṛit rules concerning its permutations (श = स = ह) are still in full force in Sindhī, as: सुणणु su-ṇaṇu, to hear, Prāk. सुणामि, Sansk. शृणोमि; फासी phāsī, or फाही phāhī, a noose, Sansk. पाश; देसु dēsu, country, Sansk. देश; इह ḍaha, ten, Prāk. दह, Sansk. दश.

The same law holds good with reference to the cerebral ष ṣ, which like श, passes into स or ह, as: नुहु nuhu, daughter-in-law, Sansk. नुषा; विसु viṣu, world, Sansk. विषय; वेसु vēsu, disguise, Sansk. वेष.

श and ष are in Sindhī also frequently changed to छ ḥ, as: किछड़ी kiḥṇṇī, rise and pulse boiled together (Hindī खिचड़ी), Sansk. कृशरा; छंछरु ḥanḥharu, Saturday, Sansk. शनिश्चर; छ ḥa, or छह ḥaha, six, Prāk. छा, Sansk. षट्. This permutation seems in Sindhī to be so deeply rooted, that even the ش of Arabic and Persian words is occasionally changed to छ, as: छाल ḥāla (besides शाल), would to God, Arab. شاء الله; छाबसि ḥābase, bravo! Pers. شاباش; पाछाहु pāḥāhu, king, Pers. پادشاه.

The cerebral ष is occasionally written in Sindhī, but only by Brāhmans, and even with them its use depends on their relative knowledge of Sanskrit. We may therefore as well leave out this letter from the consonantal system of the Sindhī, as its actual pronunciation is completely ignored. In Capt. Stack's Sindhī Dictionary some words are given with the cerebral ष, such as: विषई viṣai, voluptuary, दुष्टु ḍuṣṭu, bad, कष्टु kaṣṭu, wretchedness etc., but the letter itself as well as those words are only known to the Brāhmans.

The guttural ङ ṅ, as well as the palatal ञ ṇ, keep their place in Sindhī as single letters, e. g. अङ्गु aṅgu, body (Hindī अंग or आंग), Sansk. अङ्ग; मङ्गु maṅgu, to ask (Hindī मांगना), Sansk. मार्गण (r. मृग); मञ्जु maṅgu, to heed (Hindī माना), Sansk. मानन. In the kindred dialects both these nasals are only used in conjunction with a letter of their varga, and never as single consonants (the Panjābī alone being excepted).

The cerebral ण ṇ has not supplanted the dental ज in Sindhī, as in Prākṛit, but both are sharply kept asunder; ण ṇ is also used as a single consonant, in the same way as ङ ṅ and ञ ṇ, and is of very frequent occurrence, in which respect the Panjābī alone agrees with the Sindhī, the other dialects using ण ṇ only before letters of the cerebral class, with the exception of the Hindūstānī, which is destitute of a cerebral nasal.

1) Single consonants at the beginning of a word.

At the beginning of a word the following consonants occur in Sindhī:

- 1) Gutturals: क k, ख kh; ग g, घ gh; — ह h; — — ग ḡ.
- 2) Palatals: च c, छ ch; ज j, झ jh; — य y; — श ś, ञ j.
- 3) Cerebrals: ट t, ठ th; ड ḍ, ढ ḍh; — ड़ ṛ; — — ड़ ḍ.
- 4) Dentals: त t, थ th; द d, ध dh; न n; र r; ल l; स s; —
- 5) Labials: प p, फ ph; ब b, भ bh; म m; व v; — — ब ḃ.

This scheme deviates from that of the Prākṛit in some essential points, which we have partly already noticed.

Peculiar to the Sindhī is the cerebral इ r, beginning a word, which is not found in any of the other dialects. It is, however, also in Sindhī confined to the two interjections इ रे and इ री; the former is used in calling out to a man, the latter in calling out to a woman. There can be no doubt, that we have in both forms the Sansk. interjectional adverb अरे (which form is also used in Sindhī) which has been vindicated by Dr. Caldwell (Comparative Grammar of the Drāvidian languages, p. 440) to the Drāvidian idioms of the south, and the original signification of which is: o slave! The correctness of Dr. Caldwell's statement is borne out by the Sindhī, in which besides इ and इी, also अइ and अइी is used, corresponding to the Drāvidian aḍā.

All those consonants, as arrayed above, hold their place at the beginning of a word, when standing single; but when a noun happens to be compounded, then the first consonant of the second noun is no longer considered initial, and may therefore be elided, as: सिआरो siārō, the cold season, Prākṛit already मीआरो, Sansk. शीत—काल.

1) क k is not subject to aspiration, as in some examples of the Prākṛit, e. g. खुज्ज, Sansk. कुज्ज, Sindhī कुबो kūbō, hump-backed; neither is k changed to च at the beginning of a word, but frequently at the end (being an affix) and in the case of the genitive affix जो even to the media ज j.

The k of Arabic-Persian words on the other hand is now and then aspirated or even changed to خ χ, as: کُتَابُ khutābu, school, or خُتَابُ χutābu, from the Arabic سَكَّانُ sukhānu, a rudder, Arab. سَكَّانُ.

2) ग g is aspirated in the single instance of घर gharu, a house, Prāk. घर (instead of गृह), Sansk. गृह.

3) त t is very frequently changed to the corresponding cerebral ट ṭ. The tendency of the dentals, to surrender their place to the corresponding cerebrals, has so much got the upper hand in Sindhī, that its consonantal system differs therein quite materially and significantly from the old Prākrit; e. g. द्रामो trāmō, copper, Prāk. तांब, Sansk. ताम्र (Hindī तांबा); द्वे trē, three, Prāk. तिसि, Sansk. त्रीणि (Hindī तीन); the same may also be stated of the aspirate थ th, as: ठाणु thāṇu, stable, Prāk. थाण, Sansk. स्थान.

The cerebral ट (ठ) with its media ड (ढ) comprises the most non-Ārian elements of the language; nearly $\frac{3}{4}$ of the words, which commence with a cerebral, are taken from some aboriginal, non-Ārian idiom, which in recent times has been termed "Scythian"¹⁾, but which we would prefer to call Tātār. This seems to be a very strong proof, that the cerebrals have been borrowed from some idiom anterior to the introduction of the Arian family of languages; the Sanskrit uses the cerebrals very sparingly, but in Prākrit, which is already considerably tinged with so-called "provincial" (i. e. non-Ārian) elements, they struggle already hard to supplant the dentals.

4) द d, as well as its tenuis त t, is very frequently changed to the corresponding cerebral ड ḍ, and, as even ḍ did not seem hard enough at the beginning of a word, it was changed in most cases to the peculiar Sindhī ड़ ḍḥ (the pronunciation of which see under the Sindhī alphabets), as: डोली ḍōlī, a kind of sedan chair, Prākrit already डोला, Sansk. दोला; डंडु ḍaṇḍu, a stick, Prāk.

1) This term, though used by Dr. Caldwell and Mr. Ed. Norris, we find too vague; Tātār is more specific, as we understand by this term a certain family of languages.

इण्ड, Sansk. दण्ड; डिञ्जणु ñianu, to give, Prāk. देमि, Sansk. root दा; डिसणु ñisanu, to see, Prāk. दक्ख Sansk. दृष्. But if r be joined to the cerebral media, the simple cerebral (ड) must be used, as ड ढ is already by its own nature a double cerebral, e. g. ड्राखा ñrākha, grape, Sansk. द्राक्षा (Hindī दाख). The simple cerebral ड ढ is very seldom to be met with at the beginning of a word, and must be carefully distinguished from इ ढ, as: डिठो ñiṭhō, obstinate, but डिठो ñiṭhō, seen, participle past of डिसणु to see.

द d, is changed to its aspirate ध dh in the single instance of धिञ्ज dhia, daughter, after the precedent of the Prākrit धीदा or धीञ्जा.

5) Initial प is aspirated in some instances, as: फासी phāsī or फाही phāhī, a noose, Sansk. पाश (Hindī फांसी); now and then it passes also to the semi-vowel व (by the medium of ब b) as: वाज्ञो vājñhō, a Hindū schoolmaster, Sansk. उपाध्याय (initial u having first been dropped).

6) The semi-vowel य y has become now very scarce in Sindhī at the beginning of a word, as: यभणु yabhanu, coire; यटो yaṭō, stout; यारहं yārāhā, eleven. After the analogy of the Prākrit initial य is generally changed to ज, as: जो jō, who, Sansk. यो; जसु jasu, fame, Sansk. यश.

In words, borrowed from the Arabic or Persian, y is always preserved, as: यारु yāru, friend, Pers. یار etc.

The only instance, where initial य has been changed to ल l in Sindhī is लठि laṭhe, a walking-stick; the same is the case in Prākrit, लट्ठि, Sansk. यष्टि.

§. 7.

2) Single consonants in the midst of a word.

According to a common Prākṛit rule the following consonants:

क k, ग g; च ङ, ज j; त t, द d; प p, ब b, when standing single in the midst of a word, may either be retained or elided. This rule we find corroborated by the Sindhī, but not without some essential restrictions, the consonants being on the whole more frequently retained than elided, as the effeminacy of pronunciation has not yet reached that degree of indistinctness in Sindhī, which so peculiarly characterizes the Prākṛit. We shall therefore find, that in many instances the Sindhī has followed the already beaten track, but has more frequently preserved the old harder form, or chosen its own way of elision and contraction. The semi-vowels are but rarely totally elided in Sindhī; they either keep their place or are dissolved into their corresponding vowels.

Examples of elision: सुई suī, needle, Prāk. सूई, Sansk. सूची. किओ kiō, done, Prāk. किदो, Sansk. कृत; राउ rāu, prince, Prāk. राआ, Sansk. राजा; चउमासो ča-umāsō, the rainy season, Sansk. चतुर्मास; सरउ sara-u, autumn, Prāk. सरदो, Sansk. शरद; पिउ piu, father, Prāk. पिआ, Sansk. पिता.

This process of elision is extended even to foreign words, as: नाखुओ nākhūō, a ship-master, Pers. نَاخُودَا.

But more frequently the consonants keep their place, as: सागरु sāgaru, the sea, Prāk. साअरो, Sansk. सागर; नगरु nagaru, town, Prāk. राअरो, Sansk. नगर; वचनु vačanu, promise, Prāk. वअण, Sansk. वचन.

It is quite characteristical, that the Prākṛit does not elide the cerebrals, for which it shows already such a predilection, but, wherever possible, it changes the dentals into cerebrals, to guard them thus against elision. This process we find in full operation in the modern dialects, which have sprung from the Prākṛit; the common dentals have become too weak for the mouth of the people, a circumstance, which receives a particular light from the manner, in which the modern Indians write and pronounce European words; every dental is without mercy changed by them into a cerebral, which proves at least so much, that the cerebrals are more familiar to them, than the dentals.

Let us now briefly glance over the exceptions, which have been noted down by the Prākṛit grammarians.

1) According to the rule, laid down at the head of this paragraph, the letters क k, ग g, च ṣ, ज j are, when not elided, retained. The exceptions from this rule in Prākṛit are not borne out by the Sindhī, and seem therefore to have been more of a local character. The only exception, which is corroborated by the modern idioms, is the Prākṛit form बहिणी, sister, Sansk. भगिणी, which must be explained by an original form बघिणी, from which बहिणी has sprung; Hindī बहिन् and Sindhī, by transposition of the aspiration, भेषु bhēṇu.

क k, may pass into its corresponding media ग, as: भगत्तु bhaḡatu, a worshipper, Sansk. भक्त; सगति saḡate, strength, Sansk. शक्ति. On the contrary there is a transition of ग to क (and by the influence of following r to kh) in खड्ग khaḍa, a pit, Prāk. गड्ग, Sansk. गर्त.

2) The cerebral ट ṭ and its aspirate ठ ṭh, frequently pass into their corresponding media, as: कंठी kaṇṭhī, a necklace (besides कंठी), Sansk. कण्ठीय. This is fully borne out by the modern dialects, especially the Sindhī, which goes already a step further in this downward course, and changes ड ḍ to ङ ṅ, and ढ ḍh to ढ ṛh; e. g. बड्ग baṛu, the Indian fig-tree, Sansk. वट; ट्रोङ्गु trōṅgu, to break, Sansk. चोटन; पढ्गु paṛhaṇu, to read, Sansk. पढ़; पीढ़ी pīrī, throne, Sansk. पीठी; लुढ़ाणु lurhaṇu, to roll down, Sansk. लुढ़.

To this permutation also the original Sanskritical ड ḍ is subject in many instances, as: जुड़णु juraṇu, to be joined, Sansk. जुड़; पीड़णु pīraṇu, to press, Sansk. पीड़; जड़ु jaṛu, inanimate body, Sansk. जड़. In a similar manner also the Sansk. ढ ḍh may be changed to ढ़ ṛh, as: मूढु mūrhu, ignorant, Sansk. मूढ.

But by far the greatest number of words, in which र or ṛh is to be found, is of non-Ārian origin.

3) त very often passes into its media द, as: खांदि khānde, patience, Sansk. क्षान्ति. The Sansk. participial termination अन्त (अत्) is always changed in Sindhī to अंदो andō, as: हलंदो halandō, going, कंदो doing. त is even changed to an aspirated cerebral, but only in such cases, where the aspiration has been caused by an elided r, as: वढु vaṭhu, taking, Sansk. वृत्ति. त is preserved in many instances, where in Prākṛit it has passed into the media द, as रुति rute, season, Prāk. उदुज, Sansk. ऋतु. In words borrowed from the Arabic (or Persian) त is occasionally aspirated, as: हिम्मथ him-matha, Arab. هِمْث; साअथ sāatha, hour, Arab. سَاعَة.

4) प only rarely passes into its media ब, as बि bi, also, Sansk. अपि; रजबूतु rajbūtu, a Rajput, Sansk. राजपुत्र; Prāk. उबरि upon, but Sindhī परि.

On the other hand there is a transition of the media to the tenuis in the abstract affix प, पो, पणु etc. (Hindī वन्), from the Sansk. affix त्व, त्वन (v = b = p), as: डाहप ḍāhapa, wisdom.

Final प is now and then changed to u (p = b = v = u), as: ताउ tāu, heat, Sansk. ताप, Hindī ताव tāō.

5) The substitution of ल in lieu of ड has been preserved in the case of: तलाउ talāu, a tank, Prāk.

The modern idioms deviate in this respect from the Prākṛit, that they change ड ḍ to ड़ ṛ, instead of substituting ल for ड; but therein also lies a hint, how the substitution of ल for ड has been possible. The change must have been effected by the medium of ड़ ṛ (not of र, as Lassen supposes), which approaches ल very closely in sound. This explains sufficiently such like cases as: पीलो pīlō, yellow, Sansk. पीत; the change must have passed through the following stages, as: पीत = पीद = पीड = पीड़ = पील.

6) The substitution of र r for द in those numerals, which are compounded with दश, has been retained in Sindhī, as well as in the cognate dialects, e. g. Prāk. एआरह, Sindhī यारंहं yārāhā, eleven; Prāk. वारह, Sindhī बारंहं bārāhā, twelve; Prāk. तेरह, Sindhī तेरंहं tērāhā, thirteen; द however must be standing by itself, for Prāk. चउदह, Sindhī चोड़ंहं cōḍāhā, fourteen.

3) Single Aspirates in the midst of a word.

On the average the aspirates are in Sindhī more frequently preserved, than elided, though the Prākṛit laws, concerning their elision, are also in force.

a) The letters ख kh, घ gh, थ th, ध dh, भ bh may be elided in this wise, that only the spiritus ह remains. This phenomenon is so far of great importance, as the Prākṛit seems to indicate thereby, that it considers the aspirates as compound consonants, like gh, bh etc., the base of which is dropped and the spiritus ह alone retained. The aversion of the Prākṛit against the aspirates seems to point to a Tātār under-ground current in the mouth of the common people, the Drāvidian languages of the south being destitute of aspirates. Against this tendency of clearing away the aspirates the modern idioms react far more strongly than the old Prākṛit, their pronunciation proving in this respect much tighter, than that of their immediate common mother-tongue.

Examples of elision: मुहुं mūhū, face, Prāk. मुहं. Sansk. मुख; but मुखु mukhu is also in use in Sindhī; मीहु mīhu, rain, Prāk. मेहो, Sansk. मेघ; in Sindhī also मेघु; सही sahī, friend, Prāk. सही, Sansk. सखि; कहणु kahanu, to say, Prāk. कह, Sansk. कथ; लहणु lahanu, to obtain, Prāk. लह, Sansk. लभ्.

In some instances the Sindhī advances beyond the Prākṛit by dropping ह, which has been severed from its base, as; साऊ sāū, upright, Prāk. साहु, Sansk. साधु.

b) But more commonly the aspirates in question are retained, as: सुखु sukhu, pleasure, Prāk. सुखं; अधीरो adhīrō, hasty, Prāk. अधीरो; सुघड़ु sugharu, shrewd, Sansk. सुघट.

c) The aspirates छ ḥ, जh, ठ ṭh, ढ ḍh, फ ph are retained unaltered; e. g. इछा iḥhā, wish, Sansk. इच्छा; अछो aḥhō, white, Sansk. अच्छ; कंठी kanṭhī, a kind of necklace, Sansk. कण्ठीय; ढूँढणु ḍhūṇḍhanu, to seek, Sansk. ढूँढण; सफलु saphalu, fruitful, Sansk. सफल.

d) The aspirate ठ ṭh may also pass into its corresponding media, as: सुंढि sunḍhe, ginger, Sansk. शु-यठी, Hindī सोंद; कंढी kanḍhī, a kind of necklace (besides कंठी); गन्धि gaṇḍhe, a bundle, Prāk. गण्ठि, Sansk. यन्त्रि.

The cases of a media passing into its corresponding tenuis are very rare, as: सुठो suṭhō, pure, Sansk. शुद्ध, Hindī again सुध.

e) The aspirated dental थ th passes in some instances into its corresponding media ध, as: पंधु paṇḍhu, journey, Sansk. पन्था m. The aspirated dentals may also be exchanged for their corresponding cerebrals, as: बुढो buḍhō, old, Prāk. वड्ह, Sansk. वृद्ध; मूढु mūḍhu, a fool, Prāk. मुद्ध, Sansk. मुग्ध.

The transition of an aspirated dental to its corresponding non-aspirate is very rare, as मदु madu, liquor, Sansk. मधु (Hindī मद् and मधु).

4) Single nasals.

The dental न n, is now and then changed to the palatal ञ ṇ, as: थञु thaṇu, woman's milk, Sansk. स्तन, Hindī थन् (udder). न is changed to the cerebral ण ṇ in धेणु dhēṇu, a milk-cow, Sansk. धेनु. In the case of लिमु limu, a nimb-tree, न has been exchanged for ल, Sansk. निचु, Hindī नीम् and लीम्.

The palatal ञ ṇ is in some instances substituted for ज्ज j̥j̥ (= Sindhī ज्ज j̥j̥), as मिञु miṇu, marrow, Sansk. मज्जा; but besides मिञु the form मिज mija, is also in use. Similarly ञ ṇ may supplant ण ṇṇ, as: पुञी puṇī, virtuous, Prāk. पुरण, Sansk. पुण्य; सुञो suṇō, empty, Prāk. सुणण, Sansk. शून्य. It only rarely happens, that a cerebral ण ṇ is changed to a dental one, as: पुनो (= punnō) accomplished, participle past of पुज्जणु, Sansk. पूर्य.

A single म m in the midst of a word is now and then elided, as: साईं sāī, lord, Sansk. स्वामी (= स्वामिन्); but the form सामी sāmī has likewise been preserved.

म m is further elided in the affixes मन् (= इमन्) and मय, as: अच्छाणि ačhāṇe, whiteness, from अच्छो ačhō, white; लोहांछों lōhāñ, made of iron; further in the affix मत्, as: भर्यत्तु bharyatu, a carrier of burden, from भरी, a load. These forms we shall explain further on in the formation of themes.

§. 10.

5) The semi-vowels य y, and व v.

1) In Prākṛit य y has lost its hold in the midst of a word; it is either dissolved into the vowel i, or changed to ज j, or dropped altogether. In Sindhī on the contrary य may keep its place in the midst of a word; it is even frequently inserted, to avoid a hiatus, as: आयो āyō, come, भर्यो bharyō, filled, though these forms may also be written and pronounced: आइओ ā-i-ō, bhar-i-ō, which is frequently done in poetry, to gain a syllable. The cases, where य has been dropped altogether in Sindhī, are rare, as: वाउ vā-u, wind, Prāk. already वाज, Sansk. वायु; य is frequently contracted, as: नेणु nēṇu, eye, Prāk. णञ्जणं, Sansk. नयनं; at the end of a word the elision of य is more common, as: विशु viṣu, world, Sansk. विषय. After the precedent of the Prākṛit य is exchanged for ज in cases like the following: सेज sēja, bed, Prāk. सेज्जा, Sansk. शय्या; पीजु pīju, draught, Sansk. पेयं etc.

य as a sign of the passive verb is in Sindhī, as already in Prākṛit, always changed to ज j, a method, by which the Sindhī has gained a regular passive voice, whereas all the kindred dialects are compelled to make up the passive by compositions; e. g. डिसिजणु disijaṇu, to be seen, active डिसणु ḍisaṇu, to see, Hindī देखा जाना etc.

2) व v is, after the analogy of य, either preserved or dissolved into u; but if the laws of euphony require it, it is again reinstated between two vowels, and very rarely dropped altogether; e. g. जीउ jīu, life, formative जीव jīva (instead of जीञ्ज jīa), Prāk. जीञ्ज, Sansk. जीव; देवी dēvī, goddess; on the other hand देउ dēu, a demon, formative देव dēva; पवणु pavanu, wind, Prāk. पउणु, Sansk. पवन. It is also now and then totally elided; as: जिञ्जणु jiaṇu, to live; डीहु ḍīhu, day, Prāk. दिञ्जहो, Sansk. दिवस, especially when compounded with another consonant, as we shall see hereafter. It may also be contracted, as: पूणु pūṇu, to fall, instead of पवणु; चूणु cūṇu, to say, instead of चवणु. In the prefix अव it may also be contracted to औ au, as: औसारु ausāru or अवसारु avasāru, want of rain; औतारु autāru or अवतारु avatāru, an Avatār.

A euphonic insertion of व takes place in the word छांव chāva shade, to keep the two vowels ā-a asunder; in Prākrit already, for similar reasons, ह has been inserted, छाहा (comp. Varar. II, 18), Sansk. छाया.

6) The liquidæ र r and ल l; the sibilant स s and the spiritus ह h.

1) र r and ल l are not elided in Sindhī, but keep their respective places; ल is frequently exchanged for र in Sindhī, as: केलो kēlō or केरो kērō, name of a flower; बुर्बुली burbulī, a nightingale, from the Persian بُزْبُل; सिआरु siāru, a jackal, Hindī सिआल, Sansk. शृगाल;

डुबिरो ḍubirō, weak, instead of: डुबिलो ḍubilō, which is also in use, Sansk. दुर्बल; सराह sarāha, praise, Prāk. सलाहा, Sansk. स्थाधा. The only example, in which र has been changed to ज = ज़ is पुजणु pujaṇu, to be accomplished (Hindī likewise पूजना) from the Sansk. पूरण.

2) The sibilant स (be it original or a derivative from श and ष) either keeps its place or is changed to ह, as: देसु dēsu, country, more generally: डेहु dēhu, Sansk. देश; मासु māsu, flesh, or माहु māhu, Sansk. मांस.

In the case of हंजु hanju or हंजु hanjhu, a wild goose, original स has been exchanged for ज or श (in Hindī हंस or हांस), Sansk. हंस. Similarly हंज hanja or हंजु hanjha, tear, Sansk. अश्रु, Prāk. अंसु (initial h being in Sindhī of a euphonic nature in this case); in the same way the Sindhī demonstrative pronoun इजो ijhō seems to have sprung from एस = एष, and उजो ujhō from the remote demonstrative base u, and sō (= sa).

3) ह h remains unaltered in Sindhī; in some instances however it is dropped for euphony's sake, as: सरहो sarahō, joyful, Sansk. सहर्ष (= सहरसो = सह-रहो = सरहो) साज sā-ū or साहु sāhū, the same as: साधु or साधू honest.

Remark. The final consonants, their respective changes and permutations we may here as well pass over, as the modern Indian vernaculars have already so much receded from the old Prākrit, that partly quite new formations have been introduced, which preclude any nearer comparison with the Prākrit. The particular changes or elisions, to which the final consonants are subject in Sindhī, we shall supply in their proper places.

7) Compound consonants.

For a thorough insight into the nature of the North Indian vernaculars this point is of the greatest importance; for thus only we can trace out the changes, which the Sanskrit has undergone in the mouth of the common people, if we follow up the laws, according to which the Sanskrit sounds have been decomposed into the Prākṛit and its modern daughters, or weakened at least to such a degree, that they are now scarcely recognisable. We can perceive a principle pervading this process of decomposition similar to that, by which out of the old Latin the modern Romanic tongues have been derived, and the mutual congruity is often surprising.

We meet here again with the same principle, which we have seen operating in the decomposition of the vowels and the single consonants. The effeminacy of pronunciation, which absorbs every hard and rough sound, and which consequently rather bears up with vowels, though they may form a displeasing hiatus, than with consonants, which are elided wherever possible, can in a far less degree endure compound consonants. All means are therefore employed, either to smooth them down or to assimilate them, in order to adjust them for a Prākṛit mouth, a consonant compounded of letters of different vargas being incompatible with Prākṛit rules of euphony. It is understood, that in such an idiom a conjunction of three letters is quite out of question; the utmost which the Prākṛit can endure, is the same letter doubled, as क्क kk, त्त tt etc.; र् and ह् alone cannot be doubled.

Another means, to do away with a compound consonant, is to dissolve the same into its component parts by the insertion of a vowel, a method, to which recourse is had very frequently in Prākṛit and the modern vernaculars.

But even such a doubled consonant is as yet thought too hard; we perceive therefore already a tendency, as well in the old Prākṛit as in its daughters, to clear away the doubling of a consonant by prolonging the preceding vowel, to restore thereby again the quantity of the syllable, as: आग्नि āge, fire, Prāk. अग्नि, Sansk. अग्नि, Hindī आग्; Hindī भीत wall, Sindhī भित्ति, Sansk. भित्ति.

A) Assimilation of the first four consonants of the five vargas.

These are the following:

क k, ख kh; ग g, घ gh.
च ċ, छ ċh; ज j, झ jh.
ट ṭ, ठ ṭh; ड ḍ, ढ ḍh.
त t, थ th; द d, ध dh.
प p, फ ph; ब b, भ bh.

The ground-law of the Prākṛit is this: when two consonants form a compound, the former must give way to the latter, by being assimilated to the same; thereby originates the only conjunction of consonants, which is suffered in Prākṛit, the doubling of the same consonant. In the dental class this doubling of a consonant does not prevent it from passing over into the cerebral class; in the other vargas the transition of a so doubled consonant to another varga is rare, as the consonant gains more strength by being doubled. The only example of such a transition to another varga is सर्वगु sarvaḡu, omniscient, Prāk. सर्वज्ज, Sansk. सर्वज्ञ, where the doubled palatal has been changed into a double guttural (गु = ग्ग), a transition, which is natural enough in a single consonant, but which is very seldom to be met with in a doubled consonant. सघणु saghaṇu, to be able, Prāk. सक्खोमि, Sansk. शक्नोमि

(Hindī सकना), and perhaps a few others, which may have escaped my notice.

On the whole the Sindhī, as well as the kindred dialects, agrees with this ground-law of the Prākrit¹), without making it an immutable rule of its proceedings: for it may also assimilate the following consonant to the preceding. In many instances the Sindhī is more original, than the Prākrit, by preserving such like conjunctions of consonants, as are usual in Sanskrit.

Examples of assimilation.

सुतो sutō, asleep, Prāk. सुत्तो, Sansk. सुप्त; उपनो upanō, created, Prāk. उप्पण, Sansk. उत्पन्न; भतु bhatu, boiled rice, Prāk. भत्त, Sansk. भक्त (Hindī भात्, by prolonging the preceding vowel); लधो ladhō, received, Prāk. लद्ध, Sansk. लब्ध. But on the other hand: कुबो kubō, hump-backed, Prāk. खुज्जो, Sansk. कुञ्ज.

But an original compound consonant may also be preserved unaltered in Sindhī, as: शब्दु śabdu, word, Prāk. सद्द, Sansk. शब्द; मुक्तो, mukto, free, Prāk. मुत्त, Sansk. मुक्त.

It depends however more or less on the option of the speaker, if he will pronounce a compound consonant as such, or separate the same by the insertion of a vowel, as: शब्दु śabdu, or शबिदु śabidu, the inserted i being pronounced so rapidly, that it is scarcely perceptible. The Musalmāns therefore, when writing with Arabic letters, never place the sign jazm (ـَ) above a consonant, destitute of a vowel, but always add the kasr, which is nearly equal to jazm, it being scarcely heard at all in

1) It must be stated here, that according to the common method of writing the Sindhī, a double consonant is not expressed generally, but only in such instances, where two words, written else in the same way, are to be distinguished, as اُنَا una, by him, and اُنْنا unna, wool.

pronunciation. The next vowel, thus inserted, is usually i (kasr), but a or u may also be employed, according to euphony or the sequence of vowels, as: भगंतु bhaḡatu, a worshipper, Sansk. भक्त; सगति saḡate, power, Sansk. सक्ति (Hindī सकत् f.).

§. 14.

B) Assimilation of the nasals.

a) A nasal, preceding a consonant, generally keeps its place as: अंतु antu, end, Sansk. अन्त. A preceding nasal may be dropped altogether, if the preceding vowel happen to be a long one, as: मासु māsu, flesh, Sansk. मांसं; गाड़ो gāḍō, a cart, Sansk. गन्धी (Hindī गाड़ी), the doubled consonant being cleared away in the latter instance by the prolongation of the preceding vowel.

The compound न्म nm is severed by the insertion of a vowel, as: जनमु janamu, birth, Sansk. जन्म.

b) In a compound consonant the following nasal is assimilated to the preceding consonant, as: आगि āḡe, fire, Prāk. अगि, Sansk. अग्नि; लगो laḡō, applied, Prāk. लग्ग, Sansk. लग्न; भगो bhaḡō, broken, Sansk. भग्न.

The compound consonant however may also remain unaltered, or be taken asunder by the insertion of a vowel, as: रत्नु ratnu or रतनु ratanu, jewel; सुजाणु sujānu, wise, Prāk. सुज्ज, Sansk. सुज्ञ; सुपनो supanō, dream, Sansk. स्वप्न.

The nasal may also be pushed forward, to escape being assimilated: as: नंगो nangō, naked, Prāk. नग्गो, Sansk. नग्न.

On the reverse a following nasal may also assimilate a preceding consonant, as: सइन sa-ina, hint, Sansk. संज्ञा; राणी rānī, queen, Sansk. राज्ञी. The nasal may also assimilate a preceding consonant in such a wise, that it draws the same over at the same time to its own varga. The only example of such an assimilation (if it be not to be explained in some other way) is the reflexive pronoun पाण pāṇa, self, Prāk. अपाण, Sansk. आत्मा; in Hindī we have the form आप्, which has sprung from अप्, instead of अत् (= आत्मा); compare on this head: Lassen §. 67.

c) The nasals may assimilate a preceding or following semi-vowel, as: पुञ्जी puñī, virtuous, Prāk. पुण्ण, Sansk. पुण्य; सुजो suñō, empty, Prāk. सुण्ण, Sansk. शून्य; उन्न unna, wool, Sansk. उर्ण; चउमासो ča-umāsō, the rainy season, Sansk. चतुर्मास.

On the other hand notice पूरो pūrō, full, Sansk. पूर्ण; चूरु čūru, pulverized, Sansk. चूर्ण, where the semi-vowel r has assimilated the nasal, r being stronger in sound, than n.

य mr in the Sanskrit आय āmra, is changed in Sindhī to mb, as: अंबु ambū, mangoe, Prāk. अय (Hindī आम्र); but in the case of the Sindhī word ट्रामो trāmo, copper, Sansk. ताम्र, Prāk. तय (Hindī तांबा or ताम्र) the semi-vowel r has been pushed forward to t = ṭ, as r may easily hold its place in conjunction with a dental or cerebral.

य mb is assimilated to mm, as: निमु nimu (= nimmu) a lime-tree, Sansk. निम्ब; म्ल ml is taken asunder, after the analogy of the Prākrit, as: मिलण milaṇu, to be obtained, Prāk. मिलाण, Sansk. म्लै, Hindī likewise मिलना.

§. 15.

C) Assimilation of the semi-vowels.

a) The semi-vowel य y.

α) If the semi-vowel य happen to be joined to a preceding consonant, it is assimilated to the same, as:

जोगु jōgu, fit, Prāk. जोग्ग, Sansk. योग्य, Hindī जोग्; वाघु vāghu, a tiger, Sansk. व्याघ्र; वइसु va-isu, a Vai-shya, Sansk. वैश्य (Hindī बैस्). It may, however, also hold its place, as: वाक्यु vākyu, a sentence, Sansk. वाक्य, though this is very rarely the case.

β) य, when compounded with a preceding र, is elided, as: तुरी turī, a small trumpet, Prāk. तुरं, Sansk. तूर्य; धीर dhīra, firmness, Prāk. धीरं, Sansk. धैर्य; आरु āru, sense of honor, Sansk. आर्य, Hindī अरिज्. But य may also be preserved by being changed to ज, as: धीर्जु dhīrju, the same as: धीर; सूरिजु sūriju, the sun, Prāk. सूरो or सुज्जो, Sansk. सूर्य; अचुर्जु ačurju, wonderful, Prāk. अच्छरिञ्च, Sansk. आश्चर्य.

γ) य joined to a preceding dental is either simply dropped, as: नितु nitu, always, Prāk. निच्च, Sansk. नित्य; आडितु āditu, the sun, Sansk. आदित्य, or it may also, though rarely, be preserved, as: मठ्यां mathyā, falsely, Prāk. मिच्छा, Sansk. मिथ्या. But the more usual way is that य, being first assimilated to a preceding dental, draws the same over to its own (i. e. palatal) class, so that त्य is changed to च्च, थ्य to च्छ, द्य to ज्ज and घ्य to ज्झ (for which double consonants, as remarked already, the simple bases are only written in Sindhī); e. g. विज्ञा vijñā, science (ज्ञ = ज्ज), Prāk. विज्जा, Sansk. विद्या; अज्जु aju, to-day, Sansk. अद्य (Hindī आज्); खाज्जु khāju, food, Sansk. खाद्यं; मंज्जु, manjhu, the midst, Prāk. मज्जो, Sansk. मध्य; बज्जणु bajhaṇu, to be bound, Sansk. बध्य; वाज्जो vājho, a Hindū schoolmaster, Sansk. उपाध्याय; हच्चा hačā, murder, Sansk. हत्या.

δ) य joined to a preceding ह is changed to ह्ज jh, as: गुह्जो gūjhō, concealed, Prāk. गुज्ज्जो, Sansk. गुह्यक.

ε) य is assimilated to a preceding ल, but final ल, instead of being doubled in consequence thereof, is aspirated, e. g. कल्ह kalha, yesterday, Prāk. कल्ल, Sansk. कल्यं (Hindī कल्); मुल्हु mulhu, price, Sansk. मूल्य; in the midst of a word य is simply assimilated to ल (the doubling not being expressed in Sindhī), as: पलङ्गं palangu, a bedstead, Sansk. पर्यङ्ग (r being exchanged for l); पलाणु palāṇu, a pack-saddle, Prāk. पल्लाण, Sansk. पर्याण.

b) The semi-vowel र r.

α) र is assimilated to a preceding or following consonant, as: अगु aḡu, the front, Prāk. अग्गो, Sansk. अय; गूजरी gūjārī, name of a Rāgīnī, Sansk. गुर्जरी; गजणु gājaṇu, to thunder, Sansk. गर्जन (but Hindī गरजना); कमु kamu (= kammu), business, Prāk. कम्मो, Sansk. कर्मन् (Hindī काम्); मुण्ढी muṇḍhī, head, Sansk. मुर्धन्; सपु sapu, snake, Sansk. सर्प; सिघो sighō, quick, Sansk. शीघ्र (Hindī शीघ्र); चकी čakī, a mill, Sansk. चक्र; निभागु nibhāḡu, misfortune, Sansk. निर्भाग.

On the other hand र, preceding or following a consonant, may just as easily hold its place, without being assimilated, as: चर्चो čarčō, silly talk, Sansk. चर्चा; प्री prī, friend, Sansk. प्रिय; पभु parbhu, a festival, Sansk. पर्व (व = ब, and ब aspirated by the influence of र); गर्बु garbu, pride, Sansk. गर्व; शुक्रu šukru, Friday, Sansk. शुक्र; सुर्गु surgu, heaven, Sansk. स्वर्ग; धर्मु dharmu, religion, Prāk. धम्म, Sansk. धर्म.

Very frequently such a compound is again dissolved into its constituent parts by the insertion of a vowel, as: पिरि pirī, friend, or प्री prī; पिरिभाति piribhāte, break of day, Sansk. प्रभात; or r is transposed for euphony's sake, as: पर्तापु partāpu, splendour, Sansk. प्रताप; पर्तु partu, leaf (of a book), Sansk. पत्र; द्रिघो ḍrighō, long, Prāk. दिग्घ, Sansk. दीर्घ; किर्ति kirte, trade, किर्तु kirta, action, Sansk. कृति and कृत; ट्रकु traku, a spinning wheel, Sansk. तर्कु.

It very rarely happens, that r is totally elided in a compound, as: वाघु vāghu, tiger, Sansk. व्याघ्र; राति rāte, night, Sansk. रात्रि (Prāk. रत्ती by ejection of ā); भाउ bhāu, brother, Sansk. भ्राता. The ejection of r in these and such like examples is caused by the preceding long vowel, which precludes the possibility of assimilating the compound consonant, or by the consonant, with which r forms a conjunction, being initial. In such cases, as रत्ती, the Prākrit has preferred to drop the long vowel, in order to make room for assimilation.

β) When compounded with a preceding dental, r is in most cases assimilated to the same in Prākrit, though it may also keep its place; in Sindhī on the other hand r is, when following a dental, mostly preserved, and the assimilation takes place only in the dialect of Lār (Lower Sindh), whereas in the dialect of the Upper country (Sirō) the original compound is preserved, the dental only being commonly changed to a cerebral (or even to an aspirated cerebral, by the influence of r); e. g. पुट्रु puṭru, son, Prāk. पुत्त, Sansk. पुत्र (in Lār: पुट्टु puttū, according to the analogy of the Prākrit); मिट्रु miṭru, friend, Prāk. मित्त, Sansk. मित्र (in Lār: मिट्टु miṭṭu); चंद्रु čandru, the moon, Prāk. चन्द, Sansk. चन्द्र; खेट्रु khēṭru, a field, Sansk. क्षेत्र; मंट्रु manṭru (or with transition to the media) मंद्ру mandru, an incantation, Sansk. मन्त्र; त्रे trē, three, Sansk. त्रि; डदु ḍadhru, or डदु ḍaḍhu, a cutaneous disease, Sansk. दद्रु; द्रापणु dhrāpaṇu, to be satiated, Sansk. तर्पण (by transition of the tenuis into the media). In those adverbs, which are compounded with the adverbial affix च, च is, after the precedent of the Prākṛit, changed in Sindhī to थ, as: किथे kithē, where; जिथे jithē, in which place; तिथे tithe, in that place etc.

R, when preceding a dental, may likewise be assimilated to the same, as: कतणु katanu, to spin, Sansk. कर्त्तन; कतर katara, scissors, Sansk. कर्त्तरी; वटि vatē, a wig, Sansk. वर्त्तिका; खड्ड khada, a pit, Prāk. गडो, Sansk. गर्त. On the other hand the compound may also be retained unaltered, as: अर्धांगु ardhāngu, palsey, Sansk. अर्धाङ्ग; अर्थु arthu, object, Sansk. अर्थ; तीर्थु tīrthu, a holy bathing-place, Sansk. तीर्थ; or the compound may again be dissolved by the insertion of a vowel, as: मूरति mūrate, image, Sansk. मूर्ति; कीरति kīrate, glory, Sansk. कीर्ति, Prāk. कित्ति; तीरथु tīrathu = तीर्थ.

γ) वै rv is either assimilated, as: सभु sabhu, all, Sansk. सर्व, Hindī सब् (the aspiration of b being caused in Sindhī by the influence of elided r); or the compound may be retained unaltered, as, सर्वसगति sarvasagāte, omnipotent; or the compound may be dissolved again by the insertion of a vowel, as: पूरबु pūrabu, the east, Sansk. पूर्व.

δ) In the compound श् śr the semi-vowel r may either be assimilated, as, सुओ suō, heard, Prāk. सुदो (= सुतो), Sansk. श्रुत; ससु sasū, mother-in-law, Sansk. श्वश्रू; or, the compound may be retained, as: श्री śrī, prosperity; or more commonly, the compound is dissolved by the insertion of a vowel, as सिराधु sirādhu, funeral obsequies, Sansk. श्राद्ध (Hindī श्राद्). The Sanskrit अश्रु, tear, Prāk. already अंसु (instead of आसु) has become in Hindī आसूं; the Sindhī form is हंज hanja or हंज् hanjha (with initial euphonic h), s being changed in this instance to ज or ज्; Panjābī likewise anjhu.

The same holds good with reference to the compound

स sr, as: सहसु sahasu, thousand, Prāk. सहस्र, Sansk. सहस्र.

The compound शै rś and वै rṣ are assimilated in Sindhī as well as in Prākṛit, as: वसणु to rain, Sansk. वर्ष; पासो pāsō, side, Sansk. पार्श्व (Hindī पास); सिसो sisi, head and neck, Sansk. शीर्ष (Hindī सीस्); or they are preserved (of course with transition of श and ष to स), as: दर्सनु darsanu, interview, Sansk. दर्शन; तर्सणु tarsanu, to wait, Sansk. तर्षण; the compound वै rṣ may also be dissolved into रस, and this again into रह, as: सरहो sarahō, happy, Sansk. सहर्ष (compare §. 11, end).

c) The semi-vowel ल l.

a) ल forming a compound with another consonant at the beginning of a word, is severed from the same by the insertion of a vowel, as: सराह sarāha, praise, Prāk. सलाहा, Sansk. छाया (r = l in Sindhī); किलेसु kilēsu, fatigue, Sansk. क्लेश (Hindī कलेस्); सलोकु sa-lōku, a Slōka, Sansk. श्लोक.

β) In the midst of a word ल is assimilated to any consonant, save य, र and व, as: बकरु bakaru, vegetables, Prāk. वक्कल, Sansk. वल्कल; or it is severed again from the compound by the insertion of a vowel, as: लुक, hot wind, Prāk. उक्का, Sansk. उल्का, the initial vowel u being thrown back to serve in place of an inserted vowel.

d) The semi-vowel व v.

a) व, joined to a preceding consonant at the beginning of a word, is either dissolved into u, as: सुर्गु surgū, heaven, Sansk. स्वर्ग; दुआरु duāru, door, Prāk. दुआरो, Sansk. द्वार; सुआउ suāu, taste, Sansk. स्वाद; or it is totally elided (i. e. assimilated to the preceding consonant) as: जलणु jalaṇu, to burn, Sansk. जलन; सर्गु sargū (besides सुर्गु), heaven, Sansk. स्वर्ग; साई saī, lord, or सामी sāmī, Prāk. सामि, Sansk. स्वामिन्; सहुरो sahurō, father-in-law, Sansk. श्वशुर; ससु sasū, mother-in-law, Sansk. श्वश्रु. व v may also be severed from the compound by the insertion of a vowel (a or u), as: सवाड़ savāḍu, taste, flavour (besides मुआड़), Sansk. स्वाद; दुवारु duvāru, door (besides दुआरु). व very rarely assimilates a preceding consonant, as: ब ba, two, Sansk. व (= vva = bba = ḥ).

β) व v being joined to a preceding consonant in the midst of a word, is assimilated to the same, as: पको pakō (= pakkō) cooked, Prāk. पिक्क, Sansk. पक्क; सतु satu, strength, Prāk. सत्त, Sansk. सत्त्व.

In the abstract affix त्व, त्वन, the dental on the other hand is assimilated to the semi-vowel व, which latter is first changed to the labial ब, and then to the corresponding tenuis प, so that we have in Sindhī the forms प pa, पो pō, पणु paṇu or पणो paṇō, as: बान्हप bānhapa, बान्हपो bānhapō etc., slavery, from बान्हो bānhō, a slave.

The regular form of assimilation however is also in use, but only in a few examples; त्त is in this way assimilated to त्त tt = ट्ट ṭṭ, and the double consonant again cleared away by the prolongation of the preceding vowel, as: छोकिराटु chōkirāṭu, time of youth, from छोकरु chōkaru, a boy.

The semi-vowel may also be dissolved into u, as: परमेसुरु paramēsuru, supreme lord = God, Prāk. already परमेसुर, Sansk. परमेश्वर; or it may be retained, as: दानेसुरी dānēsvarī, liberal, besides: दानेसुरी dānēsuri.

§. 16.

D) Assimilation of the sibilants.

a) The palatal sibilant श ś.

a) श ś, when preceded by च ḥ and छ ḥh, is assimilated to them, as: अचुर्जु ačurju, wonderful, Prāk.

ञञ्चरिञ्च, Sansk. आचर्य (long ā being shortened in Prākṛit and Sindhī, and in compensation thereof the following consonant doubled, to restore again the quantity of the syllable); शनिचरु śaničaru, Saturday, Sansk. शनीचर (Hindhī सनीचर).

β) The compound ञ čč (which however is rendered in Sindhī, as all double consonants, by its simple base) arising from the assimilation of ञ्च, is, after the analogy of the Prākṛit, frequently aspirated in Sindhī, on account of the inherent tendency of the sibilant towards aspiration (स = ह), as: विच्छूँ vičhū́, scorpion, Prāk. निञ्छुञ्चो, Sansk. वृश्चिक; पच्छुताउ, pačhutāu, repentance, Sansk. पश्चात्ताप, final प being changed (by b = v) in Sindhī to u.

γ) श followed by म, assimilates the same, as: रसी rasī (= rassī), a rope, Prāk. रासि, Sansk. रश्मि, but not necessarily; for: कश्मीरु kaśmīru, Kāshmīr.

b) The cerebral sibilant ष š.

α) The compound ष्क šk (of ष्ख I have hitherto not met any instances) is assimilated in Sindhī to क् (= क), and not to क्ख kkh, as in Prākṛit; e. g. डुकालु ḍukālu, famine, Sansk. दुष्काल; निकमी nikamī, useless, Sansk. निष्कर्म; सुको sukō, dry, Sansk. शुष्क (Hindhī, as in Prākṛit, सूका).

β) The compounds ष्ट šṭ and ष्ठ šṭh, are assimilated in Sindhī to त्थ, as: डिठो ḍiṭhō, seen, Prāk. दिट्ठ, Sansk. दृष्ट; गोठु gōṭhu, a village, Prāk. गोटी, Sansk. गोष्ठी; निठरु niṭharu, obstinate, Prāk. निट्ठरु, Sansk. निष्ठुर; मिठो miṭhō, sweet, Sansk. मिष्ट.

The compound is also retained unaltered, as: डुष्टु ḍuṣṭu, bad; but this is only done by Brāhmans, who understand Sanskrit; the common people ignore it completely.

The cerebral ढ, which has sprung from ड or ड्ह by assimilation, may also pass into its corresponding media ढ ḍh, and this again to ढ़ ṛh, e. g. कोढ़ kōṛhu, leprosy, Sansk. कुष्ठ (the preceding vowel u having been lengthened in Sindhī to ō, to clear away the double consonant tṭh or ḍḍh).

γ) The compounds ष्प ṣp, ष्फ ṣph are assimilated to फ in Sindhī, as: बाफ ḥapha, steam, Prāk. वप्फो, Sansk. वाष्प (Hindī बाफ़, and even with aspiration of ब : भाफ़).

In compound words प्प is simply assimilated to प p (= pp) as: निपुट्रो nipuṭrō, without a son, Sansk. निष्पुत्र.

δ) In the compounds ष्म ṣm and ष्ण ṣṇ, ष is in Prākṛit exchanged for h and placed after म and ण respectively; in Sindhī the original compound may be preserved, as: विष्णु viṣṇu, Prāk. विण्हु; विष्णवहू viṣṇavahū, a worshipper of Vishṇu; by the Musalmāns however words of this kind are simply written وِشْنُ, وِشْنَوُ, Hindūstānī likewise وِشْنُ, as cerebral ṣ is ignored by the common people.

ε) The compound ष्य ṣy (and ष्व ṣv) is in Prākṛit assimilated to स्स ss, but in Sindhī to ख kh (= kkh) as: सिखु sikhu, a disciple = Sikh, Sansk. शिष्य.

c) The dental-sibilant स s.

a) The compound स्क sk is assimilated in Prākṛit to ख kh, in Sindhī however to क k, as: कंधु kandhu, shoulder, Prāk. खंधो (खंदो), Sansk. स्कन्द (Hindī कंध).

β) The compounds स्त st and स्थ sth are assimilated to थ (= tth) and त्स ts to छ ch (= čch), as: थजु thāju, woman's milk, Sansk. स्तन; थिओ thiō, become, Sansk. स्थित; थंभु thambhu, post (Prākṛit on the other hand खम्भो), Sansk. स्तम्भ; वथु vathu, thing, Sansk. वस्तु; हथु hathu, hand, Prāk. हत्थो, Sansk. हस्त (Hindī हाथ); थाणो thanō, place, Sansk. स्थान; अथ atha, is, Prāk. अत्थि, Sansk. अस्ति; वछि vaḥe, a buffalo calf, Prāk. वच्छो, Sansk. वत्स.

The compound स्त st however may also, instead of being assimilated, be dissolved into its constituent parts by the insertion of a vowel, and when the compound happens to be initial, by prefixing a vowel, as: अस्तु-ति astute, praise, Prāk. शुई, Sansk. स्तुति; इस्तिरी istirī, woman, Sansk. स्त्री.

γ) स्प sp is assimilated to प (= pp), स्फ sph to फ (= pph), स ps to प (= pp) respectively as: फुटणु phuṭaṇu, to be broken, Sansk. स्फुट; फुइती phuṭī, activity, Sansk. स्फूर्ति; लपी lapī, a dish of coarse wheaten flour, Sansk. लप्सिका; but स may also remain unassimilated, as: लप्सी.

In compound words स्प sp may be preserved, as: विस्यति, vispate, Thursday, Sansk. बृहस्पति; or the compound, especially at the beginning of a word, may be dissolved into its constituent parts, as: पारसु pārasu, the philosopher's stone, Sansk. स्पर्श (मणि), Hindī likewise पारस्.

δ) The compound स्न sn, when beginning a word, is either dissolved into its constituent parts by the insertion of a vowel, as: सनानु sanānu, bathing, Sansk. स्नान; सनेहो sanēhō, a message of love, Sansk. स्नेह; or the preceding स is cast off altogether, as: नीहु nīhu, love, Sansk. स्नेह (Hindī नेह), Prāk. also येहो; नुहु nuhu, daughter-in-law, Prāk. णोणह, Sansk. नृषा.

ε) The compound स्म sm is assimilated to स s (= ss) as: विसाई visāī, stupor, Sansk. विसमय; or dissolved again by the insertion of a vowel, as: सुमरणु sumaraṇu, to remember, Sansk. स्मृ; विसामणु visāmaṇu, to be stunned, Sansk. विस्मि (विस्मय, Prāk. विम्हञ्चो); or s is changed to h and placed after म (similarly to ष्म), as Prākrit म्ह = स्म, in the pronominal forms तुम्हे, अस्मे (cf. Lassen p. 331, 4; p. 329, 5), In Sindhī the म of the conjunct म्ह is also changed to v, as तव्हीं tavhī, you, instead of तुम्हीं tumhī.

५) The compound स्य sy is assimilated to स s (= ss) and thence farther to ह h, as: मुंहिं mūhī, तुंहिं tūhī etc., which must have sprung from an original form मस्य, तुस्य etc., Prāk. already मह, तुह (thence also the other Prākrit forms मज्झ, तुज्झ = मस्य, तुस्य = मस्य, तुस्य); तांहिं tāhē, of that (nom. sing. सो sō) Prāk. तस्स, Sansk. तस्य.

d) The compound क्ष kṣ.

This compound letter is assimilated in Sindhī:

α) To ख kh (= kkh), as: अखि akhe, eye, Sansk. अक्षि; खीरु khīru, milk, Sansk. क्षीर; खारो khārō, brackish, Sansk. क्षार; खेतु khetu, field, Sansk. क्षेत्र; खिमा khimā, patience, Sansk. क्षमा; खी khī, wellfare, Sansk. क्षेम; रखणु rakhaṇu, to keep, Sansk. रक्षण; खांदि khande, patience, Sansk. क्षान्ति.

All these instances are against Prākrit usage, according to which क्ष ought to have been assimilated to छ ṣh, though ख is also admissible in Prākrit, and prove distinctly, that the Sindhī has followed its own course, independently of the Prākrit.

β) क्ष is also assimilated to छ ṣh, after the precedent of the Prākrit, as: रिछु riṣhu, a bear, Sansk. चक्षु; छुरी ṣhurī, a knife, Sansk. क्षुरी; छिनणु ṣhinaṇu, to pluck, Sansk. क्षिण; लछणु laṣhaṇu, sign, Sansk. लक्षण but लखणु lakhaṇu is also in use in Sindhī.

According to Prākrit rule every consonant (the nasal n excepted), which is joined to क्ष, must be dropped; but the Sindhī so far deviates from the Prākṛit, that it separates any such consonant by the insertion of a vowel, as: Prāk. लक्ष्मी, but Sindhī लछिमी lačhimī, the wife of Viṣṇu, Hindī likewise लक्ष्मी, Sansk. लक्ष्मी. On the other hand the Sindhī assimilates the nasal in the compound क्षण kṣṇ to ख (kh = kṣ), whereas the Prākṛit changes the same to गह, as: Sindhī तिखो tikhō (= tikkhō), quick, Prāk. तिगह, Sansk. तीक्ष्ण.

A change of ख kh (= kṣ) to the spiritus ह h is found in Hindī, after the analogy of the Prākṛit, as: Hindī दाहिना right (opposed to left), instead of the more common दक्खिणा, but not in Sindhī, which simply clears away the doubling of the letter in Prākṛit by the prolongation of the preceding vowel, as: डाखिणो ḍā-khiṇō, right, southerm.

§. 17.

F) The spiritus ह h.

The spiritus ह cannot be assimilated to any other consonant. If therefore ह be joined to any other consonant, the compound is again separated into its component parts in the following way:

a) In the compounds ह hn, ख hm, ह is put after the nasal, a euphonic transposition, which is already common in Prākṛit, as: बाहि bāhe, fire (instead of बांहि bāhe), Prāk. वरही, Sansk. वह्नि; चिन्हु cīnhu, mark, Sansk. चिह्न; the hardened Prāk. form चिन्ध or चेन्ध is not used in Sindhī.

The compound म्ह (instead of ख hm) is in Sindhī, on account of the preponderance of the labial, already exchanged for भ mbh, as: बांभणु bāmbhaṇu, a Brāhman, Prāk. वम्हण, Sansk. ब्राह्मण.

b) ख hy is assimilated to ज् jh (by transposition: hy = yh = jh), as: गुजो gūjhō, concealed, Prāk. गु-ज्जाओ, Sansk. गुह्यक.

c) ह hv is assimilated to भ in Sindhī (hv = vh = bh), whereas in Prākṛit the following semi-vowel is simply elided, as: जिभ jibha, tongue, Prāk. जीहा, Sansk. जिह्वा, (Hindī जीभ).

E) Assimilation of three conjunct consonants.

In Sindhī, as well as in Prākṛit, a compound, consisting of three consonants, can only then be tolerated, if the first consonant happen to be a nasal: as: चंद्रु candru, moon, मंत्रु mantru, incantation.

As regards the assimilation of three conjunct consonants the preceding rules come into operation. If no assimilation takes place, the one or the other of the consonants thus joined together, is severed from the rest by the insertion of a vowel, as: शास्त्रिरी śastirī, a Shāstrī, learned in the Shāstras (a usual title of a Brāhman), from the Sansk. शास्त्र. In reference to the assimilation itself the following rules are to be observed.

a) If one of the consonants happen to be a semi-vowel, it is dropped, and the assimilation of the remaining two consonants is effected according to the usual method, as: मराठी marāthī, a Marāthī man (or. adj.), Sansk. महाराष्ट्र; अग्योँ agyō', the foremost, Sansk. अग्य; पासो pāsō, side, Prāk. पास, Sansk. पार्श्व.

The semi-vowel य alone, when preceded by a dental, forms an exception to this rule, this compound being changed to the corresponding palatal (see §. 15, γ), as: संजो sanjhō, evening, Prāk. संज्हा, Sansk. सन्ध्या.

b) When of three conjunct consonants the two former or the two latter can be assimilated, preference is given to the stronger assimilation, as: मछु mačhu, fish, Prāk. मच्छो, Sansk. मत्स्य; in this instance त्स ts is assimilated to छ (čch), the assimilation of it being stronger than that of स्य to स्स.

G) Elision of a double consonant.

The doubling of a consonant renders the same so much stronger, that even a long vowel, preceding it, must give way and is weakened to its corresponding short one. On the other hand a double consonant, as noticed already, may again be rendered simple; but in this case the preceding vowel, to make up for the quantity of the syllable, must be prolonged, as: राति rāte, night, Prāk. रत्ती, Sansk. रात्रि; कमु kamu (= kam-mu), business, Prāk. कम्मो, Hindi on the other hand काम्.

It is quite against the genius of the language, to elide totally a double consonant; notwithstanding this some few examples of this kind are to be met with in Sindhī, as: दुआरि ḍuāre, illness, दुआरी, adj. ḍuārī, ill, Prāk. दुबल, Sansk. दुर्बल; मिओ miō, friend (corroborated already by the Prākrit, which however preserves also the original from मित्तो). In these and such like examples the process cannot have been such, that a double consonant is elided at once, but it must first have been reduced to its simple base by the prolongation of the preceding vowel, as: मीतो mitō, instead, of मित्तो; from this base has sprung again, according to the usual laws of elision, the form मीओ mīō, in which, against the ordinary process, long ī has been shortened to i, मिओ.

In the forms दुआरि and दुआरी, original double b must have been changed to vv (both letters, b and v, being already identical in Prākrit) previous to its elision; but it is quite an extraordinary phenomenon, that the following vowel has been lengthened instead of the preceding one.

Far more easily may one of the compound consonants be elided, when preceded by a long vowel, which renders the assimilation impossible, especially if one of the compound consonants be a semi-vowel, as: वाघु vāghu, a tiger, Sansk. व्याघ्र; राणी rāṇī, queen, Sansk. राज्ञी. Thus even two semi-vowels may disappear, as: पासो pāsō, side, Sansk. पार्श्वे.

H) A double consonant at the beginning of a word.

A compound consonant at the beginning of a word is subject to the same laws of assimilation, as in the midst (or end) of a word. But as a double consonant would not be utterable at the beginning of a word, one of the assimilated, i. e. doubled consonants is simply cast off, so that only the simple base of the consonant remains, as: जलणु jalaṇu, to burn, instead of: ज्जलणु jjalaṇu, Sansk. ज्वलन; वाघु vāghu, tiger, instead, of व्वाघु vvāghu; कधुं kandhu, shoulder, instead of क्कधुं kkandhu. But if a word be compounded, the common laws of assimilation are applied (to the second), as: इबलु ḍubalu, weak, Prāk. दुब्बल.

Those compounds, which are not susceptible of assimilation, are dissolved into their component parts by the insertion of a vowel, as: किलेसु kilēsu, weariness, Prāk. किलेस, Sansk. क्लेश; सुमरणु sumaraṇu, to remember, Prāk. सुमर्, Sansk. स्मर् (स्मृ); or the first letter of the compound is cast off, which is particularly the case, if this happen to be a sibilant, as: नीहु nīhu, love, Prāk. सणेह saṇēha, Sansk. स्नेह; but if the sibilant be followed by a semi-vowel, the latter, as the weaker, is dropped, as: साहु sāhu, breath, Sansk.

च tr and द्र dr, which in Sindhī are commonly changed to the corresponding cerebrals, keep their place as well at the beginning as in the midst (or end) of a word, as: त्रे trē, three; द्राक्ष drākha, grape, but Hindī दास्, Sansk. द्राक्षा.

THE SINDHI ALPHABET.

Up to the present time various alphabets have been in use in Sindh, the Muhammadan portion of the community using the Arabic characters, loaded with many dots, to express the sounds peculiar to the Sindhī, and the Hindū population employing different alphabets of their own, which vary very much, according to the locality, in which they are used, though all of them are originally derived from an old Sanskrit alphabet. These latter alphabets, which are known in Sindh by the name of the Banyā characters, are utterly unfit for literary purposes, as they have become greatly mutilated in the course of time and are very deficient in the vowel and consonant system, so that the Hindū merchants themselves, after a lapse of time, are hardly able to reproduce with accuracy what they have entered in their ledgers. No alphabet suits the Sindhī better, than the Sanskrit alphabet, the Sindhī being a genuine daughter of Sanskrit and Prākṛit. But appropriate as the Sanskrit characters are to the Sindhī sounds, they will under the present state of society in Sindh be hardly in their right place, religious prejudices preventing the great majority of the population from using them in their writings. Sindh has been the first Indian country, which has succumbed to the fury of the Moslim invaders, and Hinduism and the culture of Sanskrit literature has been so completely swept away from its borders, that it is now, as has been stated, "a country without castes and Brahmins."

The Muhammadans of Sindh, as soon as they tried to employ their native idiom for literary purposes, detected, that the Arabic system, which had been forced upon them as a necessary consequence of the Islām, was deficient in many sounds, and they endeavoured to make up for this deficiency by dotting the nearest corresponding Arabic letters. The manner, in which they have done this, has not been very satisfactory. They were not led by any system and therefore the emendation, they attempted at, stopped half-way.

In the guttural class the Arabic base ك (k) was indiscriminately used to express the sounds k, kh; g, gh, ġ; the aspiration (kh, gh) was left unnoticed, and for the media g not even the corresponding Persian letter (گ) was supplied; the guttural n̄ was expressed by the compound كن (nk).

In the palatal class the aspirate čh was happily distinguished by an additional dot (= چھ), and jh marked likewise چ; also the peculiar Sindhī j̄ (dy) was not forgotten and marked by چ; the palatal n̄ (ny) was again expressed by the compound چن, so that in this class all sounds were provided with distinguishing marks.

In the cerebral class, which is completely wanting in the Arabic system, the bases of the dentals were retained and the dots distributed in such a way, as to distinguish them from the corresponding dentals, viz.: ط = t; طھ = th; د = d, دھ = dh, ڈ = ḍ, a method, which is not without ingenuity; but the cerebral r̄ and the cerebral n̄ were again completely forgotten (i. e. they were expressed by the corresponding dentals , r and و n) and left to the knowledge of the reader.

The dental class did not offer many difficulties; only the aspirates had to be provided with diacritical marks, which was done in the following way: $\text{ت} = \text{th}$, $\text{ڌ} = \text{dh}$.

The same was the case with the labial class, where the aspirates only were to be pointed out by peculiar marks; but here their skill seems to have left them. In order to express ph, refuge was taken to the peculiar Arabic and Persian letter ف (f), which was provided with two additional dots = ڦ , bh having been expressed already by پ ; the peculiar Sindhi ب was dexterously rendered by ڀ .

The Sindhis had in this undertaking apparently the Sanskrit alphabet before their eyes, where the aspirates are written and treated as one sound. Accordingly they tried to express the aspiration of a letter by additional dots, which overloaded the few Arabic bases with diacritical signs.

The necessity further, to provide marks for the cerebral class, compelled them, to distribute afresh the dots for the dental aspirates, so that the eye finds only with difficulty a resting-place in the confuse mass and position of diacritical marks, as: $\text{ط} = \text{t}$, $\text{ٺ} = \text{t}$; $\text{ث} = \text{th}$; $\text{ٿ} = \text{th}$.

This attempt to adapt the Arabic characters to the sounds of a Prākṛit language is very interesting, though the method applied has followed a wrong track and has not been extended to all the sounds of the language. The way, in which this has been done in Hindūstānī, is far more correct, in fact, the only course, which can be taken in adapting the Arabic letters to an Indian language. The Arabic system knows no aspirates, and consequently the aspiration must be expressed by an additional ه h, if the original character of the Arabic alphabet is to be preserved in any way; else a quodlibet will be made out of it, which may be designated by any name but Arabic.

It was therefore soon found, when European scholars began to pay attention to the Sindhi, that the common Sindhī characters would not do for scientific purposes. New characters were in consequence composed by a Bombay civilian and unfortunately introduced into the government schools of Sindh, without being first submitted to the examination of competent scholars.

This new system, instead of striking at the root of the previous confusion, merely endeavoured to make up some deficiencies of the old, while retaining all its errors, so that it cannot even boast of the compactness of the old system.

The alterations and emendations were the following:

In the guttural class, where the old system was most deficient, as we have seen, the Persian letter گ g has been justly taken in, and from the Hindūstānī, the aspirate گھ gh, of which we fully approve. We should now reasonably expect to find the compound گھ kh corresponding to گھ gh; but to our utter surprise we find the old error repeated, and 'kh' again rendered by the simple base گ k. So it has happened, that all the prints published in this character are disfigured by the letter گ, which is now used throughout as the simple base for k, whereas it is well known, that گ is only used at the beginning of a word, when connected with a following letter and in the midst of a word only, when unconnected with the preceding and connected with the following letter, and that it is in no way differing, as regards its pronunciation, from گ; as a final letter the shape of گ has never been seen before.

The guttural n, which in the old system was consequently rendered by گ (nk), has been expressed in the new system by گ, which is quite inappropriate; for the base is not 'g', but 'n', pronounced with the guttural organ, and in the Arabic consonantal system it can only be rendered by a compound letter (گ ng). The peculiar Sindhī ġ is marked گ; we have only to point out the inapplicability of two dots beneath گ, and the frequent confusions, to which it will give rise.

In the palatal class we meet with the same in-consequence; the aspirate çh has been taken over from the old system (چ), whereas for jh the Hindūstānī compound چھ has been borrowed. In the other letters of this class only the dots have been differently distributed; j (in the old system marked ج) has been expressed by چ, and the palatal ñ by چ, which is less to the point than the old چ, which was as correct as it could be rendered.

In the cerebral class only the dots have been differently arranged as: t = ت (old system ت), th = تھ (old system تھ); d = د (old system the same), dh = دھ (old system the same), ḍ = ڈ (old system ڈ); the cerebral r, which had not been marked at all in the old system, has been borrowed from the Hindūstānī (ر), and the cerebral 'ṛ' is marked by the antiquated method of placing a ڑ above it (ڑ), which is highly inconvenient in writing, and has therefore been justly discarded in Hindūstānī, where formerly the cerebrals used to be marked by the same letter.

In the dental class the old system has been retained unaltered.

In the labial class the base ب was retained for ph; with additional dots (= پ; old system پ); bh was rendered by بھ, as in the old system.

We fully allow, that the old Sindhī system of writing did not answer its purposes, quite abstracted from its deficiency; but instead of emendating the old system by a different distribution of dots and inserting a few Hindūstānī letters, we consider it far more advisable, to adopt the whole Hindūstānī consonantal system, and to mark those sounds, which are peculiar to the Sindhī, by convenient dots.

The Sindhī language is restricted to the comparatively small province of Sindh; we cannot therefore see any reason, why the Hindūstānī alphabet, which is known throughout the length and breadth of India, and which is a compact system in itself, should not be preferred to such a motley composition?

The number of the Indian alphabets should not be augmented, but rather, wherever possible, be restricted, as they only serve as barriers to mutual intercourse. If therefore the old system of writing proves unfit for literary purposes, we consider it for the best, to substitute one universally known, instead of emendating imperfectly a local alphabet, which has no chance to spread beyond its narrow borders.

As under the present circumstances it is not likely, that the Hindū portion of the community will adopt the Hindūstānī alphabet, owing to religious scruples on their side, we have chosen for them the Hindī characters, with some slight deviations from the system employed by Capt. Stack, which were imperatively necessary, and which will be noticed further on. We may say the same of the Hindī alphabet, what has been remarked on the Hindūstānī; it is well known throughout India, and the common vehicle of literature amongst the whole Hindū population. An emendation of the old Banyā characters would have been far more useless, than that of the Arabic system current amongst the Moslims.

This method of computation is called abjad, from the first four letters, which are pronounced as a group. The following technical groups are:

هَوَزَ , حَطِي , كَلَمَن , سَعَقَص , قَرَشَت , ثَكَاذ , صَطَف.

The Arabs have borrowed this whole system from the Hebrews and have therefore also followed the order of the Hebrew alphabet; the first nine letters represent the units 1—9; the nine following the tens, the nine following the hundreds and the last غ a thousand.

The order of the Hebrew alphabet goes only as far as ت (400); from thence the Arabs have gone their own way, by using those letters, which are peculiar to their own language.

1) The Gutturals.

The gutturals k, g are pronounced in the common manner; their aspirates, kh, gh, as all other aspirates, form, according to the Sanskrit system, one sound, and must therefore be pronounced by a strong breathing of the respective simple base. Peculiar to the Sindhī is the guttural ñ, which is throughout used as an independent sound (like the english ng in "sing"), and never precedes the letters of its own varga or class, in which case Anusvāra or simple n is employed (see Introduction §. 5). In the Hindī alphabet it is expressed by ङ, it being an original Sanskrit sound, but the Arabic system, which knows only one dental n (ن), offers great difficulties in this as in other respects. In Hindūstānī an independent guttural ñ is not to be met with; we have therefore been compelled to circumscribe it by the compound ङ्ग ng, which comes nearest to it, following therein the track of the old Sindhī alphabet. But one difficulty still will remain, that the guttural simple ñ can thus not be distinguished from the guttural ñ preceding a letter of its own varga, as: اَنُ (अनु) anu, body, and اَنُ (अंगु, or more properly: अङ्ग) angu (aṅgu) a limb. In the alphabet, now in use, an attempt has been made, as has been adverted to, to obviate this difficulty (viz.: ڱ = ñ), but we cannot agree, that the problem has been solved satisfactorily, a false base having been chosen for the guttural nasal. Practically the difficulty will be easily surmounted by any careful student, as there are only a few nouns in the language, in which simple guttural ñ is found.

We subjoin here an alphabetical list of all those words, in which the simple (unconnected) guttural nasal is to be found:

اَنُ m. anu, body; اَنَارُو m. anārō, Tuesday. اَنَارِي f. anārī, a disease of the gums etc. اَنَارِيُو m. anāryō, a bruise in the sole of the foot; اَنَكْرُ n. aṇaru, coal; اَنَكْرُ m. aṇuru, a finger's breadth. اَنَكْرِ f. ānure, a finger; toe; اَنَكْنُ m. aṇaṇu, courtyard; اَنَكُوْتَهو m. ānūthō, the thumb; اَنَكُوْتَهِي f. ānūṭhī, a thumb-ring. بَهَانَو m. bhānō, share, and its derivatives, as: بَهَانَايَتو adj. bhānāitō, in shares; بَهَانَكِيرو m. bhānērō, a sharer. پَهِينَكَنو m. phēnaṇō, the orbicular excrement of camels (پَهِينَكِي f. phēniṇī, the orbicular excrement of sheep etc.). جَانَكُورَو m. jānūrō, the wild Beru fruit; جَانَكُورِي f. jānūrī, the wild Beru tree; چَنَكُو adj. čaṇō, good, and its derivatives. دِهِنَكَايِي m. dhiṇāī, a manufacturer of saltpetre; دَانَكُورَنُ v. a. ḍānōraṇu, to flog; دُنِكَتُو adj. ḍunitō, stout; دُنِكِرِي f. ḍunirī, a stick to beat clothes with (in washing); دُهِنَكِيو m. ḍhuniṇō, name of a fish. رَنَكُ m. raṇu, colour; رَنَكُنُ v. a. raṇaṇu, to dye, and its derivatives; رَنَكُو m. raṇō, a carpenter's chalk-string. سَانَاھ f. sāṇāha, or: سَانَاھَتو f. sāṇāha, care, and its derivatives (as: سَانَاھَتو adj. sāṇāhitō, careful, سَانَاھو adj. sāṇāhū, ditto); سَانَاھَنُ v. n. sāṇāhaṇu, to be careful. سَنَكُ m. saṇu, connexion by marriage, and its derivatives; سِنَكُ m. siṇu, born, and its derivatives; سِنَاگَرِي f. siṇārī, name of a fish (or: سِيَاگَرِي siṇārī); سَنَكْرُ m. saṇaru, the seed-pod of the thorn-tree; سَنَكْنُ v. a. saṇaṇu, to point out; سِيَنَكُ f. sīṇa, bow. گَانَكُو m. gāṇō, or گَانَكِي f. gāṇī, name of a fruit and shrub (Grewia betulifolia). لَنَكُ m. laṇu, lameness (لَنَكُو adj. laṇō, lame); لِنَكُ m. liṇu, limb; لِيَنَكُ f. liṇa,

Another letter peculiar to the Sindhī is گ, گ, ḡ; it is not found in Hindī or Hindūstānī, nor in any of the cognate dialects, and we have therefore been compelled to provide it with a mark of its own. After the precedent of the Paṣtō we have added a hook below the under parallel line, which marks off this letter strongly enough, without giving rise to any confusion or misconception. The pronunciation of ḡ is quite peculiar; it is that of the letter g uttered with a certain stress in prolonging and somewhat strengthening the contact of the closed organ, as if one tried to double the sound in the beginning of a word, as gga. The pronunciation is so far quite in accordance with the origin of this and the other three letters, peculiar to the Sindhī, though they are now treated to all intents and purposes as simple letters; e. g. اَگُ āḡu, the front, Prāk. अग, Sansk. अग्र (compare Introduction §. 15, b); لَگُ laḡō, applied, Prāk. लग्ग, Sansk. लग्न (see Introduction §. 14); بَहَگु bhāḡō, broken, Prāk. भग्ग, Sansk. भग्न. In other instances, where an original doubling of g cannot be proved etymologically, the use of this harsh ḡ must be explained by the influence of the following letters, as: گَوَٹھُ gōṭhu, a village, Prāk. गोठ, Sansk. गोष्ठ; in this, as in similar cases, the weight of the double ṭṭh, which in Sindhi has been reduced to its simple base by the prolongation of the preceding vowel, seems to have been thrown forward on g. Such an influence is especially exercised by a following r, as: گرو̄ garō, heavy, Prāk. गरुञ्ज, Sansk. गुरु.

Both letters, g and ḡ, must be carefully distinguished in pronunciation, as the signification of a word varies considerably according to the use of one or the other letter, as: मंग्र garō, mangy, but गम्र garō, heavy etc.

2) The palatals.

The palatals ज j and च č, and their respective aspirates ज्ञ jh, and च्ञ čh, are pronounced in the common Indian way as simple sounds, and are grammatically treated as such, though they are, according to their present pronunciation, compound sounds. Originally they cannot have been pronounced, as they are at present, for else the grammatical rules of Pāṇini would be incomprehensible. In our days ज is pronounced as english j, and च as english ch, that is to say, as dž and tš respectively; how these sounds, if they are to be treated as simple ones, should be aspirated or doubled by any human organ, is past our conception. The old pronunciation of these letters¹⁾ must have gone through great variations, till they have become the compound sounds of the modern Indian idioms.²⁾ In the Roman transcription they have therefore not been marked by the palatal stroke (—), but by the same sign, with which the sibilant sh (= ś) is provided, to point out their modern pronunciation.

1) See Standard alphabet, p. 93.

2) The pronunciation of the Marāṭhi च and ज as ts and dz respectively before the vowels a, ā, u, ū, ai, ō, does not fall under this head, as this is owing to Drāvidian influences and only occurs in words of non-Arian origin.

The Sindhī has preserved the palatal nasal ṛ (ठ) as an independent sound, which never precedes the letters of its own varga, for which purpose anusvāra (and in Hindūstānī writing simple ण) is used. The Hindūstānī being destitute of a palatal nasal, we had to provide a new character. Following the analogy of the old Sindhī alphabet we chose for it the compound ञ, which comes nearest to it, for the palatal ṛ of the Sindhī is properly a compound sound, and is pronounced ny. The proper circumscription by णि would not do for this reason, that the palatal ṛ is still considered by the Sindhī as a simple sound and rendered in Sanskrit writing by ठ; it ought therefore to be pointed out, as near as possible, as such, for which purpose the compound ञ answers much better, than णि, which latter would give rise to many misconceptions. In the Romanized transcription it has simply been furnished with the palatal line = ṛ.

The sign chosen for it in the alphabet at present in use viz.: ञ, is not to the purpose, as the base is not ञ, but the nasal ण, with a subsounding y.

The sibilant श, ष, which we have inserted in our scheme in the palatal row, is no longer a palatal sound at all, but a pure dental sh = ś. The original pronunciation of ष is more than doubtful; now-a-days it is in no way differing from our common sh, and might therefore be as well classed under the dentals. The Arabic-Persian ش is always rendered in Sanskrit writing by ष; but it is also found in pure Sindhī words, as: شينھُ śīhu, lion etc. compare; Introduction §. 5.

Peculiar to the Sindhī is ञ, ञ, j. It is now treated as a simple sound, but it has in most cases, as etymology proves, sprung from a double jj (= ञ्ज), and is still pronounced as a compound sound = dy; e. g.: اَڄ āju (= adyu), to-day, Prāk. अज्ज, Sansk. अद्य (on the assimilating process see Introd. §. 15.); وِجَا vījā, science, Prāk. विज्ञा, Sansk. विद्या; وَجُّ vĕju, physician, Prāk. वेज्ज, Sansk. वैद्य. In other nouns though an original doubling of ج cannot be traced etymologically, as: جَٽ jāṭu, a Jat, Hindī जट; and ج is in such instances frequently exchanged for ج, as: جَٽَرِي jāṭrī, or: جَٽَرِي jāṭrī, a pilgrim, Sansk. यात्री).

3) The Cerebrals.

The cerebrals ت t and ڌ d, and their respective aspirates, ٿ th and ڏ dh are common to all the North-Indian vernaculars; they are pronounced by turning the tip of the tongue towards the roof of the mouth whilst sounding the dental bases, t, d, etc. respectively.

The Sindhī has likewise preserved an independent cerebral ن, ڻ, n, which is not bound to the letters of its own varga as: وَڻ vaṇu, a tree (Sansk. वन) ٿڻ ٿاڻu, the teat of an animal, Hindī थन्, Sansk. स्तन. It is pronounced very hard and resembles much the compound nṛ (in Paṣtō it is therefore very frequently rendered by nṛ).

In Sindhī it exchanges therefore occasionally its place with the cerebral ر, as: ماڻھون māṇhū, man, or: ماڙھون māṛhū. The cerebral ڌ d, which in Prākṛit already frequently supplants the dental d, has in Sindhī given birth to two other cerebral sounds, viz.: ڏ, ڙ d̥, and ڙ, ڙ r̥, and this again aspirated, ڙھ, ڙھ rh.

ڏ, ڙ d̥ is pronounced in a similar way as g; the cerebral ڌ (ڌ) is uttered with a certain stress in prolonging and somewhat strengthening the contact of the closed organ, as if a double d̥ was to be pronounced.

Originally it is, as \bar{g} , a double \bar{d} , as may be still proved in most cases by etymology; e. g.: \bar{v} \bar{d} \bar{o} , \bar{v} \bar{a} \bar{d} \bar{o} , great, Prāk. \bar{v} \bar{d} , Sansk. \bar{v} \bar{d} ; \bar{c} \bar{o} \bar{d} \bar{a} \bar{h} \bar{o} , the fourteenth, Prāk. \bar{c} \bar{o} \bar{d} \bar{h} \bar{o} . But the Sindhī, which is very fond of hard cerebral sounds, often employs this letter \bar{d} , where no original doubling of the cerebral has taken place, especially at the beginning of words, where the full stress of the voice can be laid upon it, as: \bar{d} \bar{o} \bar{l} \bar{i} , a kind of sedan chair, Prāk. \bar{d} \bar{o} \bar{l} \bar{i} , Sansk. \bar{d} \bar{o} \bar{l} \bar{i} (compare Introd. §. 6. 4). The simple cerebral \bar{c} has been thus nearly totally supplanted at the beginning of a noun by \bar{d} , and \bar{d} is only found in a few nouns, to distinguish them from others written else quite alike, as: \bar{d} \bar{i} \bar{t} \bar{h} \bar{o} , obstinate, but \bar{d} \bar{i} \bar{t} \bar{h} \bar{o} , seen.

It has therefore been a great mistake of Capt. Stack, that he has not distinguished \bar{d} \bar{d} from \bar{c} \bar{d} , and marked both sounds by the same diacritical dot (= \bar{d}), though he has been aware of their different pronunciation. A Sindhī will never confound \bar{c} \bar{d} with \bar{c} \bar{d} ; they are in his mouth thoroughly distinct from each other and have been differently marked already in the old Sindhī alphabet (viz.: \bar{d} = \bar{d} , and \bar{c} = \bar{c}). We were therefore compelled in this respect to deviate from Capt. Stack's Sanskrit alphabet, retaining for the simple cerebral \bar{d} the original Sanskrit letter \bar{d} , and marking the sound of \bar{d} by a line beneath \bar{d} (= \bar{d}), the dot beneath \bar{d} being reserved for some other sound, which we shall presently notice.

The cerebral \bar{r} , \bar{r} , and its aspirate \bar{r} , \bar{r} have sprung from the cerebral \bar{c} \bar{d} and \bar{c} \bar{d} respectively (see Introduction §. 7, 2), as: \bar{g} \bar{u} \bar{r} , molasses, Sansk. \bar{g} \bar{u} \bar{r} ; \bar{d} \bar{r} \bar{h} \bar{a} \bar{t} \bar{a} (\bar{d} \bar{r} \bar{h} \bar{a} \bar{t} \bar{a}) firmness, Sansk. \bar{d} \bar{r} \bar{h} \bar{a} \bar{t} \bar{a} . We have noticed already (l. c.), that by far the greatest number of words, in which \bar{r} or \bar{r} is to be found, is taken from some aboriginal tongue, which is now lost, and which must have had a great predilection for cerebral sounds (as the Dravidian idioms of the south) and to the influence of which the preponderance of the cerebrals in the north Indian vernaculars must be ascribed.

The two peculiar letters ट (ṭr) and ड (ḍr), which Capt. Stack in his Sindhī Grammar has advocated for the Sindhī under the cerebral class, are found, on nearer investigation to be compound sounds (see Introduction, §. 15.) and may therefore be safely discarded from the alphabet, as they ought to be written ट्र ṭr and ड्र ḍr respectively, as: पुट्रु puṭru, son, Prāk. पुत्त, Sansk. पुत्र; द्राख ḍrākha, grape, Sansk. द्राक्षा. A subscribed r is also found in some nouns with the aspirate ढ ḍh, as: द्रापणु ḍhrāpaṇu, to be satiated, and its derivatives, as: द्राइणु ḍhrāiṇu, to satiate; द्राउ ḍhrāu, satiety, all of which are sprung from the Sansk. root नृप् (नर्पण); इढु ḍaḍhru (also written: इढु ḍaḍhu), a cutaneous disease, Sansk. ददु, Hindī दाढ़ (compare Introduction §. 15. b. β).

We have not inserted the cerebral ष in the Sindhī alphabet, though in Capt. Stack's Sindhī Dictionary a few words are written with ष. This letter is completely ignored by the common people and left unnoticed in the old Sindhī alphabet; only a Brāhman now and then uses it, to show his knowledge of Sanskrit (compare Introduction §. 5).

4) The dentals.

The dental row offers nothing particular; र r, which is considered a cerebral in Sanskrit, has become a pure dental in the modern idioms.

5) The labials.

It is to be noted, that फ, फ ph, is to be pronounced as the aspirate of प, प p, and never as f, which is of Arabic or Persian origin, wherever found.

Peculiar to the Sindhī is the letter ب, ب ḥ; it is pronounced in the same way as ḡ and ḍ, being originally a double b, as: ب ba, two, Sansk. व (= vva = bba; see Introduction §. 15. d. α); كُبو kubō, hump-backed (see Introd. §. 13); دَابَل ḍābalu, weak, Prāk. दुबल, Sansk. दुर्बल. In other nouns however an original doubling of b cannot be traced out, and the language seems to use ب b and ب ḥ quite arbitrarily, as: بَابو bābō, father, but, بَابو bābō, father's brother, both nouns being derived from the Turkish بَابَا father.

The nasal of this class is m; but when preceding a letter of its own varga it is supplanted by simple n (or anusvāra), as in all the other rows; e. g.: اَنَب (अंबु) ambu, a mango; كُنبهار (कुम्हार) kumbhāru, a potter.

On the purely Arabic letters.

The Sindhī, as well as the Hindūstānī, has, in consequence of the forced introduction of the Islām, been considerably mixed up with Arabic elements, and though the vulgar pay no attention to the particular pronunciation of the genuine Arabic sounds, the original Arabic orthography has been generally adhered to.

Under the guttural class we find the letters: ع, ح, خ, غ, ق, the Roman transcription of which we have conformed to the Standard alphabet, though these letters are somewhat differently pronounced in Sindhī. ع, which is in Arabic treated as a consonant, is generally ignored and only its accompanying vowel articulated, as: عَقْل æqulu, intelligence, is sounded: akulu. In the midst of a word ع is either passed unnoticed (i. e. only the respective vowel is uttered) as: نِعْمَت niamata (properly:

nizāmata) or ع with its accompanying vowel is pronounced as a long syllable, as: نَعْلَبَنْدُ a ferrier, is sounded like: nālbandu (properly: nālbandu) and by ignorant people also written accordingly; or the ع with its respective vowel is dropped altogether; as: طَعَامُ food (ṭaṣāmu) is commonly pronounced: tāmu. The same is the case at the end of a word, where ع with its vowel is contracted by the vulgar to a long syllable, as: جَعَجَ receipt-account (jamāza) is pronounced like jamā, and mostly written accordingly; only the Mullās, who pretend to a knowledge of Arabic, affect the deep guttural articulation of the Arabic. In Sanskrit writing ع is therefore simply rendered according to its accompanying vowel, and not distinguished by any particular mark or dot.

The deep Arabic ح ḥ is treated in the same way and pronounced as simple h, as: حَالُ ḥālu, state, is sounded: hālu. The Arabic and Persian خ ḫ is commonly pronounced by the vulgar (especially the Hindūs, who are quite unable to articulate ḫ) as kh, as: شَيْخَ šīḫa, a spit, is sounded: šikha (Pers. سِيخ).

The Arabic or Persian غ ḡ is pronounced in Sindhī as simple g, and very frequently exchanged for گ in writing, as: بَاغُ bāḡu, garden, is sounded as: bāgu; غَمُ ḡamu, grief, as: gamu etc.

The deep guttural ق q of the Arabic is articulated in Sindhī like simple k, as: قَوْمُ qōma, a tribe, clan (Arabic قَوْم), is pronounced like: kōma; قَوْلُ qaulu, word, like: kaulu etc. The Hindūs ignore all these foreign letters in their writings and render them by the nearest Sanskrit consonants, as has been adverted to.

The lingual letters, which are peculiar to the Arabic, are not distinguished in Sindhī pronunciation from the corresponding dentals; ط t is sounded like common t, and ص s like z; ظ ʒ and ض z likewise as z. The Hindūs on the other hand pronounce ط and ض like j, and render these letters promiscuously according to their actual pronunciation, which is frequently done by the Musalmāns likewise, especially the unlearned.

The Arabic letters, which figure under the dental row, viz.: ث s, ذ z, and ڙ z (the two latter of which are also common to the Persian) are pronounced in Sindh (and India generally) as follows: ث like s, ذ and ڙ like z, whereas the Hindūs pronounce these two latter consonants like j and render them also accordingly by ज, which is not unfrequently done by the Moslims also.

The Arabic and Persian ف f is sounded by the Muhammadans as f, but by the Hindūs as ph, and rendered in their writings by फ.

II. The Sindhī vowel system.

We next subjoin a tabular survey of the Sindhī vowel system.

1) Simple vowels:

ا,	آ	اِ	اِي	اُ	اُو
अ,	आ	इ	ई	उ	ऊ
a,	ā	i (e)	ī	u	ū
		اي	او
		ए	ओ
		ē	ō

2) Diphthongs:

अِي	अُو
ऐ	औ
ai	au

3) Nasalized vowels.

اَن	آن	اِن	اين	اُن	اُون
अं	आं	इं	ईं	उं	ऊं
ā	ā	ī	ī	ū,	ū
		اين	اُون
		एं	ओं
		ē	ō
		अिन	अुन
		ऐं	औं
		āi	au

1) Simple vowels.¹⁾ The Sindhī uses all the vowels, common to the Sanskrit and Prākṛit; but it is to be noted, that i, when preceded or followed by h, or when closing a word, has the sound of short e (see Introduction §. 2. b). Ē and ō are in Sindhī, as already in Prākṛit, simple (and not Guṇa) vowels (see Introduction §. 2. d), and consequently always long (and not ancepts, as in Prākṛit).

As the Arabic is destitute of the sounds ē and ō, a great difficulty arises in Sindhī as well as in Hindūstānī, how to distinguish ī from ē, and ū from ō. The Indian grammarians have therefore invented the term of يَآئِي جَهْلُ yā-e majhūl, or the unknown ي for the sound ē, and وَاوِ جَهْلُ vave majhūl, or the unknown , for the sound ō; but at the same time no practical measures were taken, to mark off ē and ō by any diacritical sign, and the reader was left to help himself,

1) As we shall further on employ only the Hindustānī characters, we cannot enter here more minutely on the Sanskrit vowel system, and we refer therefore the student for nearer information to any Sanskrit grammar. We shall only make use of the Sanskrit characters in the course of this grammar, as occasion may call for.

as best he could. But as the distinction of ī from ē and ū from ō is somewhat difficult for a beginner, especially a European, and for the right understanding of the language very important, we have contrived to distinguish ē from ī by a perpendicular line, as: کِي kī, some, کِي kī, somewhat; and ō from ū by placing the sign ˆ above ُو, as: تُو tō, from-on; تُو tū, thou. In prints, destined for the use of natives, these distinctions may be dispensed with as more or less superfluous; but in prints, intended for the use of Europeans I have no doubt they will prove very serviceable and clear away many a stumbling block.

In Arabic writing the short vowels a, i, u are not expressed in the body of the consonants, but by mere marks, placed above or beneath the consonant, after which they are to be sounded; if the consonant happen to be an aspirate, the vowel mark is placed on the accessory ه. The mark for a is َ, and is called فَتْحَة fathāh (in Persian زَکَر zabar); the mark for i is ِ, and is called کَسْرَة kasrah (in Persian زَیْر zīr, pronounced in India: zēr); the mark for u is ُ, and is called زَمَمَة zammah (in Persian پِش pīš, pronounced in India: pēš) e. g. فَنَ fana, فِی finī, فُی funu. But if a noun commence with a short vowel, ا (alif) must serve as base for the these vowels, the vowels themselves being considered only as auxiliary signs for the consonants, as: اَنَ ana, اِی ini, اُی unu. In Arabic initial ا is in these cases always provided with hamzah, as: اَنَ, اِی, اُی, but in Hindūstānī it is dispensed with, to which practice we shall also adhere in Sindhī.

The three long vowels: ā, ī, ū are expressed in the body of the consonants by the letters ا, ي, و, with the addition of the respective vowel points; in this case

ا, ي, و are called ساکين sākin, or quiescent, because they are not moved by a vowel of their own; e. g.: هَارِي hārī, a peasant; مَارُو mārū, a beater; مُورِي mūrī, capital (in trade) چِکَاٹُ čikāṭu, creaking. The same holds good with reference to the vowels ē and ō, which are not (originally) distinguished in writing from ī and ū, as: چِهَرُو čhērō, whetting.¹⁾

Long a, when initial, is expressed by ا and the sign ~ placed above it, as: اَآدُ ādaru, courtesy. This sign is called مَدَّة maddah, i. e. extension, and is properly an alif placed above horizontally. Long i and u, when initial, must be preceded by alif, to support the respective vowel point, as ي and و themselves are quiescent; e. g.: اِيْهُو ihō, this very person; اُوْهُو uhō, that very person. The same is the case with ē and ō, as: اِيْدُو ēḍō, so large, اُوْدُو ōḍō, near.

ي and و, when quiescent, should be provided with the sign jazm (ـَ), to indicate thereby, that they are not moved by a vowel of their own, as: اُوْهُو, اِيْهُو, اُوْهُو, اِيْهُو, but this practice is generally neglected in Hindūstānī, as superfluous. If on the other hand ي and و be moved by a vowel put above or beneath them, they are no longer quiescent, but regular consonants, as: يَارُ yāru, friend; نِيْاَنُ niyāṇu, a tank; وَنُ vaṇu, tree; نِيْوَائِي nivāi, want of wind; وَوِ vāva, formative of وَاءِ vāu, wind.

1) In some Arabic nouns final ي (generally without dots) is used with the power of alif, as: عِيْسَى ʿisā, Jesus; ذِكْرَى ḍikrā remembrance. Note also the antiquated writing صَلَوَاتُ zalāt, prayer, تَوْرَاتُ taurāt, the Thōrah (pentateuch), which is falsely pronounced in India: taurēt.

2) The diphthongs ai and au.

The diphthongs ai and au are expressed in Arabic by a preceding fathāh and a following quiescent ي or و, which should be provided in this case with jazm, to prevent mistakes, as: أَيْتُرُ aiṭru, spinning wheel; بَيْرَآگِي bairāgī, an ascetic; أَوْتَهُو auṭhō, impure; چَوْدَهَارِي čau-dhārī, round about. At the end of a noun no diphthong is admissible in Sindhī; compare Introduction, §. 1, 2.

3) The nasalized vowels or Anusvāra.

We have noticed already, that the simple dental n (ن) is now used in Sindhī before the letters of any varga indiscriminately, which in Sanskrit writing is commonly expressed not by the dental न, but by the sign called Anusvāra (ं) e. g.: कङ्गालु (कंगालु) kangālu (properly: kaṅgālu) poor; गंजो (गंजो) ganjō, scald-headed; नॅन्धो (नॅन्धो) nandhō, small; रॅन्दु (रॅन्दु) randu, path; बॅम्बहा (बॅम्बहा) bāmbha, hag.

But besides this full nasal the Sindhī also uses the proper Anusvāra, which only communicates to the respective vowel a nasalizing touch, very extensively, and as both, full n and the nasalizing touch, which is communicated to a vowel, are expressed in Sanskrit writing by Anusvāra, and in Hindūstānī by the dental n (ن), some confusion necessarily arises from this practice, to obviate which the following remarks should be carefully attended to.

a) Anusvāra (or ن) preceding another consonant must always be pronounced as a full nasal, if the vowel of the syllable be short, as: पॅन्धु, पॅन्धु pandhu, journey; but if Anusvāra precede 'h' in a short syllable, it is always to be pronounced as such, i. e. only a slight nasalizing touch is thereby communicated to the vowel, as: जहिं, جَہِیْ jāhē; मुंह, مَہْ mūhu, mouth; in a few words, where full n precedes h, it must be rendered in Sanskrit writing by न, not by Anusvāra, as: चिन्ह cīnha, a sign; थन्हाणु thanhaṇu, to compress. In Hindūstānī writing no such distinction can be made, as there is only one (ن) at hand, which must serve as full nasal or Anusvāra, as the case may be; nothing is therefore left to the student, but to commit these few words to memory. We must repeat here, what has been remarked already, that the use of the Arabic characters offers great difficulties when applied to a Prākṛit language of India.

b) Anusvāra preceding a consonant in a long syllable is to be pronounced as a full nasal, as: बांठि, بَانْٹِہ bāṇṭhe, ravenousness; पींघ, پِیْگَہ pīṅgha, a swing; कुंध, کُوندھ kūndhu, a young man; वेदो, وِندو vēdō, going; लोबडु, لُونْبَرُ lōmbaṛu, a male fox. But if the long vowels, provided with Anusvāra, be followed by h, s or v, they are to be pronounced with a nasalizing touch only, as: थांहर, تَہَانْہَر thāhara, steadiness; मांसु, مَانْسُ māṣu, meat; थांवरु, تَہَانْوَर thāvaru, Friday; मीहु, مِیْہُ mīhu, rain; मेंहि, مِیْہِ mēhe, buffalo etc. Where full n precedes h in a long syllable, it must be rendered by न (in Hindūstānī writing a further distinction is impossible), as: बान्ही, بَانْہِی bānhī, a slave-girl, but: बांह, بَانْہ bāha, arm.

c) At the end of a word Anusvāra always retains its proper nasalizing touch, be the final vowel short or long, as: प्री, پْرِی prī, friend; भूं, بْہُون bhū, earth; मुंहि mūhē (Formative of the I. pronoun sing.); also in compound words, as: भूंभूं, بْہُون بْہُون bhū bhū, buzzing. This rule is based on the fact, that in Sindhī every word must needs end in a vowel (which however may be nasalized).

d) Anusvāra, placed between two vowels, be they short or long, always retains its proper nasalizing sound, as: आइँ, آئِنْ āī, and; माइणु, مَائِنْ māṇu, to measure; आऊँ, آئُون āū, I; किआऊँ kiāū, it has been done by them (compare: Introduction §. 4).

The same holds good with reference to Anusvāra, following a diphthong (see: Introduction §. 1, 2), as: राँशो, رَؤْشَو raūšō, merriment (= rāušō); मैठ, مَيْثَه māiṭha, madder (= māiṭha).

In the Romanized transcription, which we shall add throughout this grammar, the two different sounds of Anusvāra are rendered in this way, that the sound of full n is always expressed by n, whereas the nasalizing touch, which is communicated to a vowel by Anusvāra, is marked by the sign = placed above it, as: अंतु, أَنْتُ = antu; but आऊँ, آئُون = āū.

We have already adverted to the great difficulties, under which the Hindūstānī labours to mark the original sound of Anusvāra, as it has only one n (and this the dental n) at its disposal. The difficulty is already great in Hindūstānī, and still greater in Sindhī, which is so much addicted to the use of nasalized vowels. In addition to what has been stated already, we beg to turn the attention of the student, as far as the Hindūstānī characters are concerned, to the following points:

Final न has always the sound of Anusvāra proper (see under c) and need therefore not perplex the student, as: मार्हून mārhū, man; ज़ालून zālū, women; يا اِيَّان iā, from this place, تِيَّان tiā, from that place.

Anusvāra, separating two short or long vowels (see under d) is rendered by न, and can be recognized as such by its position; in this case, to obviate all misconceptions, we have furnished the second vowel with hamzah, to point out thereby, that the following vowel is not to be read together with the preceding, but that ن closes the first syllable, as: اِنِّی (اِنِّی) ī-a, thus; تِنِّی (تِنِّی) tī-a, in that manner; كَرُون (كَرُون) gāū, cow. If the second vowel chance to be a long one, ی (without dots) provided with hamzah must precede the same, to serve as basis for the vowel point (see further on under: Hamzah), as: سَانِیْن سَانِیْن (سَانِیْن) sāl (سَانِیْن) lord; هِنُو (هِنُو) hīo, mind; چَانُون (چَانُون) cīāū, it has been said by them.

In such like instances, as exhibited under a and b, the Hindūstānī alphabet offers no means of distinguishing the full nasal from Anusvāra proper, as: بَانْهِي bānhī, a slave-girl, بَانْه bāha, arm, and these difficulties can only be overcome by practice. In the old Sindhī alphabet and in that now in use no notice whatever is taken of these and such like intricacies.

On the other orthographic signs.

1) The sign ˉ (مَدَّة maddah, prolongation) is placed on initial alif, to render it long, as: اَآثَرُ ātharu, pack-saddle. In the midst and at the end of a word maddah is not placed on alif, if the preceding consonant be moved by fatḥah, in which case alif is called سَاكِن sākīn, or quiescent, as: رَاَجَا rā-jā, prince; مَالَا mā-lā, garland; but if the preceding consonant is provided with jazm (i. e. not moved by a vowel), alif must have the sign of maddah, as commencing a syllable, e. g.: قُرْآنُ qur-ānu, Qorān, not qu-rānu.

2) The sign ْ (جَزْم jazm, abscission), placed above a consonant denotes, that the consonant thus marked is not moved by a vowel, as: وِلْهُو vel-hō, idle; مَرْدُ mar-du, man; سَرْگُ sar-gu, heaven. In old Sindhī writings the use of jazm is hardly to be met with, as they preferred to provide such a mute letter with kasrah, the sound of which was hardly heard in pronunciation, as: مَرِيْدُ mari-du, instead of مَرْدُ mar-du, and served quite the purposes of jasm. We cannot adopt this system, as in many cases it will give rise to confusion and misconceptions.

3) The sign — (تَشْدِيدُ tašdīd) corroboration, placed above a consonant denotes, that the letter in question is to be doubled. In the old Sindhī writings the tašdīd is hardly ever to be met with, as they were in the habit to express even an originally double letter by its simple base, e. g.: کَم kamu, business, instead of کَمَم kammu. It is now used only in such instances, where the doubling of a consonant is rendered necessary in order to distinguish two in other respects identical words, as: أُن una, by him, and أُنْ unna, wool.

4) The sign هَمْزَة (hamzah, i. e. punction) is used in the midst and at the end of words as a vicarious base for t; when two vowels, short or long, meet in a word, the second vowel must be supported by the base ی, furnished with hamzah, e. g.: پِي piu, father; جِي jue, the den of an animal; هِنَارَ hīara, now; جُنِي jūa, louse; قَائِمُ qā-imu, standing; بِهَائِرَ bhāura, brothers; جِيئِي jī-u, life; کُو kuō, rat; کِهَائِرَ ghā-ū, wounding; اِي a-ī, a goal etc.

A final short vowel, preceded by ā, ū, ō is usually supported by the sign hamzah alone, as: بِهَاءَ bhā-u, brother;

pō-e, after; هُوَ hū-e, sound. But if و be radical in a word, hamzah with its accompanying vowel is placed upon و, as: نَانُو nāu, fame, Formative نَانُو nāva; گَنُو gāu, cow; مَارْهُو mārhūa, Formative of: مَارْهُو mārhū, man.

In the Formative Singular of such nouns, which end in ī, hamzah is dropped for brevity's sake, as: هَنْدِي handī, a pot, Formative: هَنْدِي handia (instead of هَنْدِي); but in nouns like سَانِي sālī, lord, hamzah must be retained in the Formative, to prevent mistakes, as: سَانِي sālā.

Note. The sign ~ (وَصْلٌ vaṣl, conjunction) only occurs in Arabic phrases and constructions; it joins two words, the latter of which begins with alif, the accompanying vowel of which is dropped and the final vowel of the preceding word drawn over or rather joined to the following; e. g.: عَبْدُ الْمَلِكِ ʿabdu-lmaliki (instead of: عَبْدُ الْمَلِكِ); قَالَ أَسْمَعُ qāla-sma; (instead of: قَالَ إَسْمَعُ); بِسْمِ اللَّهِ bismi-llāhi.

The use of the so-called Tanvīn (i. e. َ, ِ, ُ, pronounced in Arabic 'un', 'an', 'in') in Sindhī is to be disproved of, as the Tanvīn is only a fanciful invention of the Arabian grammarians, and by no means fit to express the Sindhī nasalized short (and least the long) vowels.

SECTION I.

THE FORMATION OF THEMES IN SINDHI.

Chapter I.

The termination of Sindhi nouns.

§. 6.

In the formation of themes the relative position, which the Sindhī holds to the Sanskrit-Prākṛit on the one side, and to its modern sister-tongues on the other side, is most clearly delineated.

The peculiarity of the Sindhī, and at the same time the great advantage, which it possesses over the kindred idioms consists therein, that every noun, substantive, adjective, pronoun, participle and infinitive ends in a vowel. By this vocalic termination the Sindhī has preserved a flexibility, and at the same time a sonorousness, of which the other modern vernaculars are completely destitute.

After what has been remarked on the nature of the diphthongs in Sindhī (see Introduction §. 1), it may be easily gathered, that no Sindhī noun can end in a diphthong. A Sindhī noun may therefore end in a, i(e), u; ā, ī, ū, ō; no noun ever ends in ē, and those, which seem to do so, are not in the Nominative, but in the inflected case. A final vowel may also be nasalized, as: مَارْهُونَ mārhū, man, چَوْتَهونَ čōthō, the fourth; پَرِيں prī, friend, which is especially the case, if a word terminate in a long vowel, but this constitutes, after what we have said on the nature of Anu-svāra, no exception to the general rule.

In the formation of themes the Sindhī has in the main followed the course pointed out by the Prākṛit, but it has created many new formations, independent and irrespective of the Prākṛit. The levelling process of the modern idioms has already gained the ascendancy, and terminations, which the Prākṛit, though seized already by the same tendency, has as yet kept asunder, have been thrown together into one class in Sindhī.

The Sindhī has lost the neuter, which has been already discarded in the Apabhransha dialect of the Prākṛit, the immediate predecessor of the modern Sindhī. This, as it seems, has been the first step, to break the fetters of the old compact mother-tongue, and to initiate the levelling process of the present idiom.

Inasmuch as the Sindhī requires a vocalic termination for every noun, the distinction of the gender is not so perplexing as in the other dialects, which offer great difficulties in this point to the student. The terminations, which have been already fixed for the Prākṛit, have been mostly retained in the Sindhī, with the exception of neuter nouns, which have been, for the most part, transferred to the masculine terminations, less to the feminine.

I. The termination u.

1) Masculine themes in u.

By far the greatest number of nouns end in Sindhī in u, and are, with a few exceptions, masculine. This short final u corresponds to the Prākṛit termination ओ ō, which, according to the testimony of the old Prākṛit grammarians, has been already shortened to u in the Apabhransha dialect.¹⁾ To this class belong in Sindhī:

1) In Marāṭhī final अ (a) (= Sindhī u) has on the whole become already quiescent; the same is the case in Bangālī, except when final a is preceded by a double consonant, in which case it is heard. In Panjābī, Hindī and Hindustānī final a has quite disappeared; for nouns like piu, father, māū, mother etc. are in Panjābī exceptional cases.

a) such nouns, as end in Prākṛit in ō (= Sanskrit final ञ), as: نَر naru, a man, Prāk. णरो, Sansk. नर; گھر gharu, house, Prāk. घरो (Sansk. गृह); کَم kamu, business, Prāk. कम्मो, Sansk. कर्मन्. To this class belongs also a number of adjectives (though the majority of them has retained the termination ō), as: تَل talu, hidden; اَجَر ajaru, imperishable; اَچیت ačetu, careless. Most of the adjectives, borrowed from the Arabic or Persian, assume this termination, as: تَمَام tamāmu, whole; غَرِيب yarību, poor etc.

b) such nouns, as end originally in u, as: وَا vāu, wind (Sansk. वायु n.; مَد madu, liquor, Sansk. मधु) n.

c) such nouns, as end in Sanskrit in tā (crude form तृ), Prāk. ā (by elision of t), or which add in Prākṛit the termination āro, as: پِی piu, father, Sansk. पिता, Prāk. पिअ; بھاء bhāu, brother, Sansk. भाता, Prāk. already भादु (in Sindhī again with elision of d); بھتار bhatāru, husband, Prāk. भत्तारो, Sansk. भर्ता (see Varar. V, 31).

2) Feminine themes in u.

These are, comparatively speaking, few in number; to this class belong such nouns, as end in Sanskrit in u, and are feminine as: فَیْ f. thing, Sansk. वस्तु; دھین dhēnu, a milk-cow, Sansk. धेनु; or such, as have shortened ū to u, as: سَس sasū, mother-in-law, Sansk. ससू; وِج vijū, lightening, Prāk. विजू, Sansk. विद्युत्.

In a few themes original ā has been shortened to u, the Sindhī following herein the levelling process noticed under 1, c irrespective of gender, as: ماء māu, mother, Prāk. माआ, Sansk. माता; دھي dhiu, daughter, Prāk. already धीदा and धीआ, Sansk. दुहिता (see Varar. IV, 33; Lassen p. 172, note); نھي nūhu, daughter-in-law (Sansk. चुषा); quite exceptional is بهين bhēnu, sister, Prāk. बहिणी (Hindūst. بھين), Sansk. भगिणी. A number of nouns ending in u, which are feminine, we shall enumerate when treating of the gender of nouns; their origin is in many cases unknown.

II. The termination o.

Besides the nouns ending in u, those ending in ō are the most numerous in Sindhī; they are all without exception masculine. The old Prākrit termination औ (ō) has been split in Sindhī into two classes, in one of which ō has been shortened to u and in the other of which it has been retained unaltered.

A strict rule seems not to have been attended to in settling these two terminations, but usage alone seems to have decided for the one or the other; in many instances both terminations are promiscuously used. It is worthy of notice, that many nouns, which end in Sindhī in ō, have retained the corresponding termination ā (masc.) in Hindī and Hindūstānī and to a great extent also in Marāṭhī, Bangālī and Panjābī, and similarly those nouns, which terminate in Sindhī in u, have dropped the corresponding vocalic termination (i. e. औ, a) in the dialects quoted.

Examples: ترو tarō, the sole of a shoe (Sansk. तल n.) گلو galō, the throat (Sansk. गल m.), whereas on the other hand گل galu, cheek, corresponds to the Sansk. गल m., لړکو lūrko or لړکي lūrku, a tear; سونارو sōnārō, goldsmith (Sansk. सुवर्णकार); on the other hand لُہَارُ luhāru, blacksmith (Sansk. लोहकार).

In some instances the language has made use of these two different terminations to derive words of somewhat different meanings from one and the same base, as: چُورُو čūrō, powder, filings, and چُورُ čūru, adj. powdered (both from the Sansk. चूर्ण); مَتھُو mathō, the head, and مَتھُ māthu, the top (both from the Sansk. मस्त n.).

We may however lay down some rules, by which the Sindhī seems to have been guided in retaining the original Prākṛit termination ō:

1) Adjectives, derived directly from the Sanskrit-Prākṛit, have on the whole retained the ending ō, as: چَنکُو čaṇō, good (Sansk. चङ्ग); مِٹھُو miṭhō, sweet (Sansk. मिष्ट); کھَارُو khārō, bitter (but کھَارُ khāru, s. m. potash, both being derived from the Sansk. क्षार); رُکھُو rukhō, hard (Sansk. रुक्). In many nouns though both terminations are allowed as: اَدھَرُو adharō or: اَدھَرُ adharu, helpless; نِدھَرُو nidharō or: نِدھَرُ nidharu, wretched; اَبھَرُو abharō or: اَبھَرُ abharu, poor.

Adjectives derived by secondary affixes from other themes generally retain the termination ō, as: جَٹِکُو jaṭikō, relating to a Jaṭ (جَٹ); وَاڻِکُو vāṇikō, belonging to a Vāṇyō (وَاڻِيُو); رَسیلُو rasilō, juicy (from رَس); کھَانْدِیَرُو khāndīrō, patient (from کھَانْدِ). Excepted are the affixes وَاڻ (Prāk. वन्तो, Sansk. वन्), as: دَیَاوَاڻ dayāvānu, compassionate; آڻ (आलु), as: دَیَاَلُ dayālu, the same as وَاڻ; آڙ (आर), when forming substantives, as: دھَنَارُ dhanāru, herdsman, whereas the affix ārō generally forms adjectives, as: سَکھَارُو saghārō, strong (from سَکھ).

2) Verbal nouns, which are derived from the root of verbs by lengthening the root-vowel, take the termination ō, as:

گهٽڻ ghātō, decrease, from گهٽڻ to decrease.

چاڙهڻ čārḥō, increase, from چاڙهڻ to rise.

The termination u however is also in use, especially with such themes, in which the root-vowel is not lengthened, as:

مرڪڻ marku, boasting, from مرڪڻ to boast.

جهٽڻ jhaṭu, snatching, from جهٽڻ to snatch.

3) Nouns of agency, which are derived from verbal roots by prolonging the root-vowel (if it be short) take likewise the termination ō, as:

واڏهڻ vādhō, carpenter, from واڏهڻ to cut.

توبڻ tōbō, diver, from توبڻ to dive.

چيرڻ čirō, sawyer, from چيرڻ to split.

4) Some nouns of foreign origin change (original) final ā or ah to ō in Sindhī, as: بابو bābō, father, Hindūst. (turkish) بابا darvāzō, door, Pers. دروازہ.

5) All participles present and past end in ō, as: هلندو halandō, going; هليو haliō, gone; ماريندو mā-rindō, beating, ماريو māryō, beaten.

6) It is seldom the case, that an original final ā (fem.) has been changed to ō, and rendered thereby masculine, as: تارو tārō, star (Sansk. तारा fem.); Hindi likewise तारा masc. (Paštō: ستوري stōrai m.); in Marāṭhī it is both masc. and fem.

Note. If we turn to the cognate dialects, we find, that the Gujarātī comes nearest to the Sindhī in this respect; for nearly all the nouns, which end in Sindhī in ō and u, have retained the termination \bar{o} . As the Gujarātī has preserved the neuter, it forms a regular neuter ending in उं \bar{u} from masc. themes in \bar{o} , as: कुतरं a dog (in general), but कुतरो a male dog. This neuter termination we consider identical with the Sindhī vocalic termination u , with the only difference, that Anusvāra, as the sign of the neuter, has been added.

In Marāṭhī, Hindī and Panjābī, final \bar{o} of the Sindhī and Gujarātī has been changed to \bar{a} . The Panjābī and Hindī (Hindūstānī) have lost the neuter, but the Marāṭhī, which has preserved it, forms from the masc. termination \bar{a} a regular neuter ending in \bar{e} (एँ), which is in its origin nothing else but another masc. termination with the addition of final Anusvāra, just as in Gujarātī (compare on this point: Lassen, Instit. linguae Prāk. p. 429, 14); e. g.: केलेँ n. a plantain, Hindī: केला m., करखें, inf. (properly a neuter verbal noun, as in Sanskrit), Sindhī کَرَنُ $karaṇu$ (m.), Hindī करना $karna$ (m.), Gujarātī: करણું (n.), as in Marāṭhī.

In Bangalī the termination \bar{a} (= \bar{o} of the Sindhī) is only to be met with in a few nouns, as: $gādhā$, ass, $ghōrā$, horse etc. (nouns like: $pitā$, $kartā$, do not come properly under this head, as they are Sansk. Nominatives); as a masc. termination of adjectives \bar{a} is unknown in Bangālī.

III. The termination \bar{u} (masc. and fem.).

Nouns ending in \bar{u} correspond generally to the Sanskrit-Prākrit termination u , which in Prākrit is lengthened in the Nom. Sing. to \bar{u} ; those nouns, which end already in Sanskrit \bar{u} , retain this termination unaltered in Sindhī. Some feminine nouns, ending in \bar{u} , shorten their final \bar{u} again to u , adding at the same time one of the feminine terminations i (e) or a ; e. g.: سائو $sāu$, upright (Prāk. साउ, Nom. Sing. साऊ, Sansk. साधु), Hindī साधू or साधु; تارو $tārū$ m. palate, Sansk. तालु n. (Hindī तालू); بھو $bhū$ f. earth (or: بھئی $bhuē$), Sansk. भू; جو $jū$ f. louse (or: جئی $jūa$), Sansk. यूक (with eli-sion of final k in Sindhi); آبرو ābirū, honor (or آبرو ābirūe) Pers.

Under this head fall many appellatives and adjectives, ending in ū, āū and ākū, corresponding to the Sansk. affixes uka (उक) and āku (आकु), as: تارو tārū, a swimmer (= tāruka), راهكو rahākū or: راهو rahāū, inhabitant, کھٹاو khatāū, profitable (from کھٹ f. profit).

In some nouns ending in ū, a more complicated contraction has taken place, as: مارهون mārḥū, man, Prak. माणुसो, Sansk. मानुष (n of the Prākṛit interchanging with ṛ, and स being exchanged for h); دارهون dārḥū, pome-granate, Sanskrit दाडिम, Hindūstānī دازم; کچهون kačhū, tortoise, Sansk. कच्छप (p = b = v = ū); ویچهون vičhū, scorpion, Prak. विच्छुओ, Sansk. वृश्चिक.

IV. The termination ā.

Nouns ending in ā correspond generally to the Sanskrit-Prākṛit termination ā (आ) and are all feminine, as: چنتا čintā, anxiety, Sansk. चिन्ता; هچا hačā, murder, Sansk. हत्या; جاत्रا jātrā, pilgrimage, Sansk. यात्रा; کھما khimā, patience, Prak. खमा, Sansk. क्षमा.

There exists a small number of masc. nouns, now ending in ā, which must not be confounded with the preceding fem. nouns, as they are of quite a different origin; they are derived from Sansk. themes ending (in their crude forms) in an (अन) and ṛ (रु), and in the Nom. Sing. in ā, as: راجا rājā, prince; اتما ātmā, soul; कर्ता kartā, the agent (in grammar). There are also a few foreign words, ending in ā, as: آشنا āšnā, an acquaintance, Pers. آشنا.

A few adjectives end likewise in ā (or ă) as: ذَاتَا dātā, liberal; تَالَانِ tālā, exhausted etc.

V. The termination ă.

The vocalic ending ă is shortened from the preceding fem. termination ā, just as u has been shortened from ō. To this class belong in Sindhī:

1) such nouns, as end in Sanskrit and Prākṛit in ā, as: جِبْهَ jibha, tongue, Prāk. जीहा, Sansk. जिह्वा; نُنْهَ nūha (besides نُنْهَ) daughter-in-law, Sansk. नुषा; دِهِي dhia (besides: دِهِي), daughter, Prāk. धीदा or धीआ; سَيْنِ sa-ina, sign, Sansk. सञ्ज्ञा; مِنْجَ miña, marrow, Sansk. मज्जा. Further a great quantity of nouns, the formation of which is peculiar to the Sindhī, and which may be derived from every verbal root. This formation corresponds exactly to the Sanskrit affix अइ (ā), which is added to the verbal root, to form fem. nouns, as Sanskrit: भिदा, breaking, from भिद् etc. In Sindhī the derivation of such nouns from verbs is quite general, and the language acquires thereby a great facility to form verbal nouns, as: چَوَكْهَ cōkha, investigation, Infin. كُذُّنْ (root: چَوَكْهَ); گُذُّ guḍa, pounding, Inf. كُذُّ (root: كُذُّ). The Sindhī always falls back on the Prākṛit, especially in such nouns, as differ already from the Sanskrit, by dropping either a final consonant in Prākṛit or affixing a new vocalic ending, as: آسِيسَ āsīsa, blessing, Prāk. आसिस, Sansk. आशिस.

2) The feminines of such adjectives, as end in the masc. in u, as: كُبْهَ kubha, fem. of كُبْهُ kubhu, unfortunate; سُجَانِ sujāna, fem. of سُجَانُ, well-knowing.

Only a very small number of adjectives ends originally in ă, which remain unchanged in gender, number and case, as: جَال jāla, or جَار jāra, abundant; جَام jāma, much, many.

3) Many nouns fluctuate, as regards their termination, between a or i (e), as both short vowels form the common fem. terminations in Sindhī, e. g.: نَار nāra or نَار nāre, woman; آَر āra or آَر āre, affection; چَہَن čhana or چَہَن čhane, a pond; رِیر rīra or رِیر rīre, quarrel. From the adjectives, ending in u, the feminine may be formed in final a or i (e), as: آتَوَر atōra, or: آتَوَر atōre, what cannot be weighed, masc. چَرِیت چَرِیت čaryata or چَرِیت čaryate, mad, masc. چَرِیت.

This accounts easily enough for the phenomenon, that such nouns, as end in Prākrit in ī, have adopted in Sindhī the termination ā (simply exchanging one fem. termination for another), as: بَہِن bhēna (besides: بَہِن), sister, Prāk. बहिणी Sansk. भगिनी; دُہر dhure, origin, Prāk. धुरा, Sansk. धुर. But, though the respective fem. terminations are often exchanged, the original gender is commonly strictly adhered to in Sindhī, and the case is very rare, that an original masc. noun has been changed to a feminine, as: بَافَہ bāpha, fem. steam, Sansk. वाष्प masc. (in Hindī it has become likewise a fem.).

Note. As regards the cognate dialects, the Bangālī has throughout preserved the original fem. termination ā; the Marāṭhī too has remained more faithful to the Prākrit, but it has already in many cases shortened ā to a, and then dropped it altogether (in pronunciation at least) as: जीभ jībh, tongue, वाट vāt, way etc. In the other dialects long final ā has either been preserved, or it has been thrown off altogether (after having first been changed to ā).

As in Sindhī every noun must needs end in a vowel, such fem. nouns, as are borrowed from the Hindūstānī, frequently adopt the fem. termination 'a' in Sindhī, as: Hindūst. زَمِين (f) earth, Sindhī زَمِينَ zamīna; Hindūst. مِلْك (f.) property, Sindhī مِلْك milka. In a few nouns the gender has been changed, as: Hindūst. كِتَاب kitāb (fem.), Sindhī كِتَاب kitābu, masc.

VI. The termination ī. (masc. et fem.)

Themes in ī are in Sindhī of both genders; they are either masculine or feminine.

1) Masc. themes ending in ī.

The termination ī in masc. nouns corresponds:

a) To the Sansk. affix ī (= in), as: دَهْرْمِي dharmī, religious (Sansk. धर्मिन्), Nom. Sing. धर्मी; سَوَامِي svāmī, lord (Sansk. स्वामिन्); هَاتْهِي hāthī, elephant (Sansk. हस्तिन्).

b) To the Sansk. affix ika (इक = क), by eliding k and lengthening i to ī; e. g.: هَارِي hārī, a peasant, Sansk. हालिक); اَوْتْهِي ōthī, a camel-rider (from اُتْه camel); تْهَكِيرِي thēkirī, a seller of earthen ware (from تْهَكِر earthen ware).

c) To the Sansk. adjectival affix य y, by changing य to ī, as: پَرِي prī, friend, Sansk. प्रिय; اَبْهَآگِي abhāgī, unfortunate, Sansk. अभाग्य.

d) To the Sansk. affix ईय iya, by eliding य, as: هِنْدِي Hindī, Indian; سِنْدْهِي Sindhī, relating to Sindh. With this class coincide all the Persian and Arabic adjectives, formed by the so-called يَاءِ نِسْبَت or y of relation, as: فَآرْسِي fārsī, Persian; عَرَبِي arabī, Arabic; زَاخْمِي zaxmī, wounded.

e) To Sanskrit masc. crudes, ending in i, which generally have final i lengthened to ī in Sindhī, as: کَوی kavī, poët, Sansk. कवि; کَلِیْکَال kalī-kālu, the Kālī-period; in some nouns though original short i has been preserved, as: هَر hare, Vishnu (Hindī: हरि and हरी); پائی pa-e, lord, master (= पति).

There remains a number of words in ī, which are masculine, the origin of which is unknown, as: بَلی bēlī, servant; بَندِهی bāndhī, a log of wood floating in the river; مَآجِهی mānjhī, a brave man.

Note. The Bangālī and Marāṭhī agree with the Sindhī in this respect, as Bang. svāmī, Marāṭhī hattī etc. On the other hand both idioms have retained the masc. termination i, as Bang. pati, lord, Marāṭhī kavi, poët. In Panjābī, Hindī (Hindūst.) final i of masc. themes is occasionally preserved, but more generally dropped, as har = hari; kav = kavi; or lengthened to ī, as in Sindhī, as kalī = kal, kali.

2) Feminine themes ending in ī.

a) Feminine nouns, which end in Sanskrit and Prākṛit in ī, remain unchanged in Sindhī, as: نَدِی nadi, river, Sansk. नदी; سَتِی satī, a virtuous woman, Sansk. सती; رَانِی rānī, queen, Sansk. राज्ञी.

The Prākṛit termination आ (fem.) is occasionally changed to ī in Sindhī, as: وَائی vāī, speech, Prāk. वाच्चा, Sansk. वाच् f.; in some nouns ī (Prāk.) is shortened to i (e), as: دِیْته dīthe, sight, Prāk. दिदी, Sansk. दृष्टि. Neuter nouns, which end in Sansk. in ī, may accept in Sindhī the fem. termination ī, as: دَهِی dahī, sour milk, Prāk. देहि, Sansk. दधि; مَآکِهی mākhī, honey, Sansk. माक्षिकं, with elision of क.

b) The fem. termination ī corresponds to the Sanskrit-Prākṛit affix ī, by which feminines are formed from masculine themes. In Sindhī this termination is used to derive feminines from masc. bases ending in ō and u, as: بھالی bhalī, fem. good, from the masc. base گولی gōlī, a slave-girl, from گولو a slave; بانبھنی bāmbhanī, the daughter or wife of a بانبھن or Brāhman.

c) The fem. termination ī is frequently applied to express littleness, smallness, neatness, as: کاتی kātī, a small knife, from کاتو kātu, a large knife; ماتی mātī, a small jar, from ماتو mātō, a large jar etc.

d) The fem. affix ī, which corresponds to the Sansk. abstract affix यं, derives abstract nouns from adjectives and substantives, as: چوری čōrī, theft, from چور čōru, a thief; بھالی bhalī, goodness, from بھلو bhalō, good; دوستی dōstī, friendship, from دوست dōstu, friend.

VII. The termination i (ē) fem. (m.)

The ending 'i', which, with a few exceptions, denotes fem. nouns, corresponds to the Sanskrit-Prākṛit termination ī; in others again it has been shortened from ī, in the same way, as final a from ā; e. g.: بُدھ budhe, intelligence, Sansk. बुद्धि; مَت mate, opinion, Sansk. मति; نار nāre, woman, Sansk. नारी.

The termination i (e) is generally used to derive feminines from adjectives and substantives ending in u, as: اچیت ačēte, thoughtless, masc. اچیت; سَدھَر sa-dhare, stout, masc. سَدھَر; گڈھ gaḍahe, a jenny-ass, from گڈھ a jack-ass; پریت parīte, a washerwoman, from پریت a washerman.

In some few nouns the original gender has been changed, as: آگی āge, fire (fem.), Prāk. अग्नि (m.), Sansk. आमि m.; دِهه dēhe (fem.), body, Sansk. देह (m. and n.); in the cognate dialects both are alike fem.

It is further to be observed, that in Sindhī final i (e) very frequently interchanges with final ā, both vowels constituting the regular fem. terminations, e. g.: آر āre or آر āra, fondness; گوڑ gōre or گوڑا gōra, thunder etc. Among these we must also reckon forms like دھُر dhure, origin, Prāk. धुरा, short final a having been exchanged for i (e).

In Sindhī, as well as in the cognate dialects, some few masc. nouns have retained the original Sansk. termination i, as: ہر hare, Vishṇu, ورسپت viraspate, the planet Jupiter (Thursday) پتی pa-e, lord, husband (= पति); in others again i has been shortened from ī, as: کبہر kēhare, lion, Sansk. केशरिन्, Hindī केहर and केहरी; سہائی sahāe or سہائی sahāī, a helper.

To some nouns of foreign origin the termination i has also been added, as: خداہ xudāe, God (Pers. خُدا); سیٹھ sēṭhe, a Hindī wholesale merchant (Hindūst. سیٹھ); خیر xīdīre, nom. prop. of a Pīr and fabulous prophet.

Some adjectives, mostly such, as have been borrowed from a foreign source, take also the termination i (m. and fem.), as: خُش xušē, joyful (Pers. خوش); شاد šāde, delighted (Pers. شاد); چورس čaurase, four-square, Sansk. चतुरस्र.

Chapter II.

Primary themes.

§. 7.

With reference to the formation of themes the Sindhī conforms on the whole to the system of the Prākṛit, inasmuch as Prākṛit themes are directly received into the Sindhī with such modifications, as are peculiar to the Sindhī; but besides this the Sindhī has set up new formations of themes, whereby the inherited stock of vocables, be they of Ārian or non-Ārian origin, is peculiarly remodelled. As regards the themes taken directly from the Prākṛit, we must refer to the Sindhī system of sounds in our Introduction, which alone can give the necessary clue as to the origin or derivation of a theme from the Prākṛit; in the following we shall only treat of those themes, which have been formed either by modifying the old inherited stock, or by new rules altogether, irrespective of the Prākṛit. Nouns of Arabic or Persian origin we shall exclude from our present investigation, as they have nothing in common with the genuine Sindhī forms, but are intruders, without which the Sindhī may well exist; they partake so far of the general laws of the formation of themes, that a vocalic termination is affixed to them, according to their respective gender, to render them susceptible of inflexion.

We shall divide the Sindhī formation of themes after the precedent of the Sanskrit into two classes, viz: that of primary and secondary themes, that is, such themes, as are directly derived from verbal roots, and such, as are derived from primary nouns, by means of affixes.

I. Formation of abstract nouns.

1) Themes in ä, ĩ (ë); u, ō (ī fem.)

a) Themes in ä are formed from the simple root of the verb (which in Sindhī, as well as in Sanskrit, is always monosyllabical, derivative verbs excepted) by dropping the Infinitive (verbal) affix anū. In this way an abstract noun may be formed from every Infinitive of the language, exhibiting the abstract idea of the verb.

The affix ä corresponds to the Sansk. affix आ, which is added to the root of the verb (as: Sansk. पूजा, worship, from पूज् to worship) to form abstract nouns; in Sindhī final ā has been shortened to ä; see §. 6, V. e. g.:

جَاغِي jāga, wakefulness, Inf. جَاغْنُ to be awake.

مَرْهَ marha, pardon, Inf. مَرْهَنْ to pardon.

پِرَا pīra, pressure, Inf. پِرَنْ to press.

سَگھا sagha, strength, Inf. سَگھَنْ to be strong.

In some roots 'a' is prolonged to ā and 'u' to ō, as:

جھَاٹَ jhāṭa, snatching, Inf. جھَٹَنْ to snatch.

بھُولَ bhōla, error, Inf. بھُلَنْ to err.

b) Themes in i (e) are formed in the same way as the preceding (i being only a variation of ä), with this difference, that the root-vowel must always be prolonged (viz: a = ā; u = ō; i = ē), e. g.:

گھَاٹَ ghāṭe, decrease, Inf. گھَٹَنْ to decrease.

گھُومَ ghōme, vagrancy, Inf. گھَمَنْ to wander about.

وِرَہَ vēre, quarrel, Inf. وِرَہَنْ to quarrel.

c) The termination 'u' corresponds to the Sansk. affix अ, which derives abstract nouns from verbal roots, with or without prolonging the root-vowel; the same is the case in Sindhī, where the root-vowel either remains unchanged, or is prolonged. E. g.:

مَرُکُ marku, boast, Inf. مَرُکُنُ to boast.

لَاهُ lāhu, descent, Inf. لَهَنُ to descent.

بَهْرُ bhōru, crumb, Inf. بَهْرُنُ to crumble.

پَهْرُ phēru, turn, Inf. پَهْرُنُ to turn (v. n.).

d) Themes in ō are identical with those in u, both terminations interchanging very frequently (see §. 6, I. II.).

گھاٹو ghaṭō, deficiency, Inf. گھٹنُ to decrease.

چَارھو čārḥō, increase, Inf. چڑھنُ to rise.

جھگڑو jhagirō, quarrel, Inf. جھگڑنُ to quarrel.

ڏيکھارو ڏēkhārō, showing, Inf. ڏيکھارنُ to show.

The masc. termination ō is occasionally exchanged for the fem. termination ī, with some slight alteration of meaning, as:

چَارھي čārḥī, ascent, Inf. چڑھنُ to ascend.

ڏيکھاري ڏēkhārī, showing.

2) Themes in aṇu, aṇō, anī, aṇe.

a) Themes in aṇu coincide in Sindhī with the form of the Infinitive, which, according to the testimony of the old Prākṛit grammarians, has already been the case in the Apabhransha dialect, the Infinitive of which terminated in अणं (compare: Lassen, Instit. ling. Prāk. p. 469, 5).

The old Sanskrit Infinitive in तुम् (the Latin supinum) has been lost in the modern vernaculars (the Gujarātī Infinitive, which ends in તું, is properly a neuter Gerundive, and the Bangālī infinitive, which ends in તે, is a past participle, used as a verbal noun) and in its place the verbal noun in अनं is substituted, which in Marāṭhī has remained neuter (एँ ē), but which in Sindhī and the other dialects has been classed under the masculine termination. The affix अनु is added directly to the verbal root in Sindhī, and forms abstract nouns, corresponding to our Gerunds; as:

ڏسڻ ḍisaṇu, seeing, root: ڏس.

هلاڻ halaṇu, going, root: هل.

مرڻ maraṇu, dying, root: مر.

The naked verbal root, as pointed out, is in Sindhī nowhere to be met with, but always ends in the Imperative, where alone its crude form comes to light, in a vowel, which is either u (in intrans. verbs) or i (e) (in transitive verbs). According to the final vowel of the Imperative the junction vowel of the Infinitive or verbal noun varies in Sirō; as: مارڻ māriṇu (to beat), ليٽڻ lēṭaṇu, to recline, but in Lār no regard is had to this circumstance, and all Infinitives (irrespective of their transitive or intransitive signification) terminate in اڻ.

b) Themes in اڻو (which is originally only a variation of اڻ) express in Sindhī more a lasting action, occupation or state; e. g.:

ڏيائڻو وٺائڻو ḍiaṇō vaṭhaṇō, giving and taking (debt and and credit), besides: ڏيائڻ وٺائڻ, which is also in use.

بهرڻو bhariṇō (or bharaṇō) embroidering (literally: filling up).

مانڻو māniṇō (or maṇaṇō) betrothal (literally: asking [for a bride]).

Note. It is remarkable, that all the other dialects, with the exception of the Bangālī and Gujarātī, have retained this termination of the Infinitive, as: Marāṭhī करणे (ē being originally identical with ō, see Lassen §. 144, 2), Hindī (Hindūst.) करना, Panjābī: karnā.

c) More frequently than the termination anō, the feminine ending anī is used in Sindhī, serving at the same time to express smallness, neatness etc. of a state or action:

چَوَني čavanī, saying, Inf. چَرَنُ to say.

هَلَني halanī, going, gait (comely), Inf. هَلَنُ to go.

بَهَرَني bharinī, embroidery, Inf. بَهَرَنُ to fill.

وَدَّهَني vadhanī, carpentering, Inf. وَدَّهَنُ to cut.

Occasionally the termination anī is shortened to ani (anē), as:

گِهَني gēhane, swallowing (besides: گِیَهَني), Inf. گِیَهَنُ to swallow.

The affix anī (or inī) joined to roots of causal verbs, signifies: expense for, wages for, as:

کِهَنَانِی khaṇānī, expense for carrying or lifting up (portage), Inf. کِهَنَانُ to cause to carry.

چَارَانِی čārānī, expense for grazing cattle, Inf. چَارَنُ to cause to graze.

دُھَارَانِی dhuārānī, expense for washing, Inf. دُھَارَنُ to cause to wash.

3) Themes in ti.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix ति, by which abstract nouns are derived from verbal roots, besides those, which are taken over directly from the Sanskrit. The junction vowel in Sindhī is ä, as:

کِهَپَتي khapate, expense, Inf. کِهَپَنُ to spend.

وَنَتي vanate, pleasure, Inf. وَنَنُ to please (act.).

آوَتِ جَاوَتِ āvate jāvate, income, expense (literally: coming, going); as Infinitives they are not used in Sindhī, but in Hindī.

چھڌتِ čhaḍate, remission, Inf. چھڌنُ to remit.
 هلتِ halate, behaviour, Inf. هلنُ to go.

4) Themes in aṭu, āṭū (ā—ū), āṭī (fem.).

These affixes correspond to the Sansk. Uṇādi-affixes अनु, आनु which Bopp has justly referred to the Infinitive affix नु = तुम्. This is borne out by their signification, which in Sindhī nearly coincides with that of the Infinitive, as:

گھیرتِ ghēraṭu, surrounding, Inf. گھیرنُ to surround.

چھنگتِ čhimkāṭu, jingling, Inf. چھنگنُ to jingle.

بھنگتِ bhunīkāṭu	} humming, Inf. بھنگنُ to hum.
بھنگاءِ bhunīkā-u

(by elision of ṭ.)

پھیراڻي phērāṭī, giddiness, Inf. پھیرنُ to cause to turn.

Note. A feminine may thus be derived nearly from all masc. bases.

5) Themes in aṭru (or: iṭru).

The Sindhī affix aṭru (or iṭru) corresponds to the Sansk. affix इष्ट, and denotes an instrument, where-with any thing is done or executed. In Lār this affix is assimilated to aṭu (= aṭṭu) whereas in Sirō the original compound is preserved (only with transition of t into ṭ); the root-vowel is lengthened in some themes; e. g.:

وَاجترُ vājāṭru, a musical instrument, Inf. وَجَنُ to sound.

وَهترُ vahīṭru, a beast of burden, Inf. وَهَنُ to labour.

6) Themes in ikō.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix अक (the junction vowel 'a' having been changed to i in Sindhī), which in Sanskrit forms nouns of agency, but in Sindhī also abstract nouns; as:

دَارِكُو darikō, quarrelling, Inf. دَارَنُ to quarrel.

پِٹِڪُو pitikō, beating the forehead, Inf. پِٹَنُ to strike one's head in grief.

§. 9.

II. Formation of appellatives and attributives.

7) Themes in ō.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix अक (final क being commonly elided in Sindhī), and forms attributives from verbal roots, which imply habitual action or possession. The root-vowel, if it be short, must be prolonged, as in Sanskrit; e. g.:

وَادَهو vād̄hō, carpenter, Inf. وَدَهَنُ to cut.

چِرَو čirō, sawyer, Inf. چِرَنُ to split.

تَوَبُو tōbō, diver, Inf. تَبَنُ to dive.

كَهَرَو ghōrō, seeker, Inf. كَهَرَنُ to seek.

In some few instances the full Sansk. affix has been preserved, as:

گَائِڪُ gāiku, singer, Inf. گَائِنُ to sing.

8) Themes in ū.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix उक (final क being elided in Sindhī and u lengthened) and forms verbal adjectives or attributives, implying a habitual or characteristical action or state. The root-vowel, if short, is commonly prolonged before the accession of this affix; as:

وَادَهُو vād̄hū, increasing, Inf. وَدَهَنُ to increase.

تَارُو tārū, a swimmer, Inf. تَرَنُ to swim.

وِرَهَهُو vērhū, a quarrelsome person, Inf. وَرَهَنُ to quarrel.

پھورُ phōrū, a robber, Inf. پھرنُ to rob.

گھومُ ghōmū, a vagabond, Inf. گھمنُ to stroll about.

Without prolongation of the root-vowel:

رہو rahū, inhabitant, Inf. رہنُ to stay.

سہو sahū, patient, Inf. سہنُ to bear.

9) Themes in āku, ākū, āū.

This affix denotes the same idea of a habitual state or action, as the preceding. It corresponds to the Sansk. affix आकु which is added to the verbal root either unaltered, or with final 'u' lengthened, or with elision of क् = ā-ū. In some instances the root-vowel is prolonged. E. g.:

رہاکو rahākū, } inhabitant, Inf. رہنُ to stay.
 رہاؤ rahā-ū, }

پیاکو piāku, drinker, Inf. پینُ to drink.

ویرچاؤ virčāū, wearisome, Inf. وِرچنُ to be wearied.

ویکاؤ vēkāū, for sale, Inf. وِکنُ to be sold.

پیتاؤ pētāū, ill-wishing, Inf. پِتنُ to curse.

10) Themes in andō (and indō).

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix अन्, Prāk. अनो (in Sindhī with change of the tenuis into the media), and forms in Sindhī, like as in Sanskrit and Prākrit, present participles. According to the final vowel of the Imperative the participle ends in andō (Imperative u) or indō (imperative i); some participles are formed irregularly.

لاگندو laḡandō, applying, Imper. لَکُ, Inf. لَکَنُ to apply.

ڏسندو ڏisandō, seeing, Imper. ڏسُ, Inf. ڏسَنُ to see.

بهيليندو bhēlindō, trampling, Imper. بهيلِ, Inf. بهيلَنُ to trample.

تھیندو thīndō (irreg.), Imper. تھیئی, Inf. تھینن to become.

Note. We advert to the fact, that all the other dialects have dropped the nasal in the Prāk. affix अन्तो; the Panjābī has preserved it in a few forms, as: hundā, being, jāndā, going, but in the regular present participle the affix is always dā, with change of the tenuis into the media, just as in Sindhī. In Gujarātī the present participle ends in tō, as: लखतो lakhtō, writing; in Hindī (Hindūst.) in tā, as: likhtā, hōtā, being etc. Hindui tu, as: लिखतु likh-tu, writing. The Marāṭhī has formed two present participial affixes from the Sanskrit affix अत्; one in tā, corresponding to the Hindī form, as: लिहिता, writing, with which affix the terminations of the substantive verb अस्मि coalesce into the forms tō, tōs etc.; the other in at or it. The Bangālī has discontinued the use of the present participle (with the exception of a few Sanskrit participles ending in at) and only employs the same in conjunction with the substantive verb āchī, as: dēkhitēchi, I am seeing; but dēkhitē is by no means to be confounded with the Infinitive, as it is commonly represented in Bangālī grammars, it is the Locative form of dēkhit, and signifies literally: I am in seeing (the Locative of the present participle is similarly used in Sindhī and Hindī).

11) Themes in āru, ārū, ārō.

These affixes correspond to the Sansk. affix आरु, and form in Sindhī verbal nouns, which imply a habitual action or occupation; their number is not very considerable; as:

کهوړارو ghōrārō,	} a pedlar, Inf. کهوړن to seek.
کهوړارو ghōrārū,
پوچارو pūjārō, a worshipper,	Inf. پوچن to worship.
پینکارو pīnārō, a cotton carder,	Inf. پینن to card cotton.
پینارو pēnāru, a beggar,	Inf. پنن to beg.

12) Themes in ibō.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix तब्य, incredible as this may appear. In Sindhī त has been elided and vv (= व्य) hardened to b (= bb). It forms now in Sindhī present participles passive, though its original use and signification has still been preserved in the formation of the future passive; as:

بُوسَاتِبُو būsātibō, being choked, Inf. بُوسَاتَنُ to choke.

دُرُوهِبُو dṛōhibō, being cheated, Inf. دُرُوهِنُ to cheat.

جَهَلِبُو jhalibō, being seized, Inf. جَهَلَنُ to seize.

13) Themes in iṇō.

We have in Sindhī two themes in iṇō, which are quite of different origin and signification.

a) The affix iṇō, added to such verbs, as end in the Imperative in u, corresponds to the Sanskrit affix अन, which forms attributives and appellatives; in Sindhī the affix ana has been changed to iṇō; e. g.:

هَلِیَنُو halinō, going, Imper. هَلُ.

مُرِکِنُو murkinō, laughing, Imper. مُرُکُ.

چِهَرِکِنُو čhirkinō, shying, Imper. چِهَرُکُ.

بُهَرِنُو bhurinō, crumbling, Imper. بُهَرُ.

پِنِنُو pininō, begging, Imper. پِنُ.

Some of these attributives are also used substantively, and as such they are also susceptible of the fem. termination, as:

چِهَنِکِنُو čhinkinō, rattle, i. e. that which rattles.

پِهَرِنُو phirinō, spooling-wheel, i. e. that which turns round.

دِهَوَنُو dhāvane, a pair of bellows, i. e. that which blows (the fire).

b) The other affix iṇō or aṇō corresponds to the Sanskrit affix अनीय, by which the future passive participle is formed in Sanskrit. Thus in Sindhī a Gerundive may be derived from every transitive verb by means of this affix, as:

मारिणो marinō, one who is to be beaten, Inf. मारिन् marin to beat.

दिणो dianō, what is to be given, Inf. दिन् din to give.

धुणो dhuanō, what is to be washed, Inf. धुन् dhun to wash.

रथणो rathanō, what is to be taken, Inf. रथेन् rathēn to take.

In the same way a gerundive is derived from causal verbs, as:

वराणि varāṇi, what ought to be returned, Inf. वरान् varān to return (act).

धुवारिणो dhuvarinō, what ought to be caused to wash, Inf. धुवारिन् dhuvarin to cause to wash.

Note. In Hindī and Hindūstānī the Gerundive coincides with the Infinitive, with this difference, that the Gerundive is properly a masc. substantive, and therefore only a Gerund; very rarely the Infinitive is employed as a Gerundive proper (i. e. future passive participle), agreeing with its governing noun in gender, as in Sindhī. The Panjābī on the other hand quite agrees with the Sindhī in this respect, using the Infinitive as a regular Gerundive, agreeing with the governing noun in gender, number and case, like an adjective. The Marāṭhī forms the Gerundive by the affix आवा (आवी, आवे), which corresponds to the Sansk. affix तव्य, Prāk. तव; in Marāṭhī त has been elided and in its place 'a' lengthened, as: करावा faciendus, मोडावा dirumpendus. In a similar way the Gerundive is formed in Gujarātī by the affix अवो (= तव) as: लखवो scribendus. In Bangālī occurs no proper formation of a Gerundive, but the Infinitive (in distinction from the verbal noun) is generally employed to express the idea of a Gerund, like in Hindī, as: amākē jāitē hai, mihi eundum est; but many original Gerundive forms are borrowed directly from the Sanskrit, as: kar-tavya etc., the affix aniya is also in use.

14) Themes in iō or yō.

The affix iō or yō is used to derive perfect participles; it corresponds to the Sanskrit affix त, Prākṛit already द, and frequently altogether elided, for which reason y or i is inserted in Sindhī, to prevent the hiatus.

The perfect participle of transitive verbs always implies a passive signification, whereas that of intransitive verbs only expresses the idea of the Præterite.

In many instances the Sindhī has preserved the original Sanskrit-Prākṛit forms of the perfect participles, modified according to the laws of elision and assimilation current in Sindhī.

پَسِيو pasyō (or پَسِيو pasiō) seen, Inf. پَسَنُ to see.

جَهَلِيو jhalyō (or: جَهَلِيو jhaliō) seized, Inf. جَهَلَنُ to seize.

مَوْتِيو mōtyō (or: مَوْتِيو mōtiō); returned, Inf. مَوْتَنُ to return.

دِثِيو dīthō, seen; Sansk. दृष्ट, Prāk. दिदो; Inf. دِثَنُ to see.

اُتُو utō, said; Sansk. उक्त, Prāk. उक्तो; Inf. اُتَنُ to say.

Note. In reference to the formation of the perfect participles (the perfect participle active in वत् has completely disappeared from the grammar of the modern vernaculars) a great variation is to be noticed in the cognate dialects. The Panjābī, Gujārātī, Hindī and Hindūstānī quite agree in this point with the Sindhī, as Panjābī: ghallīā, sent, Inf. ghallnā; Gujārātī: lakhyō, written; Hindī (Hindūst.): likhā (without insertion of euphonic i or y in the place of elided t or d), Inf. likhnā.

The Marāṭhī differs considerably in this respect from the idioms mentioned; it forms the perfect participle by affixing ला to the root of the verb (with the junction vowel a or i, according to the intransitive or transitive signification of a verb). The first traces of this affix must be sought already in Prākṛit; the Sansk. न has been changed in Prākṛit to the corresponding media द, and this again to ड (ḍ); see Lassen: Instit. linguae Prāk., p. 363. We have seen already (Introd. §. 6, 4) that ड is frequently changed to ङ r in the modern idioms, and this is again exchanged for l; as: चालला gone, Inf. चाललें; मोडिला broken, Inf. मोडलें.

The Bangālī coincides in this point quite with the Hindī, as: dēkhā, seen (without insertion of euphonic i or y).

Chapter III.

Secondary themes.

§. 10.

Under this head we shall class all those themes, which are derived from other nouns by means of an affix. We shall pass again all those forms, which have been taken directly from the Sanskrit-Prākṛit, and only treat of those formations, which are peculiar to the Sindhī.

I. Formation of abstract nouns.

Abstract nouns may be derived either from substantives or adjectives, the affixes which the Sindhī uses for this purpose, agree all, more or less, with the primitive Sanskrit-Prākṛit affixes.

1) Themes in ī. (f.)

By the affix ī a very numerous class of abstract nouns is formed, which, after the analogy of the Persian, may be derived from any noun. The final vowel is always dropped before this affix, but in other respects the noun undergoes no change whatever.

The affix ī corresponds to the Sanskrit affix यं (n.); in Sindhī as well as in the other dialects the feminine form ī, which is already current in Sanskrit, has alone been retained; e. g.:

چوري čōrī, theft, from چور čōru, thief.

مندي mandī, wickedness, from مندو mandō, wicked.

کمي kamī, deficiency, from کم kame, deficient.

2) Themes in āī. (f.)

The affix āī is only a variation of the preceding affix; final u (= ō) and ō are not dropped, as before the preceding affix, but changed to 'ā (as in the other dialects) to keep their place; e. g.:

نيرمالاي nirmalāī, purity, from نيرمل nirmalu, pure.

کورزاي kūrāī, falsity, from کورزو kūrō, false.

Both forms are therefore frequently used indifferently, as:

بهلي bhalī, goodness, or: بهلاي bhalāī, from بهلو bhalō, good.

3) Themes in tā and tāī. (f.)

The affix tā forms in Sindhī a very numerous class of abstract nouns from attributives and adjectives; the final vowel is always dropped and the union-vowel ī inserted (except when the noun ends in ī). The affix tā corresponds to the Sanskrit affix त्, which is used for the same purpose in Sanskrit. Besides the affix tā, the emphatic form with ī (tā-ī) is also in use; e. g.:

کھٹنا ghaṭita,	} want, from کھٹ ghaṭe, deficient.
کھٹناي ghaṭitāī,

جوگتا jōgita, fitness, from جوگ jōgu, fit.

4) Themes in te; tī. (f.)

The affix te, which is else only used with primary formations, is in Sindhī also (though very rarely) found with secondary formations; the affix tī, which is also occasionally to be met with, is only a variation of te (i having been lengthened to ī); as:

سَنَوَتِ sāvate, straightness, from سَنَوْنَ sãṇō, straight.

كَهَّتِي ghaṭiti, deficiency, from كَهَّتِ ghaṭe, deficient.

Note. The affix tī is also used in Hindūstānī, as: كُنِّي deficiency, from كَمَ.

5) Themes in āṇe or āiṇe. (f.)

These affixes form a numerous class of abstract nouns from adjectives implying colour or some other inherent quality. They correspond to the Sanskrit affix इमन्, which forms abstract masc. nouns. In Prākṛit the termination अन् may already be lengthened to आण (cf. Var. V, 47); in Sindhī म (m) has been elided, which is rather uncommon, and a feminine termination substituted for the masculine; the i of iman has been dropped = āṇe, whereas in the form āiṇe i has been inserted after ā, to render the 'a' more prominent. E. g.:

اَچَہانِ ačhāṇe, whiteness, from اَچَہو ačhō, white.

وِکِرَانِ vēkirāṇe, breadth, from وِکِرُو vēkirō, broad.

وَدَانِ vaḍāṇe, greatness, from وَدُو vaḍō, great.

The affix āṇe (āiṇe) is very often exchanged for the affix āī (see 2.), and with many nouns both affixes are promiscuously used, as: کَارَانِ or کَارَائِي blackness.

Note. In Hindī and Hindūstānī the affix ma (= इमन्) is rarely used, and no longer as a masculine; e. g.: garimā, f., importance. In Gujurātī the affix āṇ is used (as neuter) e. g.: جُڈاण depth, from جُڈو deep; the Marāṭhī and Bangālī have preserved the original Sansk. termination mā (as masc.). In Pan-jābī, as in Gujarātī, the form āṇ (m.) is used, as: učāṇ, m., height, from učā, high.

6) Themes in pō, pā, pāī, pi; paṇu, paṇō; taṇu; āṭu.

These affixes form a very numerous class of abstract nouns from substantives and adjectives. We can see in this instance, how the Sindhī has managed to derive from one and the same Sanskrit affix a whole series of abstract affixes, which at the first glance seem to have nothing in common.

The affixes pō, pa, pāī, pī are derived from the Sansk. abstract-affix त्वा tva, which is assimilated to प्प (see Introd. §. 15, D, b.); from this the Sindhī has formed the various terminations pā, pa, pāī, pī.

From the self-same affix त्वा, which has become त्वाण in Prākṛit (from an original त्वन), and which has been assimilated in the Apabhraṃsha dialect to प्पाण (see Lassen, p. 459, 9.) the Sindhī has derived the affixes paṇu or paṇō.

From the same source has also sprung the affix taṇu, but by a different process of assimilation, the semi-vowel v being assimilated to the preceding dental (cf. §. 15, D, b.).

Another form of assimilation is the affix ātu (viz: tva = tta = ṭṭa = āta, the double consonant being cleared away by lengthening the preceding vowel), which is only rarely used.

The final vowels undergo various changes before the accession of the above mentioned affixes; final u is generally changed to 'a' or 'ī', with the exception of the fem. nouns ending in 'u', which preserve 'u' (as radical) before all affixes; final ō is either weakened to 'a' or changed to ō; final ī is either shortened to 'ī', or with a subsounding 'a' to 'ia', which is mostly the case before the heavy affixes paṇu, paṇō; final ū is shortened to 'u' with a subsounding 'a' (= ua) before the heavy affixes paṇu, paṇō; long ū though keeps now and then its place before them; before the lighter affixes pō, pa, pāī, pī final ū is shortened even to 'i' (for euphony's sake). Final short 'a' may be lengthened to ā, to distinguish the feminine themes from those ending in 'u'; but this depends on usage.

a) final u:

پَنَدِ تَپَنُو pandītapānō, m. The duty of a pandit;
from پَنَدِ تَ.

چَہو کَرَاتُ čhōkirātu, m. The time of youth;
from چَہو کَرُ čhōkaru, a boy.

وَتَہُپَ vathupa; f. assistance; from وَتَہُ fem. laying hold of.

b) final ō:

نَنَدِ ہَپَایِ nandhapāi, f.	} Time of youth; from نَنَدِ ہُو nandhō, small.
نَنَدِ ہَپَنُ nandhapānu, m.
نَنَدِ ہَپُو nandhēpō, m.

c) final ī:

وَاہِپَ vāhipa, f.	} The duty of a وَاہِی m. or watchman.
وَاہِپُو vāhipō, m.

کَاندِ ہِپَ kāndhiapa, f.	} The office of a کَاندِ ہِی kāndhī, one who gives a shoulder in carrying a corpse.
کَاندِ ہِپَنُ kāndhiapanu, m.

مُکھِ تَنُ mukhitaṇu, the duty of a مُکھِی mukhī or headsman.

d) final ū:

مَآنِ ہِپُو mānhipō,	} humanity, from مَآنِ ہُو mānhū man.
مَآنِ ہِپَنُو mānhuapano,

مِرُو پَنُو mirūpanō, bestiality, from مِرُو mirū, wild beast.

e) final a:

رَآنِ پَنُ ranāpanu, widowhood, from رَآ rana, a widow.
زَآلِ پَنُ zālapanu, womanhood, from زَآل a woman.

Note. These abstract affixes are to be met with in all the cognate idioms. The Hindī and Hindūstānī use the affixes pan, panā and pā, corresponding to the Sindhī forms paṇu, paṇō and pō. The Gujārāthī: paṇ and paṇū (both neut.); the Marāṭhī: paṇ (n.) and paṇā (m.); the Panjābī: puṇā. The Bangālī comes nearest to the Sanskrit in this respect, having retained the original abstract affix tva unaltered.

7) Themes in kāru, kārō, kāra, kāre.

These themes fall under our consideration in this place not so much on account of their formation, as their signification, for we have here not to deal with an affix, but with an adjective, used to form compounds, and signifying: making, effecting. In Sindhī the original signification of कार has been already obliterated, and it is now used in the same way as an affix, to form a number of abstract nouns; e. g.:

لُچھِڪَارُ lučhikārō, uneasiness, properly: that which makes لُچھِ lučha, or being tossed about.

وَنڪَارُ vanakāru ,	{	wood, forest; properly: that which
وَنڪَارِ vanakāre ,		produces trees (وَن).

تھڊھِڪَارَ thadhekāra, cool temperature; properly: that which makes coolness (تھڊھِ).

8) Themes in kō and ō.

The affix kō serves originally to derive adjectives, and corresponds to the Sansk. affix इक; but in Sindhī it is sometimes used (as the preceding affix कार) to form abstract nouns; the affix ō is identical with kō, k having been elided. E. g.:

لُچھِڪَوُ lučhikō, uneasiness; the same as: لُچھِڪَارُ.

دھورِڙِو dhūr̥yō, a duststorm; properly: that which makes sand (دھورِڙِ).

§. 10.

II. Formation of appellatives, attributives and possessives.

9) Themes in ī.

This affix, which in Sindhī and the kindred idioms is so frequently employed, has sprung from three different sources:

a) The affix ī, corresponding to the Sanskrit affix इक्.

This affix forms attributives and appellatives of various significations; the root-vowel is generally lengthened before the addition of this affix, i. e. 'a' becomes ā; 'ī' : ē; 'u' : ō; e. g.:

اَوْتِهِي ōthī, a camel-rider, from اُتھُ ūṭhu, camel.

بَاكِيرِي bākīrī, a seller of vegetables, from بَكَرُ bākuru, vegetables.

تَهِيڪِرِي thēkirī, a seller of earthen-ware; from تَهِيڪِرُ thēkiru, earthen-ware.

b) The affix ī, corresponding to the Sansk. affix इय, इय.

This affix denotes in all the modern vernaculars descent or relationship. Before its addition to a noun a final short vowel is dropped, long ū is shortened to 'u', and ō is changed to ā. In some instances final short 'u' (shortened from ō) is changed to ā (= ō) and thus preserved; e. g.:

سِنْدِهِي sindhī, of Sindh, from سِنْدھُ f. sindhu, the country of Sindh.

هِنْدُوِي hinduī, relating to a Hindū, from هِنْدُ hindū, a Hindū.

لَارِي lārī,
 لَارَائِي lārāī, } of Lār, from لَارُ m. lāru, Lower Sindh.

سرائي sirāī, of Sirō, from سِرُو sirō, Upper Sindh.

- c) The affix ī, corresponding to the Sansk. affix इन्.
(Nom. Sing. ī)

The Sindhī affix ī serves to form possessive nouns, like the Sansk. affix इन्; e. g.:

دَاهِي dāhī, complainant, from دَاهَا dāha, complaint.

رَوِگِي rōgī, sick, from رَوِگُو rōgu, sickness.

مَالِي māli, gardener, Sansk. मालिन्.

In such formations, as are peculiar to the Sindhī, a final short vowel may keep its place before the affix ī, as:

مَتَائِي mataī, tenacious of one's opinion or sect, from مَت make opinion or religion (final 'e' being exchanged for 'a', for euphony's sake).

10) Themes in āi.

The affix āi is only a variation of the affix ī (9, a), final 'u' and ō of such themes, as end in 'u' and ō being again changed before it to ā; nouns thus formed imply an occupation, habit or tendency, as:

بَاگَائِي bāgāī, gardener, from بَاگُ bāgu, garden.

نِيچَائِي nēcāī, a maker of huqqah-snakes, from نِيچُو nēcō a huqqah-snake.

جَهَاغِيرَائِي jhagīrāī, a quarreller, from جَهَاغِيرُو jhagīrō, quarrel.

11) Themes in ū.

The affix ū, corresponding to the Sansk. affix उक्, is added to substantives, by means of which, as in the primary formations, appellatives and adjectives are derived, denoting an habitual action or state. A final vowel is always dropped before the addition of this affix; in some nouns the first vowel is lengthened at the same time; e. g.:

هَآئِرُ hāñū, injurious, from هَانِجِ hāñe, injury.

وِيرُ vērū, revengeful, from وِرِ vēru; enmity.

چَہَآپِرُ čhāpirū, a mountaineer, from چَہَرِ čhāparu, a range of hills.

بَآکِہِرُ bākhirū, a man of Bakhar, from بَکِہَرِ bakhharu, a town of upper Sindh.

12) Themes in āū.

The affix āū is identical with the preceding, the only difference being that the final vowel of the theme is lengthened before the affix ū (fin. u = a = ā).

دِہَرَمَآؤُ dharmāū, religious, from دِہَرَمِ dharmu, religion.

شَرَمَآؤُ śarmāū, bashful, from, شَرَمِ śarmu, shame, modesty.

13) Themes in āō.

The affix āō is already so much corrupted, that its origin is scarcely recognisable; it corresponds to the Sanskrit affix मय, which forms adjectives, denoting "made of, consisting of." The labial m has been elided in this affix as well as in the abstract affix इमन्, and a has been lengthened in compensation thereof. The semi-vowel y has likewise disappeared, āō = āyō; the final Anusvāra is altogether euphonic and more or less optional; e. g.:

ہَآدِرَآؤُ haidrāō, made of ہَآدِرِ haidra, turmeric.

جَآنبِہَآؤُ jāmbhāō, made of جَآنبِہِ jāmbhō, a kind of oil-seed.

لَہَآؤُ lōhāō, made of لَہِ lōhu, iron.

14) Themes in ō.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix अ; it forms adjectives and attributives in the largest sense. The final short vowel of a noun is always dropped before this affix, and ū and ī are shortened. The root-vowel either remains unaltered or is lengthened, viz: 'a' to ā, ī to ē and 'u' to ō; as:

سَکھو saghō, strong, from سَکھا sagha, strength.

وِنکو vingō, crooked, from وِنکو vingu, a crook.

بَھکُو bhakuō, stupid, from بَھکُو bhakū, a blockhead.

وِچو vēcō, mediator, from وِچ viču, midst.

بَاروچو bārōcō, of a Beluch, from بَاروچ bārōču, a Beluch.

اوتھو ōthō, of a camel, from اُتھ uṭhu, camel.

گَاو gāō, of a cow, from گَاو gāū, cow.

Irregular formations are:

مَہیو māhyō, of a buffalo, from مِہ مēhe, a buffalo.

سَیئون saiō, hundredth (per cent), from سَو sau, hundred.

15) Themes in āru (aru), ārō; ālu.

These affixes correspond to the Sansk. affix आल (in Prākṛit likewise आल cf. Var. IV, 26), which forms possessive nouns. In Sindhī r and l are interchanged, and in some nouns āru has been shortened to aru. The root-vowel commonly remains unaltered, but in some nouns 'u' is changed to ō (i. e. 'u' takes Guṇa); as:

مِہَارُ mēhāru, or	} a buffalo keeper, from مِہ مēhe,
مِہَرُ mēharu,

چوٹیارُ cōṭyaru, having a چوٹی cōṭī, bundle of hair on the crown of the head.

دھَنَارُ dhaṇāru, a herdsman, from دھَن dhaṇu, a herd of cattle.

اوتھَارُ ōṭhāru, a camel-herd, from اُتھ uṭhu, camel.

جَوَالُ javālu, containing barley, from جَو jau, barley.

Some of these formations, with the affix ālu or ālō, are used in a substantive sense, their original possessive signification being more or less lost, as:

گھڑیآل gharyālu, } a Gong; literally: containing or گھڑیآل gharyālō, } expressing the hour (گھڑی).
دِیَال diālu, candlestick; literally: having a light (دِیَال).

جھڑال jhurālō, cloudiness; literally: containing clouds (جھڑ).

16) Themes in īrō and ilō, or: ērō and ēlō.

These affixes correspond to the Sansk. ईर and ईल and form attributives, signifying: habit, quality or intensity; ērō and ēlō have sprung from the Prākṛit affix illa (Var. IV, 25); e. g.:

کھاندھیرو khāndhīrō, patient, from کھاندھ khāndhe, patience.

هاتھیلو hathīlō, obstinate, from هاتھ hathu, obstinacy.

چھانویرو chhāvērō, } shadowy, from چھانو chhāva, shade.
چھانویلو chhāvēlō, }

تھریلو tharēlō, of the Thar, having the custom of the Thar or desert.

چمیلو čamēlō, leathern, from چم čamu, leather.

17) Themes in iru.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix र (with the union-vowel i) and forms attributives and appellatives as well as possessive nouns; a final vowel, short or long, is always dropped before the addition of this affix; e. g.:

سندھیرو sandhiru, a house-breaker, from سندھ sandhe, a hole in a wall.

جَهَاتِرُ jhātiru, a peeper, from جَهَاتِي jhātī, looking through a hole.

چِهِنْبِيرُ chimbhiru, a rebuker, from چِهِنْبَه chimbha, rebuke.

جَهَپِرُ jhapiru, one who snatches, from جَهَپُو jhapō, a snatch.

پِٽِرُ pēṭiru, a glutton, from پِٽُ pētu, belly.

وِہِرُ vihiru, poisonous, from وَہُ f. poison.

18) Themes in atu and ālū.

This affix has sprung from the Sanskrit affix मत् by elision of म; in some nouns 'a' has been lengthened, to compensate for the elision of m; it forms possessive nouns, just as in Sanskrit; e. g.:

بَهَرِئَّ bharyatu, a porter, from بَهَرِي bharī, a man's load.

پُورِهئَّ pōrhiatu, a labourer, from پُورِهيō pōrhiō, labour.

ڏِيٺِئَّ ḍiānyātu, a debtor, from ڏِيٺِي ḍiāṇī, a debt.

19) Themes in ētō (itō).

The Sindhī affix ētō corresponds to the Sansk. affix इत्, denoting "to be provided with", to possess as one's own. The short i of the Sansk. affix has in Sindhī been produced to ē, on account of the accent; the final vowel is always dropped before this affix; e. g.:

پُٽِرِيتُ putrētō, having a son, from پُٽُر patru, son.

دِهيٽُ dhiētō, having a daughter, from دِهي dhia, daughter.

جُويٽُ jōētō, having a wife, from جُوء jōe, wife.

بِهَٽُ bhāitō, having a brother, from بهاء bhāu, brother.

20) Themes in āitō.

This affix is identical with the preceding in derivation and signification, the only difference being that final ō, 'u' and 'a' are changed before it to ā, as:

وَارَاتَتُو vārāitō, adj., at the right time, from وَارُو vārō, time.

سَجَاهَاتَتُو sajhāitō, adj., opportune, from سَجَاهُ sajhū, opportunity.

وَاتَاتَتُو vātāitō, having a road, from وَاثَ vāṭa, a road.

21) Themes in ṛu and lu.

a) The affix ṛu corresponds to the Sansk. diminutive affix र, and is affixed to adjectives and participles present, with some slight variation of the original meaning; when added to adjectives the root-vowel is now and then lengthened. Final 'u' and ō are changed to 'a' before the addition of this affix; ī remains unaltered.

سَاجَرُ sājaru, right-handed, from سَاجُو sājō, right.

كَهَسَرُ khasaru, sterile, from كَهَسُ khasu, not fully developed.

كَأَچِيرُو kāčhirō, of the province of Kāch, from كَآچِي a Kāchī.

لِکْهَنْدَرُ likhandaru, a writer, from لِکْهَنْدُو part. pres. writing.

b) The affix lu is identical with the affix ṛu (r[r] = l) and turns preterite participles into simple adjectives; it is seldom found with adjectives, the signification of which it does not change materially.

وَالُو vialu, lost, from وَاوُو viō, gone, lost.

دِثَالُو dīṭhalu, seen, from دِثَاهُو dīṭhō, seen.

visūralu, simple-minded, from visūrō, simple-minded.

Similarly in Prākṛit the affix r or l (dimin.) is added to nouns and adjectives, without essentially altering their signification (cf. Varar. IV, 26), as Sansk. विद्युत् lightening, Prāk. विज्जू or विज्जुली; पीत yellow, Prāk. पीअ or: पीअल.

The same affix ला we notice in the Marāṭhī, where it is added to preterite participles to turn them into real adjectives, as: चाललेला gone (from चालला); मोडिलेला broken (from मोडिला); the same holds good in Gujārātī, as: लखेलो, written (Adj.) (from लख्यो).

22) Themes in iryō.

The affix iryō is originally compounded of the diminutive affix र (= r) and the adjectival affix yō (य); it forms adjectives and attributives denoting inclination or hesitation; e. g.:

सद्विरीय sadhīryō, half-wishing; literally: being somewhat disposed to wish.

गह्विरीय ghōrīryō, a pedlar; i. e. one who is inclined to seek out.

पैरिरीय pēirīryō, a walker; literally: disposed to travel afoot.

परमतिरीय paramatīryō, easily persuaded; literally: disposed to take another's counsel.

23) Themes in āku and ākū.

These Unādi-affixes, which else only occur with primary themes, are in Sindhī also used (but very rarely) in secondary formations, as:

जहिराकु jhērāku,	{	quarrelsome, from जहेरु jhērō,
जहेराकु jhērākū,		contention.

24) Themes in ikō.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix क्व (in Sindhi with the addition of the union-vowel i) and forms adjectives, denoting relation, quality etc. A final vowel, short or long, is dropped before this affix; final ū alone is shortened to 'u' and takes the union-vowel 'a' instead of 'i'; e. g.:

وَپَارِڪو vāpārikō, mercantile, from وَپَارُ vāpāru, trade.

وَانِڪو vānikō, relating to a وَانِيو vānyō or shopkeeper.

هَارِڪو hārikō, relating to a هَارِي hārī or peasant.

مِرُوڪو miruakō, brutal, from مِرُون mirū, a wild beast.

25) Themes in ičō or ēčō.

These affixes have sprung from the Sansk. affix इक्, and form adjectives denoting descent or origin. In Sindhi 'i' has been lengthened to ī or even to ē, and the guttural k has been exchanged for the palatal č. The final vowel, short or long, is always cast off before these affixes; e. g.:

گُوٿِهَڪو gōṭhēčō, of the same village, from گُوٿُ gō-thu, village.

پَارِڪو pārēčō, of the same quarter, from پَارُ pārō, quarter.

پَارِڪو pārēčō, of the opposite side, from پار adv., opposite.

وِڙِهَڪو vērhīčō, of the jungle, from وِڙِه vērhe, jungle.

26) Themes in ōkō.

This affix, which is added only to nouns or adverbs, denoting time, is identical with the affix क्व; the union-vowel ō is peculiar and not to be met with elsewhere; every final vowel, short or long, is dropped before it; e. g.:

وَرِهَؤُكُو varehōkō, yearly, from وَرِهَ varehu, year.

رَاتُؤُكُو rātōkō, nightly, from رَاتِ rāte, night.

هَانُؤُكُو hānōkō, recent, from هَانِي hānē, now. adj.

كَالْهَؤُكُو kāl'hōkō, of yester (day or night), from كَالْهَ kālha, yesterday, adv.

پَرُؤُكُو parōkō, of last year, from پَرِ (fem.) last year.

A few other adjectives are formed by the same affix, with the further difference, that the root-vowel is lengthened, as:

چَانْدَرُؤُكُو čandrōkō, moonlight, from چَنْدَرُ čandru, moon.

27) Themes in āṇō (āṇu, iṇō), āṇikō.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix इन्, and forms adjectives denoting relation or descent. It is remarkable, that the original union-vowel 'i' has been dislodged in Sindhi and ā substituted in its place (compare with this such Latin forms, as: romānus, africanus). The adjectives, formed by the affix āṇō may moreover add the affix kō (with the union vowel 'i'), so that we thus have adjectives with a double affix, which do not materially differ from the simple forms in āṇō; e. g.:

چَوْرَانُ cōrāṇō,
 چَوْرَانِڪُو cōrāṇikō, } of a thief, from چُورُ čōru, thief.

لُچَانُ lučāṇō, rascally, from لُچُو lučō, rascal.

دِهِيَانُ dhiāṇō, of a daughter, from دِهِي dhia, daughter.

مِرُوانُ miruāṇō, of a wild beast, from مِرُون mirū, wild beast.

بِهَيَانُ bhāyāṇō, of a partner, from بَهَائِي bhāi, partner.

In a few nouns a short root-vowel is lengthened, as:

چاندَراَنو	čāndrāṇō,	} moonlight, from چَندَرُ čandru, moon.
چاندَراَنُ	čāndrāṇu,
چاندَریَنو	čāndriṇō,

28) Themes in ūṇō (ūṇikō).

a) This affix is identical with the preceding, but the union-vowel has been exchanged for ū; in signification there is no difference; e. g.:

سَیْثُہُونو sēṭhūṇō, of a Sēṭh, from سَیْثُہ sēṭhe, a whole-sale merchant.

وَاطُونو vātūṇō, oral, from وَاطُ vātu, mouth.

اَگُونو agūṇō, preceding, from اَگُ agū, front.

کَالُہُونو kālūṇō, of yester (— day or night), from کَالُہ kālha, yesterday.

To the affix ūṇō the affix kō (ikō) may be super-added, without altering the signification in any way, as:

اَگُونِکُو agūṇikō, the same as: اَگُونو agūṇō.

b) There is another affix ūṇō, which is joined to numerals, identical in form with the preceding, but of different origin. It is derived from the Sansk. noun गुण (quality), with elision of g in Sindhī and prolongation of ū. In Panjābī both forms, guṇā and uṇā, are in use, so that there cannot remain any doubt about its derivation.¹⁾ It forms adjectives from numerals, signifying: having such a quality, or: manifold, as:

ہِیکُونو hēkūṇō, single (having a single quality), from ہِیکُ hēku, one.

پَنجُونو panjūṇō, quintuple, from پَنج panja, five.

سَوُونو saūṇō, hundredfold, from سَو saū, hundred.

1) Compare also the Persian گَانَه, as: دُو گَانَه twofold etc.

29) Themes in āṇī.

This affix, corresponding to the Sansk. affix आयनि, forms patronymics or nouns denoting descent; the short final 'i' of the Sansk. affix has been lengthened in Sindhi, as in other similar nouns. A final short vowel is dropped before this affix, likewise ō; final ī is changed to y (= i) and ū is shortened; e. g.:

مَحْمُودَانِي mahmūdānī, son or descendant of مَحْمُود mahmūdu.

آريَانِي āryānī, son of آري āri.

آدُوانِي āḍuānī, son of آدُ āḍu.

بَاگانِي bāgānī, son of باکو bāgō.

30) Themes in īṇō.

This affix corresponds to the Sansk. affix इन and forms adjectives denoting relation or descent; as:

سَنَكِينُو saṇīṇō, affianced, from سَنَك saṇu, connexion by marriage.

وَاسِينُو vaṣīṇō, subjected, from وَس power.

31) Themes in āṭhō.

This affix coincides with the Sansk. affix आठ (with transition of ṭ into ṭh); it forms possessive nouns, as in Sanskrit; e. g.:

پَانِيَاڻُ پَانْيَاڻُ pānyāṭhō, damp (containing water), from پَانِي pānī, water.

چَہَرَاڻُ چَہَرَاڻُ ḥabārāṭhō, containing چَہَر چَہَر ḥabāru, a kind of grass.

32) Themes in āsō (āsū).

This affix, corresponding to the Sansk. affix श, forms adjectives, denoting "to be full of", to be provided with"; as union-vowel ā has been inserted; as:

وَارِيَّاسُو vāryāsō, sandy, from وَارِي vārī, sand.

مَوَاسُ mavāsu, full of pride, from مَوْ mau, pride.

33) Themes in hāru or hārō.

This affix is in Sindhī and in the cognate dialects added to verbal nouns (i. e. the Infinitive); it forms a kind of participle, which is commonly used as a substantive noun. In Marāṭhī it forms the participle future, as it implies at the same time the notion of some future act or state; in Sindhī too it is now and then used in a future sense. It is to be noted though, that the Marāṭhī affix is not खार, as commonly shown in Marāṭhī grammars, but आर; a like mistake is generally to be met with in Gujarātī grammars, where it is stated to be नार. In Marāṭhī and Gujarātī the form of the affix is clearly enough आर, corresponding to the Sansk. adjective कार, making, doing, with elision of क. In Sindhī, Hindī and Panjābī it is hār, which form is to be explained in this way, that initial क has been originally aspirated by the following र (which is very frequently the case in Sindhī), and then elided, leaving h (see Intro. §. 8). In Sindhī the form hāru, hārō, is only added to the Infinitive, in other themes the original form kāru has been retained unaltered; e. g.:

سِرَجَنَهَارُ sirjanahāru, the creator, Inf. سِرَجَنُ to create.

لِکھَنَهَارُ likhanahāru, a writer, or one, who is about to write; Inf. لِکھَنُ to write.

34) Themes in kāru, karu.

The original adjective form kāru (in Sindhī also shortened karu) is also (but rarely) in use; it forms adjectives and attributives from substantives; as union-vowel ā is inserted:

جھیراکارُ jhērākāru, } quarrelsome, causing quarrel,
 جھیراکرُ jhērākāru, } from جھیرو jhērō, quarrel.

35) Themes in vānu.

The Sindhī has preserved in this affix the Nom. Sing. of the Sansk. affix वन् (= vān), and discarded the Prākṛit form वन्तो; the same is the case in the cognate dialects, with the exception of the Gujarātī, which uses the termination वन्. It forms adjectives, implying possession; e. g.:

دِیَاوَنُ dayāvānu, compassionate, from دِیَا dayā, compassion.

وِجَاوَنُ vijāvānu, learned, from وِجَا vijā, learning.

سِیلَوَنُ silavānu, virtuous, from سِیل silu, virtue.

36) Themes in vārō.

This is one of the most useful affixes of the modern vernaculars; it may be joined to any verbal noun or substantive, and denotes an owner or actor; this affix is most extensively used in Hindūstānī (vālā), where it is used as a substitute for different formations. It corresponds to the Sansk. affix वल, from which it has been derived by lengthening the root-vowel. It is to be observed, that وارُ must be joined to the formative or oblique case of a noun.

گھَرَوَارُ gharavārō, owner of a house, from گھَرُ gharu, house.

گھَرَانِوَارُ gharanevārō, owner of houses.

دِیَانَوَارُ dīanavārō, a giver, Inf. دِیَانُ dīānu, to give.

وِچَاوَارُ vicavārō, mediator, from وِچُ viču, midst.

بِہِیَانَوَارُ bēriavārō, boatman, from بِہِی bēri, boat.

37) Themes in yō.

The affix yō, corresponding to the Sansk. affix य, forms adjectives from substantives, as:

بہاگيو bhāgyō, fortunate, from بهائی bhāgu, fortune; luck.

ويکويکي vikevikhyō, a grumbling person, from ويک ويک vikevike, grumbling.

جويو jōyo, effeminate, from جوم (زوم) jōe, wife.

Chapter IV.

Formation of Diminutives.

§. 11.

The Sindhī evinces a great facility in forming different kinds of Diminutives; it surpasses in this respect all the kindred dialects, being able to derive diminutives from any substantive, adjective or even participle.

The one method, to express the idea of a diminutive, is, to substitute the feminine termination for the masculine, the feminine expressing generally: smallness, littleness, nicety, as: کاتُ kātu, m. a large knife, کاتي kātī, fem. a small knife (cf. §. 5, VI, 2, c).

An old diminutive formation has been preserved in a few straggling words, ending in ōṭru (ōṭrō) or ōṭu (ōtō); the same formation is still current in the Paštō (ōṭai, ūṭai), where diminutives are regularly derived by means of this affix. The origin of this diminutive affix is rather uncertain; e. g. Sindhī:

باهوٽي bāhōṭī, a small fire, from باه bāhe, fire; جاموٽر jāmōṭru, the headman of a village (literally: a little جَامُ jāmu or Jām, prince); دِيَاتِي diātī, a small light, from دِيُو diō, an oil-light.

Besides these formations the Sindhī uses for the purpose of forming diminutives proper two affixes, which are originally identical; viz.: ēro (= rō, the union-vowel 'i' having been produced to ē, on account of the accent), which is added to adjectives only, and rō, which is promiscuously joined to adjectives and substantives. Both these affixes correspond to the Sanskrit diminutive affix र r, from which the Sindhī, after its own peculiar method, has managed to form two separate diminutive affixes. The other diminutive affix of the Sanskrit, क k, is not in use in Sindhī, but is so in Hindī, Marāṭhī and Panjābī.

1) The affix ērō.

This diminutive affix is, as noted already, added to adjectives only and implies: somewhat more or less (as the case may be), rather, very; e. g.:

دِرِگھِرُو drighērō, somewhat long, adj. دِرِگھُو drighō, long.

تھوَرِرُو thōrērō, rather little, adj. تھوَرُو thōrō, little.

گھٹِرُو ghaṭērō, rather deficient, adj. گھٹِ ghaṭe, deficient.

2) The termination rō, fem. rī.

This diminutive affix is joined to substantives and adjectives, even to such, as have already received the affix ērō; it denotes smallness, littleness, deficiency, tenderness or contempt. In order to point out more effectually the idea of the diminutive, the feminine termination rī may be chosen, instead of the masculine. The Sindhī poets use the diminutives with great taste and delicacy, and know to give different shades to their pictures by their proper application. The final vowels undergo the following changes before the addition of the affix rō (rī):

- 1) Final u (m.) is changed to 'a' or 'ī', with the exception of fem. nouns ending in 'u', which remain unaltered.
- 2) In the same way final ō is changed to 'a' or 'ī'.
- 3) Final 'a' remains unaltered.
- 4) Final 'ī' remains unaltered or passes (for euphony's sake) into 'a'.
- 5) Final ī and ū are shortened with a subsounding 'a' (as union-vowel).

Final 'u'.

پَندھَرَو pandharō, a short journey, from پَندھ pandhu, journey.

هَاتِرِي hatirī, a small shop, from هَات haṭu, shop.

جَندُرَو jindurō, short life, from جَند jindu, life, fem.

وَجُرِي vijurī, a small flash of lightening, from وَجُ viju, fem., lightening.

Final ō.

هِنَرَو hīarō heart (endearing), from هِنو hīō, heart.

بَهَلِرَو bhōlirō, a small monkey, from بَهَلو bhōlō, monkey.

تَهَرِرَو thōrirō,	} very little, from تَهَرَو thōrō, little.
تَهَرِيرَو thōrērīrō,
	} extremely little.

Final 'a'.

دِهِيَرِي dhiarī, a little daughter, from دِهِي dhia, daughter.

Final 'ī'.

اَكِهِي akhirī, a small eye, from اَكه akhe, eye.

گَالِهِي galharī, a short word, from گَالِه galhe, word.

Final ī and ū.

مندھیرۆ mandhiarō, a small churning staff, from مندھي mandhī, a churning staff.

بهتري bhatuarī, a small scorpion, from بهتو bhatū, a scorpion.

Chapter V.

Compound nouns.

§. 12.

I. Nouns compounded with a preceding particle.

- 1) Nouns compounded with the negative particles a, ana, nā, nir, ni, ma.

All these negative particles are of Sanskrit origin and used in the same way and in the same sense, as in the Sanskrit. The negative particle 'a' is only used with adjectives, ana chiefly with participles and Gerundives, rarely with adjectives; nā with adjectives, and the shortened form na with Gerundives and participial adjectives; nir and ni (with assimilated r), only with adjectives (and abstracts, derived from adjectives). We have not mentioned expressly the negative particle dur (دُر), which belongs to the same class, as it occurs in such formations only, as are borrowed directly from the Sanskrit and have already passed through the process of assimilation, usual in Sindhī, as: دُڪَالُ ḍukālu, famine, Sansk. दुष्काल (see Introd. §. 16, B). For the sake of a general survey we have summed up here all the negative prefixes, though the nouns compounded with them belong to the subsequent classes of compounds, as far as their composition is concerned.

Prefix a: أَچِيتُ acētu, thoughtless; thence.

أَچِيتَائِي acētāī, }

2) Nouns compounded with the privative particles rē, without, and bē, without.

The privative particle rē, which is also used as a preposition, and as such always requires the Formative (oblique case), is derived from the Sanskrit preposition रुते (Prākṛit रिते = रिए, and contracted रे rē) without, excepted; बे is borrowed from the Persian and corresponds originally to the Sansk. prefix वि. These prefixes are in Arabic writing generally written separately and not joined to the noun, as:

- rē: ري كمو rē-kamō, useless.
ري پانيو rē-pānyō, waterless.
ري چيو rē-čayō, untractable.

سَبَّوْجھو sabōjhō, intelligent.

سَپُٽرو saputrō, having a son.

II. Nouns compounded with a substantive, adjective or numeral.

The Sindhī generally follows in the formation of its compound nouns the rules of the Sanskrit, though the compounds cannot be formed in Sindhī in the same unlimited number, as in Sanskrit, the want of case-inflexions offering an essential obstacle. No compound can be formed from more than two nouns, a noun compounded of three words is a linguistic impossibility in Sindhī, as in such a compound all idea of coordination or subordination would be completely lost. We shall consider the compounds current in Sindhī under the received Sanskrit appellations.

- 1) So-called Tatpuruṣa compounds, or conjunction of two nouns, of which the former stands in a case-relation with the latter.

These compounds are rarely used in common conversation, but more extensively in poetical compositions. The former of the two nouns, which is dependent on the latter, must consequently be placed in the Formative, to express thereby its grammatical dependency. In reference to the method of writing these compounds there is no fixed rule; some of them, in which the idea of unity prevails so much, that they are considered as one word, are joined in writing accordingly; others again, in which the conjunction is more loose, are written separately; e. g.:

اُتَر وَاو utara-vāu, north-wind.

گھَر دھَنِي ghara-dhanī, master of the house.

مَتھِي کھَاو mathē-khāu, torturer, literally: eating one's head.

دِسَ نِڪَالَو dēsa nikālō, banishment.

ڪَرَن ٽُر ٽُرُو karane-ṭruṭrō; a lazy fellow; literally: broken of hands.

پَان بَهَرُو pāna bharū, selfish; literally: filling oneself.

A peculiar kind of compound is formed by an adjective joined to a substantive, which by the addition of the affix vārō (see §. 10, 3, b) is turned again into a possessive noun; the adjective must in this case agree with its substantive in gender, number and case. Such compounds are, as far as their signification is concerned, Bahuvrīhis, but according to their composition Tatpuruṣas; for the latter reason we have inserted them in this place; as:

بِي دِسَ وَارُو biē dēsavārō, a foreigner (a man of another country).

تِڪِهي سُر ٽِوارُو tikhia-surtevarō, a man of sharp understanding.

چَنڪِي پَه وَارُو čaṇē pahavarō, a man of good counsel.

More poetical are compounds like:

وَڌِي دِل دَاتَا vāḍia dile dātā, a munificent giver (a giver of a great heart).

2) So-called Dvandvas, or aggregation of nouns.

In the sense of the Sanskrit Grammar there are no Dvandvas in Sindhī. Two nouns are frequently joined in Sindhī, expressing one common idea, but grammatically they are treated as two separate words. In Sindhī, as well as in the other cognate dialects, two nouns are frequently joined together, of which the latter is without a proper meaning, and only added to render the sound more full; these compounds are called alliterations.

وَتَهُ پُجُ vāthu puju, f., hurry; literally: taking (وَتَهُ) arriving (پُجُ).

چَنکُو بَهَلُو čaṇō bhalō, very good; very well.

مَتَا سَتَا mātā sātā, exchange (مَتَا and سَتَا, both signifying exchange).

گَهَاتِ وَدِه ghātē vadhe, less or more.

جُھُرُ پُھُرُ jhuru phuru, rainy weather (جُھُرُ cloudiness; پُھُرُ drop).

اَجُ صِبْهَن aju subāṇā, in a day or two; literally: today, to-morrow.

بَاکَا شَاکَا baka šaka, prattle; بَاکَا talking, chatting, شَاکَا being a meaningless alliteration.

But more frequently than by aggregation the Sindhī joins two nouns by inserting the Persian copula ō (frequently nasalized = ō̃); the final vowel of the preceding noun is dropped before it and both words are joined into one and written accordingly; in some instances though the final vowel of the preceding noun keeps its place before ō. These compounds are Dvandvas in a grammatical sense, only the latter noun being subject to the laws of inflexion.

رَاتَوَدِيْهُ rātōḍīhu, night and day.

هَنْدَهَوَهَنْدَه handhōhandhu, every place.

رَاتَوَرَاتِ rate-ō-rate, every night; night by night.

پَرَوَپَرِ parōpare, kind by kind = every kind.

The conjunction may also be effected by the Persian copulative particle ā, in the same way as by ō;
this ā too is very frequently nasalized in Sindhī = ā̃;
the final vowel of the preceding word always disappears before ā or ā̃; as:

مُكْهَامُكْهِي mukhāmukhī, meeting; literally: tête-à-tête.
 مُكْهَامِيلُو mukhāmēlō, assembly; literally: face and meeting.

وِيرَاوِيرَا vērāvēra, adv., always; literally: time and time.
 (وِيرَا).

3) So-called Karmadhārayas, or descriptive compounds.

The Sindhī is now too simple, to admit of new compounds of this kind; the common rule is, as in the other dialects, that the adjective precedes its substantive and agrees with the same in gender, number and case. Some remnants however of original Karmadhāraya compounds have been preserved in Sindhī, and what is still more remarkable, the Sindhī has formed some similar compounds out of its own resources, in which the adjective is joined to the substantive in its original (else not occurring) crude state. It is to be noted, that all compounds of this description are written in one word; e. g.:

مَهَاجَنُ mahājānu, a great merchant, Sansk. महाजन.

مَهَارَاجُ mahārāju, } a great prince.
 مَهَارَاجُ mahārāju, }

وَدَّكَهَائُو vaddakhāū, a glutton (great eater).

گَهَنَگْهَرُو ghanaghurō, well-wishing.

مَثْهَگْهَرُو mathaghurō, ill-wishing.

پَرَمَارْثُ paramārthu, benevolence.

پَرَالُو paralōku, the other world.

4) So-called Dviguṣ, or collective compounds.

This class of compounds, which is formed by a preceding numeral, is in frequent use in Sindhī; e. g.:

بِپَهَرِي bipaharī, midday; compounded of بِ bī, two and پَهَرِي, a watch of three hours.

بِهَرِ bihare, a pair of water wheels.

چَوَماَسُو čaumāsō, a space of four months = the rainy season.

چَوَواٹُو čauvātō, a place, where four roads meet; literally: having four roads.

پَنجَسَنَانِي panjasnānī, washing of the five parts of the body (= head, two hands, two feet).

بَارَهَنمَاسِي bārahāmāsī, a year = a twelvemonth.

5) The so-called Bahuvrīhis, or relative compounds.

This class of compounds, denoting possession or relation, which again comprises all the four preceding classes, by changing them into adjectives, is still very numerous in Sindhī; for either original Bahuvrīhi compounds are borrowed directly from the Sanskrit, or new compounds are formed according to the same principles, which are laid down in Sanskrit. The final noun receives generally the adjectival affix ō (see §. 10; 14); in such compounds, as are taken directly from the Persian, the final noun may remain unchanged, its relative signification having been fixed already in Persian.

a) Bahuvrīhi formations from Tatpuruṣa compounds.

رَتَوَرَنُو rata-varanō, having the colour of blood.

مَتَهْمُو matha-muhō, haughty; from مَتَهْ top, and مُهْ (= مُنْهْ) mouth.

پِٹَارْتِهِي pētārthī, glutton; from پِٹِ pēṭu, belly, and اَرْتِهِي arthī, having an object; having the belly for one's object.

b) Bahuvrīhi formations from Karmadhāraya compounds.

وَدَّوَاتَوِ vadaṇātō, loquacious; literally: having a big mouth.

كَهَنَبَجَوِ ghaṇa-bijō, having much seed.

تَهَوَّرَيرَمَوِ thōra-vēramō, having little delay = quick.

صَافِدِلِ sāfu-dile, having a pure heart; Pers.

خُوشِيَالِ xuš-xiālu, joyful; Pers.

c) Bahuvrīhi formations from Dvigu compounds.

چَوَدَرَوِ čaudarō, having four doors.

بِمَنَوِ bimaṇō, containing two maunds.

بَارَهَنَمَاهَوِ bārahāmāhō, yearly = containing twelve months.

d) Bahuvrīhi formations from such compounds, as are preceded by an adverb or prefix.

سَپُتَرَوِ sapuṭrō, having a son.

سُچِيتُ sučētu, attentive.

کُمَتِيَوِ kumatyō, dishonest.

Chapter VI.

Gender of nouns.

§. 13.

It has been stated already, that the Sindhī has lost the Neuter, most of the original neuter nouns having assumed a masculine, a less number the feminine termination. The gender of a Sindhī noun is easily recognizable, as every noun must end in a vowel; some terminations admit of no exceptions, others are common to both masculine and feminine nouns.

The termination ō is masculine without any exception; the termination ā is feminine without any exception; all the other terminations contain more or less exceptions.

1) The termination 'u'.

The termination 'u' is, according to its origin, generally masculine; but as original Sanskrit-Prākṛit themes, ending in 'u' and being of the feminine gender, have been mixed up with it, a number of nouns have retained the feminine gender. In some of them an original feminine termination has been dropped and 'u' substituted in its place, whereas the gender of the noun has been preserved; in others again no reason can be detected, why they have been treated as feminines in Sindhī, the masculine gender having been retained in the cognate dialects; some few of them are of unknown origin, on which we cannot venture any conjecture.

As a general rule we may state, that, abstracted from the termination, all nouns are feminine, which imply a female being, as: ماء māu, mother; دھئی dhiu, daughter; نُھُ nūhu, daughter-in-law; ساسُ sasu, mother-in-law; بھینُ bhēnu, sister; دھینُ dhēnu, milk-cow; گائُون گائُون gāū, cow; with some of them the feminine termination 'ā' is also in use, as: دھئی dhia, نُھُ nūha, بھین bhēna.

The following is a list of nouns ending in 'u', which are feminine:

آج aḥu, f., to-day; Sansk. अद्य, adv., Hindī आज, adv.
 आंसु ansu, f., offspring; Sansk. अंश, m.; Hindī अंस, m.

बबूर, f.

बिंदु, m.

तर्कु; in Sindhī r has been pushed forward, to keep its place the more easily in conjunction with the cerebral; see Introd. §. 15, B, a.

جَرُ jaru, f., leech, afterbirth. Two words have been apparently melted into one. جَرُ leech, corresponds to the Hindūstānī زَلُّ zalū (properly Persian), which has sprung from the Sanskrit जालुका; the final syllable kā has, as elsewhere, been cast off, but the original gender retained. جَرُ afterbirth, has been shortened from the Sansk. जरायु, m., Hindūstānī جِر jēr (Greek: γῆρας). In Hindūstānī the gender of جِر seems to be doubtful, for Shakespear is silent about it; in Hindī it is considered masculine (Thompson, Hindī Dictionary).

جِنْدُ jindu, f., life; borrowed from the Panjābī, where it is likewise fem.

جَوْ jā-u, f., sealing-wax; origin unknown.

چِهْلُ čhilu, f., bark, peel; Sansk. छल्लि or छल्ली; the original fem. termination i (ī) has been lost in this noun, but the gender retained; besides چِهْلُ the form چِهْل is also in use.

چِزُ čizu, f., thing; taken from the Hindūstānī (Persian) where it is fem.

دِهَاتُ dhātu, f., root; metal. Sansk. धातु, m.; Hindī धात or धातु, m., but used as fem. in the sense of semen virile.

هِنْدْ hindu, f., India; originally an Arabic-Persian word, derived from the province nearest to the Persians, i. e. सिन्धु (by change of s into h); Hindūstānī:

هِنْدْ, m.

هِنْدْ hiṇu, f., assa foetida; Sansk. हिङ्गु, m.; Hindī हिंग् or हीग् or हिङ्गु, m.

Under this head we must class all the imitative sounds, which end in 'u', and which are considered fe-minines, because their final 'u' is not subject to inflexion; the same may be stated of some Dvandvas, which consist properly of two Imperatives, ending in 'u', and which are likewise treated as feminines, being exempt from the laws of inflexion.

أَجْ وَاجْ aċu vañu, f., coming going (Imper.).

جَهْنُ جَهْنُ jhāu jhāu, f., grumbling (imitative sound).

چَوَّ چَوَّ ča-u, ča-u, f., } talking (Imper.).

تَّوَّ تَّوَّ tāu tāu, f., gabbling (imitative sound).

وَّثَّ وَثَّ vaṭhu puṭu, f., hurry (Imper.).
etc. etc. etc.

2) The termination ū.

The termination ū is generally masculine; there are however some exceptions, the gender of which is regulated either by original Sanskrit usage, or by the practice of the cognate dialects. The imitative sounds, ending in ū or ũ, are all treated, on account of their inflexibility, as feminine. Such exceptions are:

آبِرُو ābirū, f. (also: آَبِرُو ābirūe), honour; Hindūstānī
آَبِرُو, f. (Pers.)

آَنُون āñū, f., pride, egotism; identical with the I. personal pronoun of the Sing. J (Panjābī: haū, f.).

بُهْر bhū, f., earth (also: بَهْرِي bhue); Sansk. भू, f.

تَرُو tarū, f., a fine cord of camel's hair (root: تَرَن to pass through).

جُون jū, f., louse (also: جِي jua); Hindī जू, f., Sansk. यूका, f.

چَمَجُون čamañū, f., a kind of louse, adhering to the skin (چَم).

رُون رُون rū rū, f., imitative sound; the hum of a spinning wheel.

كُوْ كُوْ kū-kū, f., imitative sound, by which a dog is called.

كَئُ كَئُ gāū, f., cow; the same as كَئُ.

لُون lū, f., small hair on the limbs (also: لُون lūa);
Sansk. लोमन्, n.; Hindī लोम्, m.

وَهْ vahū, f., daughter-in-law; Sansk. वधू, Hindī बहू.

3) The termination ā

The termination ā comprises, according to its origin, as we have seen, mostly feminine nouns; there are however a few masculine nouns, ending in ā, the gender of which is, in most cases, already fixed by the signification of the noun itself, or by the language, from which the noun in question is taken; such exceptions are:

رَاجَا rājā, prince; Sansk. Nom. राजा, m.

لَالَا lālā, master; lord; Hindī लाला.

كَرْتَا kartā, the agent (in grammar); Sansk. Nom. कर्ता.

آتْمَا ātma, soul; Sansk. Nom. आत्मा, m.

مَآخُولِيَا māxūliya, melancholy, Arab.; Hindūstānī, masc.

دَیْوَتَا dēvatā, Deity; Hindī देवता, f.; Sanskrit देवता, f.

4) The termination ī

The termination ī is, as stated already, divided between masculine and feminine nouns, yet so, that the feminine prevail considerably in number. All nouns denoting a male being (man or beast) are of course masculine, whereas nouns, denoting a female being, inanimate objects or abstract qualities are feminine; contrary to this general rule the following nouns are masculine:

آسِرِي āsirī, a large kind of tamarisk tree.

بَانْدِهِي bāndhī, a log of wood floating in the river.

بُنْدِي bundī, the muzzle of a gun-barrel.

بِهَاجَتِي bhaḥaṭī, name of a plant (Desmochaeta lap-pacea).

پَاكِ pākī, razor (by the Hindūs used as fem.)

پَانِي pānī, water.

پَكْهِي pakhī, bird.

تَهْدِي thudī, the lower stalk of a plant.

تِكِي tikī, a cake.

چَهَاتْهِي chathī, a religious ceremony, performed on the sixth day after childbirth.

دَوْغِي dōgī, a thick stick.

دَهْرِي dharī, a coloured edge to a cloth.

سُرْجَمُكْهِي surjamukhī, sunflower.

کُنْدَلِي kundalī, horoscope.

کَهَارِي ghārī, a stripe left unfinished.

کَهْتِي ghitī, a lane, alley.

لَاڈِي lādī, the ropes of a boat.

مُشْتَرِي muštārī, the planet Jupiter.

مُنْدْهِي mundhī, head.

مَوْتِي mōtī, pearl.

وَانْگِي vāngī, a stick with ropes hanging from it, to carry water pots, etc.

5) The termination i' (ë).

The termination 'i' (ë) is, with that of ä, the regular feminine ending in Sindhī. There are however a few masculine nouns, ending in 'i', which are mostly borrowed from foreign languages. As in conformity with the Sindhī laws of sound no word can end in a silent consonant, the quick and hardly perceptible sound 'i' (ë) has been added to some words, which end originally in a silent consonant, to render them susceptible of inflexion; to some foreign nouns too, which end in ā, the short vowel 'i' has been added, for euphony's sake, which however may interchange with 'u' in some cases.

أَحْمَدِ ahmade, Nom. prop.

خُدَاةَ xudāe, God (Pers.).

خِزِرِ xizire, Nom. prop. of a fabulous prophet.

رَاةَ rā-e (or: رَاةَ), prince; Hindī राज.

سَيْتِهَ sēthe, a Hindū wholesale merchant; Hindī.

قَيْصَرِ qaisare, Cæsar.

In some few instances original final ë of the Sanskrit has been preserved, without having been lengthened, as is usually the case in Sindhī, as:

پَتِي pa-e, lord (also: پَتِي patī); Sansk. पति.

وَرَسَپَتِ viraspate, the planet Jupiter; Sansk. बृहस्पति.

هَرِ hare, Viṣṇu; Sansk. हरि; Hindī हरि or हरी.

In others again original ī has been (contrary to the usual rule) shortened to i, as:

كِهَرِ kēhare, lion, or: كَيْسَرِ kēsare, Sansk. केसरी.

كُوْةَ kūe, street, besides: كُوْئِي kūī, Pers.

سَهَاةَ sahāe, helper, besides: سَهَائِي sahāī.

Others again are to be taken as Bahuvrīhi compounds, in which final i (ě) may be preserved (see §. 12, 5. 6.), as:

صَافِدِلِ sāfudile, a sincere man = having a pure heart.

أَدِهْوَادِهْ adhō-adhe, half-sharer = having half and half.

Chapter VII.

Formation of the Feminine from masculine bases.

§. 14.

The formation of the feminine from masc. nouns agrees in the main with Sanskrit and Prākṛit usage. In some instances feminine derivatives have been taken directly from the Sanskrit or Prākṛit, subject, of course, to the peculiar assimilating process of the Sindhī, as; رَانِي rānī, queen, Sansk. राज्ञी (see: Introd. §. 14, b.). Such like formations we shall pass by in the following remarks and only attend to the laws still current in Sindhī.

The Sindhī possesses in some cases separate words, to express the idea of the feminine, so that the process of deriving the feminine from the masc. base is superseded. These instances however are restricted to nouns, implying relationship, and the names of the commonest domestic animals, where the language has preferred to create separate words, instead of deriving them from the corresponding masc. base; as:

بِهِنَ bhēṇa, sister; بَهَاءَ bhāu, brother.

دِهِي dhia, or دِهي dhiu, پُترُ putru, son.
daughter;

مَاءَ māu, mother; پِي پِي piu, father.

وَهُو vahū, daughter-in-law; جَاتِرُو jātrō, son-in-law.

دَاچِي dācī, a female camel; دَاگَهو dāghō, a male camel.

گاو ga-ū, cow;

ڏانڊو dāndu, ox.

مينه mēhe, a female buffalo;
falo;

سان sānu, a male buffalo.

From other masc. bases the Sindhī forms regularly a feminine, as far as this is admissible; some nouns are only extant in the feminine, the masculine being out of place or having disappeared from the language.

1) Formation of the Feminine from masc. nouns in 'u'.

From substantives ending in 'u' the Sindhī forms the Feminine by changing 'u' into ī or ĩ (ē); with adjectives the termination 'ī' (e) or 'a' may be optionally used. In the case of the substantives the use of the termination ī or ĩ (e) is more or less optional, but in some of them one or the other is preferred.

ڇوڪري čhōkarī, } girl, from ڇوڪرو čhōkaru, boy.
ڇوڪري čhōkare, }

گڏهه gaḍahe, jenny-ass, from گڏهو gaḍāhu, jack-ass.

پرت partē, washerwoman, from پرتو partu, washerman.

دهير dhīra or دھير dhīre, firm, from دھيرو dhīru, adj. m.

Besides this common formation of the feminine another method of forming the same by means of the affixes nī, ni, ānī, āni, is in use, which are however only added to nouns denoting human beings, castes, occupations etc. very rarely to names of animals or to adjectives.

All these affixes correspond to the Sansk. affix आनी (= न, see Bopp, Compar. Gram. §. 840), as: इन्द्राणी the wife of Indra etc. In Sindhī the original affix ānī (with change of the dental to the cerebral) has either been preserved, or ā (see Bopp sub loco) has again been cast out, and only nī (ne) added. All these affixes are joined to the feminine termination (i, seldom to ā), as:

جَتْنِ jāṭine,	}	the wife of a جَٹ Jat.
جَتْنِي jāṭinī,
جَتْيَانِي jāṭy-ānī,
گَاهِنِ gāhine,	}	a female singer; masc. not in use.
گَاهِيَانِي gāhyānī,
بَرُوچَانِي ¹⁾ bārōcānī, the wife (or female) of a بَرُوچ or Beluch.

شِينِهَن sīhane,	lioness, from شِينِه sīhu, lion.
چُھوٹْنِ chūṭine,	}	swift, from چُھوٹُ chūṭu, adj. m.
چُھوٹْنِي chūṭinī,
چُھوٹْيَانِي chūṭyānī,

2) Formation of the Feminine from masculine nouns in ō.

From masc. nouns ending in ō the feminine is formed by changing ō into ī, as:

چھوڑِي chhōrī, a female orphan, from چھوڑو chhōrō, orphan, m.

گُولِي gōlī, a slave-girl, from گولو gōlō, a slave m.

Besides this feminine termination the affixes nī, ni, ānī, āni are also in use with nouns denoting caste, trade or occupation, as:

لَنگھِنِ langhine,	}	the wife (or female) of a لَنگھو langhō or drummer (by caste).
لَنگھِنِي langhinī,
لَنگھِيَانِي langhyānī,
لَنگھِيَانِي langhyāine,

1) After a Palatal short i is frequently cast out.

3) Formation of the Feminine from masculine nouns in ū.

Masc. nouns ending in ū form the feminine by the affixes nī or ni, with the union-vowel i, by which final ū is dislodged; final ū may also be shortened to 'u', which serves at the same time as union-vowel, e. g.:

هِنْدِيّ	hindinī,	} the wife (or female) of a هِنْدُو, Hindū.
هِنْدِي	hindine,
or:

هِنْدُونِي	hindunī	}
هِنْدُون	hindune

The affixes ānī or āni are also in use, before the addition of which final ū is always shortened to 'u', as:

هِنْدُونِيّ	hindu-ānī,	} a Hindū female.
هِنْدُون	hindu-āne,

4) Formation of the Feminine from masculine nouns in ī and ĩ.

From masc. nouns ending in ī and 'i' (e) the feminine is formed by means of the affixes nī, ni or ānī; final ī is shortened to 'i', and serves thus as union-vowel; as:

كُورِيّ	kōrinī,	} the wife (female) of a كُورِي kōrī, weaver.
كُورِن	kōrine,
كُورِيَانِي	kōryānī,
سَيْتِهِي	sēthinī,	} the wife (female) of a سَيْتِه sēthe, a Hindū wholesale merchant.
سَيْتِهِن	sēthine,
سَيْتِهِيَانِي	sēthyānī,

Note. The cognate dialects form the feminine from masc. nouns in the same way as the Sindhī, by changing either the masc. termination to the feminine, or by adding one of the above-mentioned fem. affixes.

The Hindī and Hindūstānī approach the Sindhī very closely in this respect; they form the feminine either by substituting the feminine termination ī, as: لَرْكِي larkī, girl, from لَرْكَ larkā, boy, بَرَاهْمَنِي brāhmanī, the wife (or female) of a Brāhman, from بَرَاهْمَن brāhman; or by adding one of the affixes an, in, ānī, to the masc. base, as: سُنَّارَن sunāran (or sunārin), the wife of a سُنَّار sunār, goldsmith; شِيرَنِي šērni, a lioness, from شِير šēr, a lion; مِهْتَرَانِي mehtarānī, the wife (daughter) of a mehtar, or sweeper.

The same law holds good in Gujārātī; either the feminine termination ī is substituted for the masculine, as: कुतरी a female dog, from कुतरो a male dog, or the feminine affixes एण, णी or आणी are added to the masc. base, as: वाघेण a tigress, from वाघ tiger; ऊंदणी, a female camel, from ऊंद a male camel; धणिआणी mistress, from धणी lord.

The formation of the feminine is quite analogous in the Panjābī; for the masc. termination is either changed to the feminine, as: ghōṛī, a mare, from ghōṛā, a stallion, or the feminine affixes aṇ, ṇī, āṇī are added to the masc. base, as: uskaṇ, a slanderous woman, from uskaṇī, a slanderous man; ūṇī, a female camel, from ūṇ, a male camel; mugalāṇī, the wife (or daughter) of a mugāl.

The Marāṭhī forms the feminine from nouns in 'a' (quiescent) or ā by substituting the fem. termination ī, as: मुगली, girl, from मुगला boy; दासी, a slave-girl, from दास a slave; in nouns ending in 'a', the Sansk. fem. termination ā is occasionally to be met with, as: शूद्रा or शूद्री the wife of a शूद्र. Besides these two fem. terminations the affix in or iṇ is to be found in nouns ending in 'a' (quiescent) or ī, as: वाघीण, tigress, from वाघ, tiger, पापीण a sinful woman, from पापी a sinner; धनीन् mistress, from धनी master.

The Bangālī stands nearest to the Sanskrit with regard to the formation of the feminine; it substitutes the fem. terminations ā or ī for those of the masculine, as: tanyā, daughter, from tanya, son; puttrī, daughter, from puttra, son. Adjectives or nouns of agency, ending in ka ('a' being quiescent) form their feminine always in kā, as: kārīkā, doing, from kārak, m., gāyakā, a female singer, from gāyak, a male singer. Nouns in ī (= in) form their feminine by the affix nī, as: hattinī, a female elephant, from hattī, a male elephant; likewise patnī, mistress, from pati, master. Also the use of the affix āṇī or āṇi is strictly in accordance with Sanskrit practice, as: ācāryāṇī, the wife of an ācārya.

We find thus, that all the north-Indian vernaculars of Sanskrit origin fully agree in the formation of the feminine.

SECTION II.

THE INFLEXION OF NOUNS.

Chapter VIII.

I. Formation of the Plural.

§. 15.

The crude form of a Sindhī noun is always identical with its Nominative Singular, the Nominative Singular having no longer a case-sign in any of the modern Ārian tongues.

The Sindhī possesses no definite or indefinite article, as little as the Sanskrit or the Prākṛit; if the one or the other is to be expressed for distinctness' sake, a demonstrative or indefinite pronoun (or the numeral "one") is placed before a noun. There is no longer a Dual in Sindhī, neither in Pāli nor Prākṛit, nor in any of the modern Sanskritical tongues; we have therefore only to describe the formation of the Plural (Nominative), according to the respective terminations of nouns.

1) Nouns ending in ū.

Nouns ending in ū are, as we have stated already, for the greatest part masculine, a few of them only being feminine. According to their respective gender the Plural is formed, as follows:

a) Plural of masculine nouns ending in ū:

These nouns form their Plural by changing ū into ā, as: کھو khūhu, a well, Plur. کھو khūha, wells; ڄو varu, husband, Plur. ڄو vara. If final 'u' be preceded by short 'a', a euphonic v is inserted in the Plural, as: راو ra-u, weed, Plur. راو rava, weeds. But if final 'u' be preceded by any other vowel, but short 'a', the insertion of v is optional, as: كَهَاء ghāu, a wound, Plur. كَهَاو ghāva or: كَهَاء ghāa, wounds; دَيُو dēu, a god, Plur. دَيَو dēva or: دَيُو dēa, gods; but when a long vowel, preceding final ū, is nasalized, the insertion of v becomes necessary, as:

تَهَائُو thāu, a dish, Plur. تَهَاو thāva, dishes.

The following two nouns form their Nom. Plural in an irregular way:

بِهَاء bhāu, brother, Plur. بِهَائُر bhāura or: بِهَائُرُو bhāuru, brothers.

پِيُو piu, father, Plur. پِيُور piura, fathers.

Both these Plurals point back to the Prākṛit forms भाञ्जरा (Nom. Sing. भाञ्जरो) and पिञ्जरा (Nom. Sing. पिञ्जरो), and are therefore, properly speaking; not irregular (cf. Varar. V, 35).

Annotation. We have already noticed (§. 5, I.), that the Sindhī termination ū is shortened from the Prākṛit ञो; in Prākṛit nouns ending in ō form their Plural in ā, which has been shortened in Sindhī to ä.

The cognate idioms agree with the Sindhī in this respect. In Hindī and Hindūstānī, this class of nouns, having already dropped the terminating short vowel in the Singular, throw the same off in the Plural likewise, i. e. they remain unaltered in the Plural. The same is the case in Marāṭhī and Panjābī; the Gujārāṭī alone adds the Plural termination ō.

b) Plural of feminine nouns ending in ū.

These nouns form their Plural by changing final ū into ū̄, as:

وَتھُ vathu, a thing; Plur. وَتھُون vathū̄, things; وِجُ viju, lightening; Plur. وِجُون vijū̄, lightnings.

The following nouns have, besides their regular Plural, also an irregular one, as:

بِهِنُ bhēnu, sister (or: بِهِنَ bhēṇa); Plur. بِهِنُونُ bhēṇū or: بِهِنَرُ bhēṇaru, بِهِنَرُونُ bhēṇarū, sisters.
مَاءُ māu, mother; Plur. مَائُونُ māū, or: مَائِرُ māiru,
مَائِرُونُ māirū, mothers.

دِهُي dhiu (or: دِهِي dhia), daughter; Plur. دِهُيُونُ dhiū, or: دِهِارُ dhiaru, دِهِارُونُ dhiarū, daughters.

نُھُ nuhu (or: نُھُ nuha), daughter-in-law; Plur. نُھُونُ nuhū or: نُھَرُ nuharu, نُھَرُونُ nuharū, daughters-in-law.

In the levelling process of decomposition these fem. nouns have adopted the same affix ara (or for euphony's sake: ira), as the irregular Plurals of masc. nouns, and as feminines they have lengthened the same also to arū.

Annotation. In Pāli fem. nouns ending in 'u' remain either unchanged in the Plural, as: yāgu, sacrifice, Plur. yāgu, or ō (the Sansk. Plural affix अस्) is added to them (with inserted euphonic 'y') as: yaguyō; the latter is also the case in Prākṛit, as: bahū, wife, Plur. bahūō, or the affix ō may be again shortened to 'u', as: bahūu. In Sindhī this Plural affix 'u' has been contracted with final 'u' (ū) into ū, and at the same time nasalized = ū̃.

2) Nouns ending in ō (ō̃).

These form their Plural by changing final ō into ā, as: وَاڏھو vāḍhō, a carpenter, Plur. وَاڏھَا tōbō, a diver, Plur. تَوْبَا tōbā, divers. If final ō be nasalized, which is frequently the case, the nasal is also preserved in the Plural, as: چَوَٿھون čōthō̃, the fourth, Plur. چَوَٿھان čōthā̃.

If final ō be preceded by short 'a' (or nasalized: ā), a euphonic v is inserted between them in the Plural, as: تَٿو taō, a pan; Plur. تَوَا tavā, pans; نَنڻون nāō̃, new; Plur. نَنڻَوَان nāvā̃; but if final ō be preceded by any other vowel, the insertion of v is optional, as: कु kuō, mouse, Plur. कु kuā or: कु kuvā; मि mēō, fisherman, Plur. मि mēā or: मि mēvā; कहा ghā-ō, a fish-net, Plur. कहा ghā-ā or: कहा ghāvā.

We have repeatedly adverted to the fact, that the Prākṛit termination ō has in Sindhī either been shortened to 'u', or retained unaltered; the formation of the Plural of the latter description of nouns is quite in accordance with Prākṛit usage (Sing. ō, Plur. ā).

Annotation. In the cognate idioms the masc. termination ā has been substituted instead of ō. In Hindī, Hindūstānī, Marāṭhī and Panjābī masc. nouns ending in ā commonly change the same in the Plural to ē, a Plural termination, which is already in use in the inferior old Prākṛit dialects (see: Lassen, Instit. Ling. Prāk. p. 430). The Gujarātī differs in this respect, as masc. nouns ending in ō add to the Plural termination ā the affix ō, as: छोकरō, a boy, Plur. छोकरā-ō; a similar formation of the Plural is already ascribed to the Māgadhī dialect of the Prākṛit; cf. Lassen, p. 399.

3) Nouns ending in ū, ũ.

Nouns ending in ū or, as it is more common, in ũ, be they masc. or feminine, remain unchanged in the Plural, as: विछũ, m., scorpion, Plur. विछũ; गाũ, fem., cow, Plur. गाũ, cows.

In Pāli, masc. themes ending in 'u', lengthen the same in the Nom. Plural to ū, as भिक्षु, a beggar, Plur. भिक्षु; and such masc. themes, as end in ū in the Nom. Sing., remain unchanged in the Plural, as: अभिhū, a chief, Plur. अभिhū (contracted from अभिbhuvō). In Prākṛit masc. themes ending in 'u' lengthen their final vowel always in the Nominative Sing., to which in the Nom. Plural the affix ō (= अस्) is added, as: वाu, wind, Nom. Sing. वाũ, Nom. Plur. वाũō, winds. This Plural affix ō may in Prāk. be again shortened to 'u', and in the modern dialects it is dropped altogether. In Sindhī ū is usually nasalized = ũ.

Annotation. In Hindī, Hindūstānī, Marāṭhī and Panjābī masc. nouns ending in ū, remain unaltered in the Plural; but fem. nouns add in Hindūstānī the Plural termination ā̃, as jōrū, a wife, plural jōrūā̃, the Prākṛit Plural affix ō being changed to ā, ā̃. The Gujarātī keeps close to the Prākṛit in forming the Plural of masc. nouns ending in ū, by adding the Plural affix ō, as: hindū, a Hindū, Plur. hindūō.

4) Nouns ending in ā (ā̃).

These are, as noticed already (§. 13, 3) for the most part feminine; they form their Plural by adding the Plural affix ū̃, as:

هَاجَا hačā, f., murder; Plur. هَاجَاات hačā-ū̃, murders.

The Plural of these nouns corresponds to the Prāk. Plural termination ā-ō or ā-u, ō (or shortened 'u') being added to final ā of the Singular (see Lassen p. 307). In Sindhī the Prāk. Plur. increment ō has been changed to ū, and at the same time nasalized.

Few nouns ending in ā are masculine; they remain unaltered in the Plural, as: لَالَا lālā, master, Plur. لَالَا لَالَا lālā, masters.

The Prākṛit Plural increment ō (ā-ō) has first been shortened to 'u', and then been dropped altogether in Sindhī.

Annotation. In Hindī and Hindūstānī fem. nouns ending in ā (ā̃) form their Plural by adding the increment ē̃, as balā, misfortune, Plur. balāē̃. This ē̃ corresponds to the Prākṛit affix ō, which in the inferior Prākṛit dialects is frequently changed to ē (cf. Lassen, p. 398, 408). Those masc. nouns, the final ā of which does not correspond to the Sindhī ō, remain likewise unaltered in the Plural. — In Panjābī fem. nouns ending in ā add either ī̃ or iā̃, the Plural increment ī̃ being a change from the Hindī ē̃, and iā̃ from the Prākṛit affix ō, with euphonic 'i' or y. A few masc. nouns remain likewise unaltered in the Plural, as ātmā, soul; pitā, father etc. — The Gujarātī entirely agrees with the Prākṛit, adding simply ō to the fem. nouns in ā, as: mā, mother, Plur. mā-ō. — In Marāṭhī fem. nouns ending in ā do not undergo any change in the Plural, as: mātā, mother, Plur. mātā; some masc. nouns, falling under this head, remain likewise unaltered in the Plural.

5) Nouns ending in ä.

These nouns being all feminine, form their Plural by changing final 'a' either to ũ (as in Lār); or to ā (as in Sirō); تَرَ tara, nostril, Plur. تَرُون tarū or: تَرَان tarā, nostrils.

These nouns have been, as noted already, shortened from Sanskrit-Prākṛit bases ending in ā; they either drop final 'a' before the Plural increment ā (= Prāk. ō), or restore the original ā and drop the Plural increment ō = u, nasalising at the same time the final long vowel.

Annotation. This class of nouns is wantig in the cognate idioms, where final 'a' has become silent; e. g. Hindūstānī: jībh, f., tongue, Plural: jībh-ē, the Plural being made up by the increment ē = Prāk. ō. — Panjābī: bāh, f., arm (Sindhi: بَاه bāha), Plur. bāhā; Marāṭhī: jībh, f. Plur. similarly: jībhā. The Gujarātī is consequent in adding simply the Plural increment ō to fem. bases, ending in a quiescent consonant, as: sājh, f., evening, Plur. sājhō.

6) Nouns ending in ī (ī).

a) Masculine nouns ending in ī remain unaltered in the Plural:

بَلي bēlī, a servant, Plur. بَلي bēlī, servants; پَري prī, friend, Plur. پَري prī, friends.

In Prākṛit masc. nouns ending in ī form their Plural by adding the increment ō, which has been shortened to 'u' and then cast off altogether in Sindhi.

b) Feminine nouns ending in ī add in the Plural the increment ũ, shortening before this affix the preceding long ī, which may also, for euphony's sake, be changed to y; as: گَلي gōlī, a slave-girl, Plur. گَليُون gōliū, gōliyū, gōlyū; نِهَائِي nihāī (or: nihāī), a potter's kiln, Plur. نِهَائِيُون nihāyū.

Feminine nouns in ī add in Prākṛit likewise the affix ō, which may be shortened to 'u'; in this case final 'u' has in Sindhī been lengthened to ū and nasalized at the same time, to distinguish the Plural of the feminine nouns from that of the masculine.

If final ī be preceded by any letter of the palatal class or by 'h', it is commonly dropped before the Plural affix ū, as: مَنجِي manjī, a stool, Plur. مَنجُون manjū, stools; مَنجِي, f., manjhī, a buffalo, Plur. مَنجُون manjhū, buffaloes.

Annotation. In Hindī and Hindūstānī fem. nouns follow the method of the Prākṛit in forming their Plural, with the only difference, that the Prāk. Plural increment ō is changed to ā, and this again nasalized, as čhurī, knife, Plur. čhurīā. Masc. nouns in ī do not differ from their Singular. The Panjābī quite accords with the Hindī, fem. nouns in ī adding the Plural termination ā, as dhī, daughter, Plur. dhīā, the masc. nouns in ī remaining unaltered in the Plural. The same may be remarked of the Marāṭhī. The Gujārātī stands nearest to the Prākṛit in this respect, all nouns, be they masc. or feminine, adding simply the Plural affix ō.

7) Nonns ending in ī (ë).

a) Fem. nouns ending in 'ī' (e) form their Plural by adding the Plural affix ū, as: رَاتِ rāte, night, Plur. رَاتُون rāteū, nights. — If 'ī' be preceded by a palatal or h, it disappears before the Plural termination ū, as: مِينِه mēhe, buffalo, Plur. مِينُون mēhū, buffaloes.

جُوہ jōe, wife, forms its Plural either regularly, as: جُوِيُون jōyū, or irregularly, as: جُوِيَرُ jōiru, جُوِيَرُ jōhiru, or جُوِيَرُون jōirū, wives.

b) Masc. nouns ending in 'ī' (e) remain unchanged in the Plural, as: سِيْتِه seṭhe, a wholesale merchant, Plur. سِيْتِه seṭhe.

Annotation. In Hindī and Hindūstānī, as stated already, final 'i' has been dropped, and such nouns, as end in Sindhī in 'a' or 'i', use there one common Plural increment, viz.: ē. In Gujārātī and Panjābī final 'i' has likewise disappeared in most cases, and ō and ā are respectively added as Plural terminations. In Marāṭhī fem. bases ending in 'i' remain either unchanged in the Plural or have final 'i' lengthened to ī. The lengthening of final 'i' in the Plural is more in accordance with Pāli and Prākṛit usage (e. g. Pāli: ratti, night, Plur. ratti or rattiyo; Prāk. ratti-ō or: ratti-u). Masc. bases ending in 'i' remain similarly either unaltered in the Plural, or (according to some Pandits) lengthen the same to ī (as in Pāli and Prākṛit).

II. Formation of cases; case-affixes.

§. 16.

Properly speaking there is no longer a declension in Sindhī, nor in any of the modern languages of the Ārian stock; there are only a few remnants of the ancient Sanskrit, Pāli and Prākṛit case-inflexions, all the other cases being made up by means of case-affixes or postpositions.¹⁾

If we compare the modern Ārian dialects with the Pāli and Prākṛit, we perceive at once the great deterioration, the modern idioms have undergone in this respect; for while the Pāli and Prākṛit have as yet preserved all the cases of the Sanskrit, with the exception of the Dative, which has already become scarce in Pāli and has been discarded altogether in Prākṛit, its functions being shifted to the Genitive, the modern idioms have lost nearly all power of inflexion and substituted in lieu of flexional increments regular adverbs, which we generally term postpositions. The same process we can notice in the modern Romanic tongues, where after the loss of the Latin declensional inflexions, prepositions have been substituted to make up for the lost cases.

1) In poetry postpositions may also be placed before the noun, they govern, as the rhythm may require.

The great distinctive feature of the declensional process of the modern Ārian dialects, with the exception of the Bangālī, consists in the fact, that there are properly only two cases of a noun, the absolute or crude form, corresponding throughout to the Nom. Singular, and the Formative case, to which the various adverbs or postpositions are added, which serve to make up for the lost case-terminations. This latter case has been generally called the oblique case by European grammarians, but we prefer to call it the Formative (after the precedence of Dr. Caldwell).

The number of declensions, if they may be termed thus, depends therefore in Sindhī, as well as in the cognate idioms, on the various methods, in which the Formative is made up; for the case-signs remain the same, as well for the Singular as the Plural, since they are, as we shall presently see, originally either (Sanskrit) prepositions or adverbs.

We shall now first investigate the remnants of the ancient case-terminations in Sindhī and the adverbs or postpositions, which have been substituted for such cases, as have lost their original inflexions. In the arrangement of the cases we shall follow the common order, which has been instituted by the old Sanskrit grammarians, in order to facilitate the intercomparison.

1) The Nominative case of the Singular and plural we may pass over, since they have been noticed already.

2) The Accusative case of the Singular and Plural has been dropped in Sindhī, as well as in all the other kindred idioms. This has been already the case in the inferior Prākṛit dialects, and is expressly mentioned of the Apabhraṃśa, the mother of the modern Sindhī (see: Lassen p. 459).

We must keep this fact constantly before our eyes, that in Sindhī, as well as in its sister-tongues, there is no such thing (in a grammatical sense), as an Accusative case, the Accusative being now throughout identical with the Nominative. If we find therefore generally stated in European grammars, that the postposition کھی khē, or کو kō in Hindūstānī serves to denote also the Accusative case, we have, in the strictly grammatical sense of the word, to repudiate such an idea. Who shall see under the Dative case, what the origin of that postposition is, and that will satisfactorily explain the syntactical peculiarities of the modern Indian tongues, which use such and similar postpositions, where we use either the Dative or the Accusative.

3) The Instrumentalis is not distinguished by any case-affix or postposition in Sindhī, but differs from the Nominative Sing. only by the change of the final vowel (where such a change is admissible). The Instrumentalis is in the Singular and Plural identical with the Formative (which see further on). From thence it would follow, that the Instrumentalis is originally the Genitive, which may be rendered very probable by the Instrumentalis of the Plural.

Annotation. The Hindī and Hindūstānī use as Instrumental case-affix nē. In Hinduī (see Garcin de Tassy, Rudiments de la langue Hindouī, 26, 99) we meet further the affixes nē, nē, ni and na, and in the Plural (a)n or nē, nē, ni, as in the Singular. In Panjābī we find the instrumental affix nai, or na, or only ī, or the Formative is promiscuously used for the Instrumentalis, just as in Sindhī. In Gujarātī we meet with ē as Instrumental affix. The Marāṭhī uses for the Instrumentalis Sing. the affix nē, and for the Plural nī. As to the origin of these various instrumental affixes there can hardly be a doubt. The Sansk. instrumental case-inflexion of the Singular nā, na (see Bopp, Comp. Gram. I, §. 158) has been used as a separate adverb in Hindūstānī and Panjābī (not in Marāṭhī, where it coalesces with the noun as a regular inflexion), or even been abbreviated to ī or ē (n being originally only a euphonic addition to the instrumental affix ā), as partly in Panjābī and in Gujarātī. In the Instrumentalis Plur. the Marāṭhī uses also (besides nī) the affix hī, corresponding to the Prāk. Plur. instrumental affix हि or हि; see Lassen, p. 310. In Ban-gālī tē is used as instrumental affix, which is originally identical with the Ablative affix तो = तस्.

4) The Dative case has totally disappeared from the Prākṛit and its functions have been assigned to the Genitive. We find therefore in the modern idioms the greatest discrepancy as to the method, in which the Dative case is provided for. In Sindhī the affix کھی khē is used, as well for the Singular as the Plural, being placed after the Formative Singular or Plural of a noun: as گھَر کھی ghara khē, to a house, گھَرَن کھی gharane khē, to houses. In poetical language the postposition کَن kane or: کَن kane is also used instead of کھی khē, which are apparently derived from the same source, as کھی, only by a different process of assimilation (cf. the Hindī: kan, kane, Hinduī कंह).

Annotation. The Bangālī uses as Dative affix kē, the Hindī and Hindūstānī kō (dialectically also pronounced 'kū' in the Dekhan), the Hinduī (according to Garcin de Tassy) also kō̃, kaū, kah, kāh, kahā and even hi.

Dr. Caldwell, in his Comparative Grammar of the Drāvidian languages has attempted to vindicate the Hindūstānī kō for the Drāvidian languages of the South; he says (p. 225): "In the vernaculars of northern India, which are deeply tinged with Scythian characteristics, we find a suffix, which appears to be not only similar to the Drāvidian, but the same. The Dative-Accusative in the Hindī and Hindūstānī is kō, or colloquially kū; in the language of Orissa ku, in Bangālī ki, in Sindhī khi, in Shingalese ghai; in the Uraon, a semi-Drāvidian Kōle dialect, gai, in the language of the Bodos, a Bhūtan hill tribe, khō, in Tibetan gya. The evident existence of a connexion between these suffixes and the Drāvidian Dative case-sign ku, is very remarkable. Of all the analogies between the North-Indian dialects and the southern, this is the clearest and most important, and it cannot but be regarded as betokening either an original connexion between the northern and the southern races, prior to the Brahmanic irruption, or the origination of both races from one and the same primitive Scythian stock." If this case-sign kō or kū then be the clearest and most important analogy between the North-Indian vernaculars and the Drāvidian tongues, we shall see presently, that there will be no analogy whatever between them, though at the first sight the identity of both seems to be past any doubt. In the first instance the fact speaks already very strongly against such a supposition, that the Marāṭhī, which is the closest neighbour to the Drāvidian tongues, has repudiated the use of khē, kē or kō, and employed a Dative-affix, the origin of which we hope to fix past controversy. We shall further see, that the Gujarātī and Panjābī have also made up for the Dative case by postpositions, borrowed from the Sanskrit, without the slightest reference to the Drāvidian languages, and we may therefore reasonably expect the same fact from the remaining Arian dialects. It would certainly be wonderful, if those Arian dialects, which border immediately on the Drāvidian idioms, should have warded off any Drāvidian influence on their inflexional method, whereas those more to the north should have been "deeply tinged with Scythian characteristics." Fortunately we are able to show, that such an assumption is not only gratuitous, but irreconcilable with the origin of the above mentioned Dative-affixes.

We derive the Sindhī khē, the Bangālī kē, from the Sanskrit Locative कृते, 'for the sake of', 'on account of', 'as regards'. This will at once account for the aspiration of k in Sindhī; for this is not done by chance, but by a strict rule (see Introd. §. 1, e, note); in Bangālī r does not exercise such an influence on the aspiration of a preceding or following consonant, and therefore we have simply kē. The Sanskrit form कृते becomes in Prākṛit first किते, then (by the regular elision of t) किर, and contracted kē, and in Sindhī, by reason of the elided r, khē. The Hindī and Hindūstānī form of this adverb kō we derive in the same way from the Sansk. कृतं which is used adverbially with the same signification as the Locative कृते. In Prākṛit already, and still more so in the modern dialects, the neuter has been merged into the masculine; we have therefore first कितो, thence कियो, and contracted को, kō. We can thus satisfactorily account for the various forms: khē, kē or kō. That the proposed derivation of these adverbs does not rest on a mere fancy, is further proved by the Sindhī particle rē, 'without', which is derived in the same way from the Sansk. Locative अृते, Prākṛit रिते = रिए, and thence contracted rē (ria). It remains now for us to notice briefly the somewhat deviating forms of the Hinduī, as exhibited by Garcin de Tassy. In कौ kō and कौ kaū a euphonic Anusvāra has been added, to which the modern tongues have taken a great fancy; kaū is only a different pronunciation for kō, ō changing in Hinduī very commonly to au. The forms कह kah, or with euphonic Anusvāra कंह kāh or कहं kahā, present again another proof for the correctness of the proposed derivation of these adverbs. For we have in कह, कंह, कहं (Hindī also: kan, kanē, with a full nasal, and in consequence thereof with ejection of h) the same basis as in कौ and कौ, only the assimilating process has been different. The vowel ऋ r, when joined to a consonant, can, according to Prākṛit usage, be resolved either into 'i' (as in किते) or into 'a' (as: कर्त for कृतं) (see Varar. I, 27; Lassen p. 116, 2, a; Introd. §. 1); in consequence of the inherent r the following consonant is aspirated (as in Sindhī: kk = k), so that we get the form कर्थ; this aspirated थ is again elided, so that h only remains (see Lassen p. 207; Introd. §. 8), and thus we have the forms कह, कहं. With the other alleged form हि hi, the matter stands different; we compare this Hinduī Dative affix with the Apabhraṇṣa Genitive affix हे, the Genitive, as noted already, supplying in Prākṛit the place of the Dative (as to the analysis of this हे see Lassen p. 462 and 466).

The Marāṭhī uses two affixes to make up for the Dative, which are joined to the crude form by the so-called union-vowel, viz: स, s and ला lā. The first of these two, s, is identical with the Prāk. Genit.-Dative case termination स्स ss = Sansk. स्य sy, so that we have here the remnant of an ancient Sanskrit-Prākṛit case-inflexion. The latter one, lā is more doubtful as to its origin. Lassen has already started a conjecture (see Instit. Ling. Prāk. p. 55, 99) as to the origin of this affix; he derives it from the Sansk. आल = आलय 'place habitation', signifying the place, where the action rests. We cannot endorse this derivation, as the Marāṭhī case-affix is not आल āla, but ला lā and we cannot see any reason, why initial long ā should have been transferred to the back of this particle. We would compare the Marāṭhī Dative affix lā with the Sindhī postposition lāe, 'on account of', 'for the sake of', 'for', Hindūstānī لِيَّ līe, both of which are derived from the Sansk. root ला (ल) to give (Sindhī: لَائِنُ lāiṇu, to apply). This seems to me to be borne out by the modern Persian Dative-Accusative particle رَا rā, which as yet is very scantily used in the old Pārsī, and which, according to Spiegel's Pārsī grammar (p. 55) does not denote properly a Dative case, but originally signifies 'for the sake of', 'on account of'. The same particle we find also in the Paṣtō, لَ lah, which corresponds to the modern Persian particle رَا. — In Bangālī we meet also (besides kē) especially in poetical language a Dative affix rē, which I do not hesitate to identify with the Marāṭhī ला and the Hindūstānī līe.

In Gujarātī the Dative-affix is nē, which we identify with the Sansk. preposition नि, Greek ἐν, Latin in. The Pan-jābī uses as Dative affix nū, in which we likewise recognise the Sansk. preposition अनु, 'toward', 'to'.

5) The Ablative case is formed in Sindhī by the affix اَنِ ā, which is always connected with the base itself and never written separately. The Sindhī shows itself thus fully conscious of the origin of this case-termination, which corresponds exactly to the Pāli-Prākṛit Ablative case-termination ā, which originates from the Sanskrit ablative आत् by the elision of final t (see Lassen p. 352, 304); in Sindhī the final long vowel has again been nasalized, as in so many other instances. In the Singular final 'u', ō, 'a' are dropped before the affix ā, as: گھران gharā, from a house, nom. گھارو gharu, a house; دَرَان darā, out of a defile, nom. دَرُو darō; زَبَانَن zabānā, from the tongue, nom. زَبَان zabāna, tongue. Those nouns, which end in the Singular in ī (ī) and ū (ū), shorten the same before the affix ā, as: نَوَرَتَان nōriā, from a rope, nom. نَوَرِي nōrī, a rope; مِرْوَان miruā, from a wild beast, nom. مِرْوَن mirū, a wild beast.

Nouns in 'i' (ə) generally retain their final vowel before the affix ā, but they may also drop it, as: پھرتان phurēā, from (by) a robbery, nom. پھر phure, a robbery; نیرتان nirtā, out of thought, with reflexion, nom. نیرت nirte, thought. Nouns in ā either nasalize the same in the Ablative, or, more commonly, use the postposition کہان khā etc. In the Plural the Ablative affix ā is joined to the full Formative in -ne, as: گھرنیان gharane-ā, from houses, میرنیان miruane-ā (میرتیان), from wild beasts etc.

Besides this common Ablative affix ā we find in Sindhī also such forms, as: اُون (اُون), contracted: اُون (اُون), and even اُون (اُون). In the more ancient idiom, as used by the Sindhī poets, the Ablative Singular generally ends in ā-u. All these various Ablative affixes are derived from the Prākṛit Ablative आदौ (see Lassen p. 302, 304, 599), which becomes (by the elision of d) āō, or shortened: āu.

The Sindhī uses also the postposition کہان ¹⁾ khā, کہون khaū, کہون khō, to express the idea of the Ablative; all these and other postpositions require the Formative of a noun. Other postpositions, which are used to make up for the Ablative, see under the list of postpositions.

Annotation. Nearest to the Sindhī comes the Marāṭhī in this respect, which uses as Ablative-case terminations the affixes

1) The postposition کہان khā etc. is derived from the same source, as کہی, with the only difference, that the Ablative termination ā, aū etc. has been added. The same is to be said of the Ablative postposition کان kaṇā, derived from کن, by the same process.

ūn and hūn, occasionally also tūn. In Bangālī and Panjābī we find the Ablative affix tē (though in Panjābī a regular Ablative termination ō is also to be met with), which has sprung from the Prākṛit Ablative termination तो tō; similar to it is the Gujārātī Ablative affix thī, which has been aspirated. In Hindī we find also thī, but most in use is sē, apparently identical with the Prākṛit Genitive termination हे (see Lassen p. 462).

6) The Sanskrit Genitive-case termination स्य, in Pāli and Prākṛit स्स ss, has been lost in all the modern tongues, with the exception of the Bangālī, where ss has been hardened to r. All the other dialects have taken to a new way of forming the Genitive, of which we find already some traces in the old Vedic language: the noun, which ought to be placed in the Genitive case, is changed into an adjective by an adjective affix, and thence follows, as a matter of course, that this so-called Genitive, which is really and truly an adjective, must agree in gender, number and case with its governing noun as all other adjectives.

The Sindhī employs for this purpose the affix جو jō (fem. جي jī), corresponding to the common adjective affix kō (= Sansk. क), with transition of the tenuis (ç = k) in to the media (j), very likely to establish thereby some distinction between these two originally identical affixes. In Sindhī this adjective affix جو jō is always written separately, whereas the common adjective affix kō is joined to the base, as in Sanskrit (see §. 10, 24); it follows always the Formative Sing. or Plur. of a noun, as: گھار جو دھانی ghara jō dhaṇi, the master of the house, گھارن جو دھانی gharane jō dhaṇi, the master of the houses; مُرس جي جو mursa jī jōe, the wife of the man; مُرسن جون جو mursane jū jōyū, the wives of the men. In poetry سندو sandō, 'belonging to', is used quite in the same way, as جو, as:

پَریان سَنَدِی پَارِ ڌِي priyā sandē pāra ḍē, towards the direction of the friends.

Annotation. The Marāṭhī uses as Genitive case-affix चा, with transition of the guttural क into the corresponding palatal, as in Sindhī, yet without changing the tenuis into the media. The Hindī and Hindūstānī have preserved the original Sanskrit adjective affix क, without changing it into the palatal kā; in Hinduī we meet also with the affix ko and kau. The Panjābī and Gujārātī seem to make an exception from what we have just stated. In Panjābī the Genitive case-affix is dā, in which we recognise the Prāk. Ablative affix दो dō (= तस्), turned into a Genitive affix. This Panjābī Genitive case-affix will clear up the Pāṣṭō Genitive prefix 𑀅 da, being identical with it in origin. The Gujārātī employs as Genitive case-affix nō, which is another adjective affix, corresponding in signification with क and used in Sindhī (see §. 10, 27), to form adjectives in the same way, as kō (on the origin of this affix nō see Bopp's Comp. Gram. III, §. 839).

7) The original Sanskrit Locative termination 'i' has been preserved in Sindhī, though the Locative can now only be distinguished in masc. bases ending in 'u', as: هَندِه handhe, in a place, nom. هَندُه handhu; مَتِه mathe, on the top, nom. مَتُه mathu, the top. In nouns, ending in any other vowel, but 'u' (masc.), the Locative must be expressed, for perspicuity's sake, by an adverb or postposition, requiring the Formative of a noun, as: کَوٲِي مَين kōṭhia mē or: کَوٲِي مَنجِه kōṭhia manjhe, in a room. In poetry the Formative of any noun is commonly used also as Locative, without a postposition.

Annotation. In Marāṭhī the Locative affix 'i' has been lengthened to ī and at the same time nasalized = ĩ. Besides this we meet also with the Locative termination आंन्, which is originally the Sansk. Ablative, used as a Locative. In Bangālī the Locative ends in ē (i), as in Sindhī; or is expressed by the affix tē. In Panjābī the Locative is generally expressed by adverbial postpositions, though the Locative itself has not been altogether lost; we find there the affix ī, as in Marāṭhī, or ē, which are always joined to the base of a noun. In Gujarātī the Locative is either expressed by the affix ē, or by the help of postpositions. In Hindī and Hindūstānī the Locative, as a distinctive case, has been quite lost and must always be expressed by postpositions. Still some vestiges of it are lingering in the so-called participles absolute, as: hōtē, or with the emphatic hī, hōtēhī, in being.

Some other idiomatic phrases, as: أُس دِن us din, on that day etc. point also to an original Locative.

8) The Vocative is expressed in Sindhī by prefixing one of the interjectional particles: ē, hē, hō or yā, and, when speaking to an inferior, ṛē (fem. ṛī) or arē.¹⁾ The final vowel of a noun in the Vocative either undergoes a change or remains unaltered. In the Vocative Singular masc. nouns ending in 'u' change the same to 'ā', as: اِي مِيهَارَ ē mēhāra, o buffalo-keeper! nom. مِيهَارَ mēhāru; those ending in ō change the same to ā, as: اِي سُمِيرَا ē sūmirā, o Sūmirō! those ending in ū, ī, 'i' remain unaltered, as: اِي پُنْهُو ē Punhū, o Punhū! In the Vocative Plural nouns ending in 'u' (m.) have the termination ō or ā, as: اِي يَارُو ē yārō or: يَارَا yāra, o friends! (nom. sing. يَارَ); those ending in ō terminate in the Vocative Plur. in ā, ō and au, as: اِي مَنَكْتَا ē mangatā, o beggars! or: مَنَكْتُو mangatō, مَنَكْتَو mangatau (مَنَكْتُو mangata-u), Nom. Sing. مَنَكْتُو mangatō; those ending in ū (ũ) terminate in ō or ā, before which affixes the preceding ū (ũ) must be shortened, as: اِي وَاتَاهُا ē vātāhuā or اِي وَاتَاهُو ē vātāhuō, o travellers! Nom. Sing. وَاتَاهُو vātāhū; those ending in ī terminate in the Plural in ā, ō and au (a-u), shortening at the same time the final ī of the base, as: اِي ڪِچڻا ē kēciā, اِي ڪِچڻو ē kēciō, or: اِي ڪِچڻو ē kēciau, o Kēcis! Nom. Sing. ڪِچي kēcī, an inhabitant of Kēc (in Beluchistān); occasionally 'ah' is added in the Vocative Singular, as: حاميه ḥamiah, o protector! and in the Vocative Plural final ā is even lengthened to 'āhu' for the sake of the rhyme, as: پرياهو priāhu, o friends! those ending in 'i' (e), add in the Vocative Plural simply the affix ō or ā: اِي سِٽهڻو ē sētheō, or: اِي سِٽهڻا ē sētheā, o wholesale-merchants! Nom. Sing. سِٽه sēthe.

1) About the origin of ṛē, ṛī, arē, see Dr. Caldwell's Compar. Grammar of the Dravidian languages p. 440.

Feminine nouns ending in 'u', 'ā', ā, ī, 'i' (e) in the Nom. Singular, remain unaltered in the Vocative Sing.; in the Plural the Vocative is likewise identical with the Nominative. The few fem. nouns, which end irregularly in the Nom. Plural in 'u', as: بھڻر bhēnarū, sisters etc., retain likewise their final 'u' in the Vocative Plural, as: اِي بھڻر ē bhēnarū, o sisters! when ending in ū, they drop in the Vocative final Anusvāra, as: اِي دھڻرو ē dhiarū, o daughters! Nom. Plur. دھڻرو dhiarū.

The Vocative may also be used without any interjectional prefix, as: مارهئا mārhuā, o men!

§. 17.

III. The Formative.

The Formative or oblique case, though in Sindhī throughout identical with the Instrumentalis, is by itself no case, but represents merely the euphonic change of the final vowel of a noun previous to the accession of any flexional particle or postposition, by means of which the various cases are made up. The changes, which the final vowel of a noun undergoes before the accession of any adverbial postposition, are on the whole the same as those before any other affix. In Sindhi the postpositions do not coalesce with the noun itself, the language still being conscious of the fact, that it has to deal with original adverbs. We have hinted already, that the Formative is originally the Genitive; it would be rather difficult, to prove this in reference to the Formative of the Singular, but that the Formative of the Plural originally represents the Genitive Plural, is borne out by the Prākṛit and the kindred modern idioms. In Prākṛit the Genitive Plural ends in आण, ईण, ऊण, in the Apabhraṃśa dialect अहं, इहं, उहं, thence the Sindhi Formative Plural ā, ē, or -ne.

Though the Formative be, in all likelihood, the Genitive of the Prākṛit, the adjectival affix جو has been added to it, to turn it into an adjective, the modern idioms once having taken this course to supply the Genitive. From thence it was only a consequent step, to use the ancient Genitive as the base, to which all the other declensional postpositions were added, i. e. the Genitive was turned into the Formative.

1) The Formative of nouns ending in 'u' (masc. and fem.)

α) Masculine nouns ending in 'u' change final 'u' in the Formative Sing. to 'a', as: دَاسُ dāsu, a slave, Form. دَاسَ dāsa; جَو دَاسَ dāsa jō, کَہی دَاسَ dāsa khē etc. If final 'u' be preceded by a short 'a', the insertion of euphonic v becomes necessary, as: رَوُّ ra-u, a weed, Form. رَوَّ rava; the same is the case, when final 'u' is preceded by a long nasalized ā, as: تَہائُو thāu, a dish, Form. تَہاوَ thāva. But if final 'u' be preceded by any other vowel, the insertion of euphonic v is optional, as: وَاء vāu, wind, Format. وَاو vava or وَاء vāa; دِيَو dēu, a demon, Format. دِيَو dēva or دِيَو dēa; when final 'u' however is preceded by short or long 'i', no euphonic insertion is required, as: دِيَو dīu, a mound, Format. دِيَا dīa; وِيَو vīu, a meadow, Format. وِيَا vīa; جِيَو jīu, life, Format. جِيَا jīa.

The following nouns ending in 'u' retain their final 'u' unaltered in the Formative Singular:

پِيَو piu, father; Format. پِي pi, as: پِي جَو piu jō etc.

بِهَاء bhāu, brother, Format. بِهَاء bhā, as: بِهَاء كِهِي bhāu khē etc.

but پِيَو pīu, sweetheart, بِهَاء bhāu, price, are regular.

The Formative Plural ends either in ā, ē or -ne, as: Nom. Sing. پُهَل phulu, a flower; Nom. Plur. پُهَل phula; Format. Plur. پُهَلَان phul-ā, پُهَلِين phul-ē, or: پُهَلَنِ phula-ne. The Formative in ā and ē is generally used without a following postposition, and that in -ne more with a following postposition, as being more sonorus; but in poetry the one or other form is used as required by the metre.

Those nouns, which form their Plural irregularly, as: بِهَاء bhāu, brother, Nom. Plur. بِهَائِر bhāura or: بِهَائِر bhāuru; پِي piu, father, Nom. Plur. پِيَر piura, derive their Formative Plural either from the Nominative Singular or the Nominative Plural, as: بِهَائِي bhāune or: بِهَائِرِن bhāurane; پِيْن piune or, پِيَرِن piurane; the contracted form of the Formative (i. e. ā, ē) is never used with them.

b) Feminine nouns ending in 'u' remain unaltered in the Formative Sing., as: مَاء māu, mother, Format. مَاء مَاء جَوْ māu jō; in the Formative Plural the long ū of the Nom. Plur. is shortened before the Format. termination -ne, as: رَجُ vīju, lightening, Nom. Plur. رَجُ vījū, Format. Plur. vīju-ne.

Those fem. nouns, which have, besides their regular Plural, also an irregular one, derive their Formative Plur. from either form, as: بَهِينُ bhēnu, sister, Nom. Plur. بَهِينُونِ bhēnū or: بَهِينَرُ bhēnarū (بَهِينَرُونِ bhēnarū); Format. Plur. بَهِينُنِ bhēnune or: بَهِينَرُنِ bhēnarune.

2) The Formative of nouns ending in ō (ō̄).

Nouns ending in ō change the same in the Formative Sing. to ē, as: مَتَهُ mathō, head, Format. مَتَهِ mathē. If final ō be preceded by 'a' or ā, a euphonic v may be inserted, as: دَاؤُ daō, the glare of the sun, Format. دَاِ daē or: دَاِ davē; نَاؤُ nāō, felt, Format. نَاِ nāe or: نَاِ nāvē; if ō be preceded by any other vowel, no insertion of euphonic v takes place, as: دِؤُ dīō, lamp, Format. دِِ dīē; چُرُؤُ čūō, perfumed oil, Format. چُرِ čuē. If a noun end in a nasalized ō (= ō̄), the Anusvāra is retained in the Formative, as; نَانْثُونِ nāñō, the ninth, Format. نَانْثِينِ nāñē.

If ō be preceded by y, it is commonly dropped in the Formative, as:

پُورْهِی pōrhyō (or pōrhiō), labour, Form. پُورْهِ pōrhē.

رُپَیْ rūpayō, rupee, Format. رُپَیْ rūpāē.

The Formative Plural ends either in ā, ē, the termination of the Nomin. Plural (ā) being dropped before them, or in -ne, final ā of the Nom. Plural being shortened to 'a' before it; as: كُلْهَوْ kulhō, the shoulder, Nom. Plur. كُلْهَا kulhā, Form. Plur. كُلْهَان kulhā, كُلْهَيْن kulhē, or: كُلْهَيْن kulhane; كُوَّوْ kūō, rat, Nom. Plur. كُوَّا kūā, Format. Plur. كُوَّان kūā, كُوَّيْن kūē, or: كُوَّيْن kūane.

3) The Formative of nouns ending in ū (ū).

Nouns ending in ū change the same in the Formative Singular to ua, as: وَآهُو vāghū, crocodile, Format. وَآهُوا vāghua. If final ū be nasalized (= ū̄), the Anusvāra is commonly retained in the Formative, as: وِجْهُون vičhū, scorpion, Format. وِجْهُوا vičhūa.

The Formative Plural ends either in u-ā, u-ē, or u-ne, ua-ne, long ū and ū̄ being shortened before the terminations of the Formative, as: رَاهُو rahū, a resident, Nom. plur. رَاهُو rahū, residents, Format. Plur. رَاهَوَان rahūā (or: رَاهَان), رَاهُيْن rahuē, رَاهُون rahune, رَاهُون rahune; مِرُون mirū, a wild beast, Nom. Plur. مِرُون mirū, wild beast, Format. Plur. مِرُونَان miruā, مِرُونَيْن miruē, مِرُون mirune, مِرُونَيْن miruane.

4) The Formative of nouns ending in ā (ā).

Nouns ending in ā remain unaltered in the Formative Sing., as, آگِيَا f., āgyā, command, Format. آگِيَا āgyā; رَاَجَا rājā (m.), king, Format. رَاَجَا rājā; in the Formative Plur. they end (according to the termination of the Nomin. Plural: ā-ū) in u-ne, as: أَكْيَانٍ agyāune; also رَجَائِنِ rājāune, masc.

5) The Formative of nouns ending in 'a'.

Nouns ending in 'a' remain unchanged in the Formative Sing., as: كَامَ kāma, a beam, Format. كَامَ kāma; in the Formative Plur. they terminate (according to their Nom. Plural) either in ā (ē) or u-ne, as: كَامَانَ kāmā, كَامِينَ kāmē, كَامُنِ kāmune.

6) The Formative of nouns ending in ī (î).

a) Masc. nouns ending in ī change the same in the Formative Sing. to i-a, as: مَالِي māli, a gardener, Formative مَالِي mālia. Those nouns, which have final ī nasalized (= î), retain the Anusvāra in the Formative, as: پَرِي prī, friend, Format. پَرِي prīa. The Formative Plural ends either in i-ā (yā), i-ē (yē), or in i-ne, ia-ne (yane), iu-ne (yune), as: مَالِيَانِ māliā, مَالِيَيْنِ māliē; مَالِيِ māline, مَالِيَانِ māhane (مَالَيْنِ), مَالِيْنِ māliune (مَالَيْنِ).

b) Feminine nouns ending in ī change the same likewise in the Formative Sing. to i-a, as: تَوْبِي tōpī, a hat, Format. تَوْبِي tōpia; the Formative Plural also quite agrees with that of the masc. nouns, as: تَوْبِيَانِ tōpiā, تَوْبِيَيْنِ tōpiē, تَوْبِيِ tōpine, تَوْبِيَانِ tōpiane, تَوْبِيْنِ tōpiune. Such fem. nouns, as have dropped final ī in the Nom. Plural (cf. §. 15, 6), drop the same also in the contracted form of the Formative Plur., as: مَنَجِي manjī, a stool, Nom. Plur. مَنَجُونِ manjū, Format. Plur.

مَنْجَان manjā, مَنجِين manjē; but: مَنجِيَان manjiane, مَنجِيُون manjiune are also in use. Some other nouns also, in which final ī is not preceded by a palatal, drop 'ī' in the contracted form of the Formative Plural, as: كَوْرِيْن kōrē, in scores, from كَوْرِي kōrī, a score.

7) The Formative of nouns ending in 'ī' (e).

Nouns ending in 'ī' (fem. and masc.) remain unaltered in the Format. Sing., as: بَيْت bhit, f., white, a wall, Format. بَيْت bhit; كَيْهَر kēhare (m.), a lion, Format. كَيْهَر kēhare. In the Formative Plural of fem. nouns the same terminations are employed as with fem. nouns ending in ī, as: بَيْتِيَان bhitīā, بَيْتِيِين bhitīē, بَيْتِي bhitīne, بَيْتِيَان bhitiane, بَيْتِيُون bhitīune. In the Formative Plural final 'ī' is frequently dropped altogether, especially in poetry, but only in the contracted form of the Formative, as: بَهْتِي bhatē, in (different) ways, from بَهْت bhat, habit, manner.

The Formative Plural of masc. nouns ends in -ne, the contracted form ā, ē hardly ever being in use with them, as: كَيْهَرِيْن kēharine.

جَوَّ jōe, wife, which forms its Plural either regularly جَوُّون jōyu, or irregularly: جَوُّرُ jōiru, جَوُّرُ jōhiru, has in the Format. Plur. either جَوُّون jōyune or: جَوُّرِيْن jōhirine.

§. 18.

We let now follow, for the sake of perspicuity, a survey of the Sindhī declensional process. As the Genitive affix جَو jō is originally an adjective affix, by means of which the noun is turned into an adjective, dependent on the governing noun in gender, number and case, we premise the inflexion of جو, which, according to its terminations jō and jī, is inflected after the manner of nouns ending in ō and ī (fem.). As stated already, جو always requires the Formative of a noun, as all postpositions.

In poetry the diminutive form جارو jarō, جَرِي jarī is occasionally used instead of جو, as:

كَلَهَ قَرِيْبِيْنِ لِدَتْوْ اَجُ تَنْهَن جَرِيْ وَارَ .

Yesterday (thy) relatives have departed (this life);
to-day it is thy turn. Golden Alphabet II, 4.

In the same way as جو jō the adjective سَندو sandō (belonging to, own) is very frequently used in poetry, and inflected regularly, as:

Chapter IX.

Adjectives.

§. 19.

The Sindhī adjectives and participles have the same terminations as the substantives and may therefore be classed under the same heads as the substantives.

The general rule, that the adjective must agree with its substantive in gender, number and case, holds good in Sindhī likewise.

In reference to the gender no exception takes place; but if an adjective or participle be referred to two preceding substantives, the one of which is masculine, the other feminine, the adjective or participle follows in the Plural masculine, as:

نَرُ ۛ مَادِي سَرَجِيَا اَتَهَسِ

He created them male and female. Gen. I, 27.

With regard to the number the following exception takes place. When an adjective precedes a noun in the inflected case of the Plural, it may remain in the inflected case of the Singular, as:

کُوَرَن نَبِيَن کهي to false prophets, or: کُوَرَن نَبِيَن کهي

The same is the case, when an adjective precedes a noun in the Vocative Plural, the adjective being then commonly put in the Vocative Singular, as:

اِي سِنْدِهِيَا مَارَهِيَا o Sindhī men! instead of: اِي سِنْدِهِيَا مَارَهِيَا

But it does not fall under this head, when an adjective or participle is referred to a preceding substantive followed by the postposition کهي khē; for in this case there exists no grammatical connexion between the adjective and substantive, but the adjective is used absolutely as:

اُنْهِنِ بِنْهِي بَهَائِنِ كَهِي سَنْدَر مِيْنِ جَارُ وَجَهْنْدُو دَتْهَائِنِ

He saw those two brothers throwing their net into the sea. Matth. IV, 18.

دُونْگَرِنِ كَهِي اُونْچُو بَهَائِنِ

I thought the hills high.

As to the case it may be observed, that adjectives, which end in i and u may remain uninflected, when immediately followed by a substantive in the Formative, as:

مَ بِيچَ پَنْدَهَرُو وِیْرُو مَارَهْنِ سَاتَه مِیْنِ

Do not make a journey in the caravan of vindictive men!

بِنْهِي كَهِي بَهُونِ پَرِیْنِ وِیچَارِنِ وَرُوَه

To both the helpless there was in many ways pleasant conversation. Maj. 198.

An adjective, following a substantive, may be put in the Ablative case, whereas the preceding substantive is only put in the Formative, as:

جُو دِیَهَ دَا دَانَانِ آئِیُو دِنِمِ قَنْهِنِ طَعْنُو

He who has come from the grand-father's country, has given me a reproach. Sh. Um. Mār. II, 2.

When an adjective precedes or follows a noun in the contracted form of the Formative Plural, it assumes the same form, as:

بِیچَهَرِیْنِ مَارَهْنِیْنِ كَهِي چَهْدِي هَلْ

Wicked men forsake.

كَهوَرِیَانِ كَهْنِیْنِ¹ بَهْتِیْنِ سَنْدِي پَاجَه بِنِ

I seek in many ways the mercy of others. Sh. Jam. Kal. V, Epil. I.

1) كَهْنِیْنِ is contracted instead of كَهْنِیْنِ.

کاندین ٿاندين ٻاٻرين پڇان مَر پيئي

By the burning coals of the thorn and babul tree
I am indeed roasted! Sh. Jam. Kal. III, 3.

Adjectives precede, as a rule, their substantives, as:

ماڙھون پنهن جي ننڍھي اکھ سان جگتر تھڙ ڏسي

Man sees with his small eye the world.

چنڪو سُرھڙو سگندو ٻوڙ مڃھس پئو آھي

Good, fragrant, sweet-smelling food was contained therein.

An adjective may also follow its substantive, especially when the adjective contains more syllables than its substantive, as:

تارا مُنڌھ جي ڏينھ ڪھان اڃا تائين پنهن جن سنڌھن

تھڙيڪن ڪھان پھيڙ نہ ڪري پوري پھيري مين آھن

The stars from the day of beginning are, without having deviated from their fixed intervals, in full turning.

Two and more adjectives very frequently follow their substantive as:

دوس مٿھا دلدار عالم سبھ آباد ڪرين

O sweet and charming friend, make the whole earth blooming! Sh. Sār. IV, 12.

خدا ڄاڻو ڏاھي اھڙا بھيد پنهن جي ڪلام مڃھ

وچوريآ آھن

By the knowing and wise God such secrets have been explained in his word.

To adjectives, as well as to substantives, very frequently an emphatic r accedes in all cases, signifying 'very', 'quite', 'truly', without altering in any way the termination of the adjective (the feminine Singular of adjectives ending in ō alone being excepted; see §. 20, 2), as: اوچتوئي ōcitōi, quite accidental; غريبئي yaribei (Sing. fem.) very humble.

اَکِئِنِی پَنده جو سَاتِهِي کَر سَانَبَاهُ

O companion, make preparation of the very instant journey! Golden Alph. I, 1.

§. 20.

Formation of gender.

With reference to the derivation of the feminine from masculine nouns the general rules, which have been laid down in Chapter VII, §. 14, are equally applicable to adjectives. Some minor points, in which adjectives differ in this respect from substantives of the same termination, will be noticed under the following heads.

1) Adjectives ending in 'u'.

These change the masc. termination 'u' either to 'e' (i) or to 'a', as:

نِدھَرُ nidharu, helpless, fem. نِدھَرِ nidhare or: نِدھَرِ nidhara.

ادھَرِ نِدھَرِ اَبھَرِ اَسُونھِين اَنھِيَان

Forlorn, helpless, wretched, unacquainted I am!
Sh. Ābiri VIII, 1.

Some adjectives of Sindhī origin, but more so those borrowed from the Arabic or Persian, remain without any change of gender, number and case, as: سَرَسُ sarsu, plentiful (s.); گڏ gaḍu, mixed (s.); سهڻ sahiḷu, easy (s.); عَبَثُ abaṭu, vain (a.); تَمَامُ tamāmu, whole (a.); خوبُ xūbu, good (p.); دُرسُ dursu, right (corrupted from دُرُسْتُ (p.)); ماتُ mātu, done for (p.); پَشِيمَانُ pašimānu, ashamed (p.); حَيْرَانُ ḥairānu, bewildered (a.); هَلَاکُ halāku, killed (a.); صافُ sāfu, clean (a.); مَعْلُمُ maṣlimu, known (corrupted from مَعْلُومُ (a.)), etc. etc.

مَرَنان اهي جي مئا سي مري تهنن نه مات

Those who have died before dying, they are not done for when dead. Sh. Maṣḍūrī IV, 7.

جو ويجهن جي وات دارو تنهن درس ڪيا

By the medicine, which is in the mouth of the physicians, they have been made whole. Sh. Jam. Kal II, 17.

دورڙو جن ورن سين پونديون تيت پشيمان

Those who have looked about with men, will there be put to shame. Maj. 266.

2) Adjectives ending in ō (ō).

These change the masc. termination to ī (ī); as: کُورُو kūrō, false, fem. کُورِي kūrī; نئون nāō, new, fem. نئي nāī.

When an adjective or participle ends in yō (or iō), being preceded by a consonant, the y (i) is dropped before the fem. termination ī, as: دُکھيو ḍukhyō or: دُکھيو ḍukhiō, pained, fem. دُکھي ḍukhī; ڪيو kiō, done, fem. ڪي kī; but پيو piō, fallen (Part. perf. from پون) makes its feminine پيئي pēī, not pī. When yō however is preceded by a vowel, the feminine is formed regularly in yī, as: چَیو čayō, said (Part. perf. from چَرَنُ), fem. چَیِ čayī; کَیو kayō, made (another form of the part. perf. of کَرَنُ), fem. کَیِ kayī; آیو āyō, come (part. perf. from اَچَنُ), fem. آَیِ āyī; but the y may just as well be dropped in such like forms, as: čaī, kaī, āī etc.

When the emphatic ī accedes to the feminine Singular, then the masc. termination ō is changed to yāī in the Nominative, as: مُنُو munō, blunt, with the emphatic ī in the feminine: مُنِیائی munyāī; but the other cases of the feminine are quite regular, and hardly ever found with an emphatic ī.

پَسُو لَچَ لَطِیفُ چَٹِی کِیڈِی کَہِی کَکَہِی

Look, says Latif, what credit (is given) to pieces of straw! Sh. Suh. VIII, 1.

جِی پَسی مَنُہ مِہَارَ تَ سِکَہِیائی سَہِی تَہِی

If she sees the face of the buffalo-keeper, she becomes quickly well. Sh. Suh. Čhōṭ. 5.

3) Adjectives ending in ū (ũ).

These do not change their termination in the feminine, as: سَہُو saḥū, masc. and fem., patient; وِہْرُہُو vērhū, masc. and fem., quarrelsome.

4) Adjectives ending in ā (ā).

These are comparatively few in number and admit of no change of gender, as: دَاتَا ḍātā, masc. and fem., liberal; تَالَان tālā, masc. and fem., worried. The greater number of them is indeclinable, as: صَفَا safā, pure (a.); فَنَا fanā, extinct (a.); پَہَان phā, tired; جُدا judā, separate (p.).

5) Adjectives ending in ā.

They admit of no change of gender and are all indeclinable¹⁾, as: وَدِهِيکَ vadhika, excessive; سُنْجِ suṇja, empty, barren; دَهَارَ dhāra, separate, or compounded: دَهَارُودَهَارَ dhārōdhāra; جَالِ jāla or جَارِ jāra, much; جَامِ jāma, much.

جِيئِي سَبَهَكُنْهِي جِيئِي سِيْنِ دَرَسُنِ دَهَارُودَهَارَ

(His i. e. God's) life is with the life of every one; but the aspect is quite different. Sh. Kal. I, 24.

سِرَ جُذَا دَهَرِ دَهَارَ دَوَکِ جَنْهِيْنِ جَا دِيکِ مِيْنِ

Whose heads (are) asunder, the trunks separated, the limbs in the caldron. Sh. Kal. II, 24.

6) Adjectives ending in ī (ī).

These remain unchanged in the feminine, as: بَارِي bārī, carrying a burden, masc. and fem.; سَوَادِي sa-vādī, savoury, masc. and fem.; some are only used in the feminine.

7) Adjectives ending in e (i).

They do not differ in the feminine, like those ending in ī; as: چَوْرَسِ čaurase, masc. and fem., square. Most of them are indeclinable, chiefly those of foreign origin, e. g.: سُدْهِ sudhe, pure; دَدْهِ dadhe, wrong; مُکْهِ mukhe,

1) Stack exhibits in his Sindhi Grammar the paradigma سَکْهَرِ sakhara and inflects it in the Formative Plural; but in his Dictionary he gives سَکْهَرُ sakharu, which is the proper termination. I have never met with an adjective ending in 'a', inflected in any way, for the cardinal numbers پَنجِ panja five etc. can hardly be classed under this head.

supreme; خوش xuše (p.), pleasant (generally pronounced short and partly also written خوش); شاد šāde (p.), joyful; برابر barābare (p.), abreast, right; بجاء bajāe (p.), performed.

The feminine affixes nī, ne, ānī (yānī), āiṇe (yāiṇe) are occasionally used with adjectives ending in u, ō, ū, ī, if some inherent quality, habit or occupation of living beings is to be marked out (the details see Chapter VII, §. 14), as: غریب چھوگر γarī-biṇe chōkare, a girl (habitually) humble; سادھنی رن sādhunī rana, a (thoroughly) virtuous widow; هوڈیانی ڈاچی hōḍiyānī ḍācī, an obstinate (female) camel.

We subjoin here a survey of the inflexion of adjectives.

§. 21.

Comparison of adjectives.

The Sindhī, as well as the cognate idioms, has lost the power to form a Comparative and Superlative degree after the manner of the Sanskrit (and Persian) by means of adjective affixes, and it is very remarkable, that the Semitic way of making up for the degrees of comparison has been adopted. In order to express the idea of the Comparative, the object or objects, with which another is to be compared, is put in the Ablative, or, which is the same, the postpositions کھان khā, کھون khō, کھون khū, مان mā, مانجھان manjhā and similar ones (see the Postpositions) are employed, the adjective itself remaining in the Positive. In order to express the idea of the Superlative, the pronominal adjective all is placed before the Ablative. By the Ablative the difference or distance, which exists between the objects compared, is pointed out.

Chapter X.

Numeral adjectives.

§. 22.

The Sindhi possesses a great variety of numeral adjectives.

۱ هڪ hiku; هڪ هڪ hēku; ايڪ ēku; هڪڙو hikirō; هڪڙو hēkirō, one.

۲ ٻه ba, two.

۳ ٽري trē, three.

۴ چار čāre, four.

۵ پنج panja, five.

۶ ڇه čha, or: ڇهه čaha, six.

۷ سٽ sata, seven.

۸ اٺه aṭha, eight.

۹ نئون nāvā, nine.

- ۱۰ دَہ dāha, ten.
 ۱۱ یارَہَن yārahā; اِکارَہَن ikārahā; کارَہَن kārahā, eleven.
 ۱۲ بارَہَن bārahā, twelve.
 ۱۳ تیرَہَن tērahā, thirteen.
 ۱۴ چوڈَہَن čōḍahā, fourteen.
 ۱۵ پندرَہَن pandrahā; پندہران pandhrā, fifteen.
 ۱۶ سورَہَن sōrahā, sixteen.
 ۱۷ سترَہَن satrahā, seventeen.
 ۱۸ ارَہَن arahā, eighteen.
 ۱۹ اُنِیہَ unīha, اُنِویہَ univīha, nineteen.
 ۲۰ ویہَ vīha, twenty.

Annotation. The Sindhī numerals are all derived from the Sanskrit by the medium of the Prākṛit. — Sansk. एक, one, Prāk. एक्क; in Sindhī a euphonic h has been preposed, as: hiku (= hikku). When commencing to count the Hindūs use ॐ to say instead of hiku: بَرکُہُ barkhu, and the Musalmāns: بَرکَہَت barkhata, invoking thereby a blessing. — Sansk. द्वि, two, Prāk. दो; in Sindhī the crude form dva has been assimilated to vva and thence to bā (= bba). Besides بَ bā we meet also occasionally the form دُون dū, which has sprung from the Prākṛit दोणि. — Sansk. त्रि, three, Sindhī त्रि trī, whereas the Prāk. form त्रिणि has given rise to the Hindūstānī تین. Sansk. चतुर्, four, Prāk. चत्तारि; in Sindhī the conjunct tt has again been elided = čāre. — Sansk. पञ्चन्, Prāk. पञ्च; in Sindhī (and Panjābī) the tenuis č has been changed into the media j (but in Hindūstānī and Marāṭhī again pāñč). — Sansk. षष्, six; Prāk. छ, as in Sindhī. — Sansk. सप्तन्, seven, Prāk. सप्त; Sindhī: sata (= satta); Panjābī: satt; but in Hindūstānī and Marāṭhī: sāt, the conjunct tt being dissolved by lengthening the preceding vowel. — Sansk. अष्टन्, Prāk. अष्ट; Sindhī:

aṭha (= aṭṭha); Panjābī: aṭṭh; but Hindūst. and Marāṭhī: āṭh. Sansk. नवन्, nine, Prāk. णवन्; Sindhī: nāvā; Panjābī: nō; Hindūst.: nau; Marāṭhī: nava. — Sansk. दशन्, ten, Prāk. दस; Sindhī: dāha; Marāṭhī: dahā; Hindūstānī and Panjābī: das.

In Sanskrit the first nine numbers are prefixed to दशन्, ten, to form the following nine numerals; but in Prākrit and consequently in Sindhī (as well as in the cognate dialects) they undergo already so great changes, that the way, in which they have been compounded, is at the first sight scarcely recognisable. The Prākrit form दस is in these compounds first changed to दह and thence to रह, as: Prākrit एआरह = Sansk. एकादशन् eleven; Sindhī: yārahā, with elision of k, or without elision of k: ikārahā or kārahā (initial 'i' being dropped). — Prāk. बारह = Sansk. द्वादशन्, twelve; Sindhī: bārahā. — Prākrit तेरह = Sansk. त्रयोदशन् thirteen; Sindhī: tērahā. — Prākrit चउहह = Sansk. चतुर्दशन्, fourteen; Sindhī: čōdahā. An exception forms the Sindhī: pandrahā or pandhrā, fifteen, the Prākrit form of which is पण्णरह = Sansk. पञ्चदशन्, the conjunct nō, which in Prākrit has been assimilated to the cerebral ṇṇ, having been changed in Sindhī to nd before the liquida r. Prākrit सोलह(?) = Sansk. षोडशन् (Var. II, 23?), sixteen; Sindhī: sōrahā; Hindūstānī: sōlah. Prākrit सत्तरह(?) = Sansk. सप्तदशन्, seventeen; Sindhī: satrahā; Hindūstānī: satrah. — Prākrit अट्ठरह = Sansk. अष्टादशन्, eighteen; Sindhī: aṭṭrahā, the Prākrit cerebral conjunct ṭṭh being changed in Sindhī to ṛ (see Intro. §. 7, 2) and assimilating the following dental r, by throwing out the long ā; Panjābī: aṭhārā; Hindūstānī: aṭhārah; Marāṭhī (with elision of medial ā): aṭharā. — Sansk. ऊनविंशति (Prākrit form unknown), one less than twenty (Latin: un-de-viginti); Sindhī: uṇīha or uṇivīha; the Sanskrit विंशति twenty, becomes in Prākrit वीसई; thence Sindhī: vīha; in compound numerals the v is generally elided, when preceded by a consonant, as: uṇīha or uṇivīha; Panjābī: umṇī; Hindūstānī: uṇīs; Marāṭhī: ēkuṇīs.

२१ ایکہ ekīha, twenty one.

२२ باویہ bāvīha, twenty two.

- ۲۳ ترَویہ trēviha, twenty three.
 ۲۴ چَوَیہ čōviha, twenty four.
 ۲۵ پَنجَوَیہ panjviha, twenty five, or: پَنجِیہ panjiha.
 ۲۶ چَہَوَیہ čhaviha, twenty six.
 ۲۷ سَتَہَوَیہ satāviha, twenty seven.
 ۲۸ اَتَہَوَیہ athāviha, twenty eight.
 ۲۹ اَنَہَوَیہ anāviha, twenty nine.
 ۳۰ تَریہ trīha, thirty.

Some of the units are lengthened in these compounds, as: بَا bā, سَتَا satā, اَتَہَا athā, but apparently not after a fixed rule. — چَار čāre, four, is, when compounded with another numeral, contracted to čō, after a different process of assimilation, चतुर् being first dissolved into ča-ur, and thence into čō, by assimilating the semi-vowel r with the following v. The same is the case in Panjābī, Hindūstānī and Marāṭhī.

تَریہ trīha, thirty, is derived from the Prākrit ती-सञ्ज्ञा, Sansk. त्रिंशत्, the Sanskrit termination शत् being changed in Prākrit to सद् and thence to सञ्ज्ञा or सा, and consequently in Sindhī to ha. — چَالِیہ čāliha, forty, Sansk. चत्वारिंशत्, the conjunct tt in the Prākrit form (very likely चत्तारिसा?) being elided in Sindhī and r changed to l, in Panjābī and Marāṭhī even to l̥, as: čālī, čālīs; Hindūstānī: čālīs. The remaining tens follow the common rules of assimilation, as: Sindhī پَنجَاہ panjāha, fifty, Sansk. पञ्चाशत्, Prāk. पहसासा, the Sindhī keeping closer to the Sanskrit in this word, than the Prākrit; Panjābī likewise: panjāh; Hindūstānī: pačās, but Marāṭhī: pannās. — سَٹَہ saṭhe, sixty, Sansk.

षट्ति. — سَتر satare, seventy, makes an exception, final t (Sansk. सप्तति) having been changed to r; the same is the case in Panjābī (sattar), Hindūstānī (sattar) and in Marāṭhī (sattar). — اسی asī, eighty, Sansk. अशीति; Panjābī and Hindūstānī assī, but Marāṭhī aisī. — نَوِي navē, ninety (in Lār also نوء nōe), Sansk. नवति; Panjābī likewise: navvē; Hindūstānī navē, but Marāṭhī navvad.

- ٣١ اِکْثَرِیْہَ ekat̤riha, thirty one.
 ٣٢ بَترِیْہَ bat̤riha, thirty two.
 ٣٣ تَرِیْثَرِیْہَ tr̤et̤riha, thirty three.
 ٣٤ چَوْتَرِیْہَ čot̤riha, thirty four.
 ٣٥ پَنَجْتَرِیْہَ panjat̤riha, thirty five.
 ٣٦ چَہْتَرِیْہَ čhat̤riha, thirty six.
 ٣٧ سَترِیْہَ sata̤riha, thirty seven.
 ٣٨ اَتھْتَرِیْہَ aṭhat̤riha, thirty eight.
 ٣٩ اُنِیْتَالِیْہَ un̤et̤āl̤iha, thirty nine.
 ٤٠ چَالِیْہَ čāl̤iha, forty.

When چَالِیْہَ is preceded by the units (amongst which must also be numbered un̤, one less), it is changed to تَالِیْہَ tāl̤iha; but in this case the units require the conjunctive vowel ē, to facilitate the pronunciation. This change of č to t is not yet to be found in the older Prākṛit, but seems to belong to a later period of the language. Lassen only mentions (§. 33, 4), that t is occasionally changed to ṭ and č, thence we may conclude, that vice versa č also was liable to be changed to t. The same is the case in the Panjābī (iktālī) and Hindūstānī (iktālīs), but not in Marāṭhī (ēkēčālīs).

- ۴۱ اِکِتَالِیْہَ ekētālīha, forty one.
 ۴۲ بَاِتَالِیْہَ bāētālīha, forty two.
 ۴۳ تَرِیتَالِیْہَ trētālīha, forty three.
 ۴۴ چَوِیتَالِیْہَ čōētālīha, forty four.
 ۴۵ پَنجِیتَالِیْہَ panjētālīha, forty five.
 ۴۶ چَہَاِیتَالِیْہَ čhāētālīha, forty six.
 ۴۷ سَتِیتَالِیْہَ satētālīha, forty seven.
 ۴۸ اَٹِہِیتَالِیْہَ aṭhētālīha, forty eight.
 ۴۹ اُنِوَنجَاہَ univanjāha, forty nine.
 ۵۰ پَنجَاہَ panjāha, fifty.

پَنجَاہَ panjāha (pronounced also: پَنجَاہُ panjāhu), when preceded by the units, is, for euphony's sake, changed to وَنَجَاہَ vanjāha the tenuis p being softened to the media b, and thence to v. The same change takes place in the kindred idioms.

- ۵۱ اِکْوَئَجَاہَ ekvanjāha, fifty one.
 ۵۲ بَاوَئَجَاہَ bāvanjāha, fifty two.
 ۵۳ تَرِوَئَجَاہَ trēvanjāha, fifty four.
 ۵۴ چَوِوَئَجَاہَ čōvanjāha, fifty three.
 ۵۵ پَنجَوِئَجَاہَ panjvanjāha, fifty five.
 ۵۶ چَہَاوَئَجَاہَ čhavanjāha, fifty six.
 ۵۷ سَتَوِئَجَاہَ satvanjāha, fifty seven.
 ۵۸ اَٹْہَوِئَجَاہَ aṭhvanjāha, fifty eight.
 ۵۹ اُنَہَاٹِہَ unahaṭhe, fifty nine.
 ۶۰ سَٹِہَ saṭhe, sixty.

سَٹِہَ saṭhe and سَتَرِہَ satare, when preceded by the units, are changed, for euphony's sake, to haṭhe and hatare, initial (and now medial) s being softened to h. The same is the case in Panjābī, but in Hindūstānī and Marāṭhī the s of sāṭh is retained, whereas that of sattar is softened to h.

۶۱ اِکْهَٹھ ēkahat̤he, sixty one.

۶۲ بَاھَٹھ bāhat̤he, sixty two.

۶۳ تِرِھَٹھ trēhat̤he, sixty three.

۶۵ پَنجَھَٹھ panjahat̤he, sixty five.

۶۶ چَھَاھَٹھ čhāhat̤he, sixty six.

۶۷ سَٹھَٹھ satahat̤he, sixty seven.

۶۸ اَٹھَھَٹھ aṭhat̤he, sixty eight.

۶۹ اَنَھَٹھ unahatare, sixty nine.

۷۰ سَٹھ satare, seventy.

۷۱ اِکْھَٹھ ēkahatare, seventy one.

۷۲ بَاھَٹھ bāhatare, seventy two.

۷۳ تِرِھَٹھ trēhatare, seventy three.

۷۴ چَوَھَٹھ čōhatare, seventy four.

۷۵ پَنجَھَٹھ panjahatare, seventy five.

۷۶ چَھَاھَٹھ čhāhatare, seventy six.

۷۷ سَٹھَٹھ satahatare, seventy seven.

۷۸ اَٹھَٹھ aṭhahatare, seventy eight.

۷۹ اَنَاسِی unāsī, seventy nine.

۸۰ اَسِی asī, eighty.

The units preceding اَسِی asī and نَوِی navē, are joined to them by the conjunctive vowel ā; the same is the case in the cognate dialects.

- ۸۱ اِکَاسِی ēkāsī, eighty one.
 ۸۲ بِئَاسِی biāsī, eighty two.
 ۸۳ تِئَاسِی triāsī, eighty three.
 ۷۴ چَوَراسِی čōrāsī, eighty four.
 ۸۵ پَنجَاسِی panjāsī, eighty five.
 ۸۶ چَہہَاسِی čahāsī, eighty six.
 ۸۷ سَتَاسِی satāsī, eighty seven.
 ۸۸ اَتَہَاسِی aṭhāsī, eighty eight.
 ۸۹ اَنانَوی unānavē, eighty nine.

- ۱۰۰ سَوِ sau, hundred.

*) We cannot offer a satisfactory explanation of these two curious forms. The corresponding Hindust. numeral is: ninānavē, the Panjābī naṛinavē. We can understand, how the Panjābī naṛ (nan = naṇ = naṛ) could be changed in Sindhi to naḍ or naḍh; but we cannot well perceive, that ḍ or ḍh should have been exchanged for a dental ḍ or Annotation. ^{सौ} sau is derived from the Sansk. शत, Prāk. सत्त; Panjābī sau or sai; Hindūstānī likewise sāu or sai; Marāṭhī (in compounds) šē; Gujārātī sō.

The numbers above one hundred are commonly formed as in English by placing the lesser number after hundred, as:

१०१ ^{हिकु सौ हिकु} hiku sau hiku, one hundred (and) one.

१०२ ^{हिकु सौ बा} hiku sau ba, „ „ „ two.

But there are two other ways of making up these numbers; the one is to place before sau the lesser number in an adjective form, as ^{एकौ सौ} ekō sau, literally: one hundred having or possessing one; or to put after the numeral adjective the noun utar (originally an adjective) which is contracted with the termination of the preceding numeral into ōtar, as: ^{एकौतर्सौ} ekōtarsau, one above one hundred. This utar (Sansk. उत्तर, adj., above) is used in a similar way in Marāṭhī.

१०१ ^{एकौ सौ} ekō sau, or: ^{एकौतर्सौ} ekōtarsau, one hundred (and) one.

१०२ ^{द्वौ सौ} bīrō sau, or: ^{द्वौतर्सौ} bīrōtarsau, one hundred (and) two.

१०३ ^{त्रिं सौ} trīrō sau, or: ^{त्रिं तर्सौ} trīrōtarsau, one hundred (and) three.

१०४ ^{चौ सौ} cōrō sau, or: ^{चौ तर्सौ} cōrōtarsau, one hundred (and) four.

१०५ ^{पंचौ सौ} panjō sau, or: ^{पंचौतर्सौ} panjōtarsau, one hundred (and) five.

dh, which would be a surprising phenomenon in a modern Prākṛit idiom. In regard to vadhānavē it would be necessary to assume a change of n to v, of which we could not adduce another instance.

When the numeral adjectives of the first series precede the Plural of سَوُ sau, they must agree with their substantive in number, as:

- ۲۰۱ إِيكَآ بَه سَوُ (or) إِيكَآ بَه سَوُ ēkā bā sava (or sā), literally:
two hundreds having or possessing one.
- ۲۰۲ بِرَا بَه سَوُ birā bā sava , two hundred and two.
etc. etc. etc.

These numerals are not used in the Formative, as they are only employed in counting. The numerals of the second series remain unaltered, according to their original signification.

The hundreds are regularly made up by the Plural of سَو, as:

- ۲۰۰ سَا or سَو ba sava (or sā) two hundred.
 ۳۰۰ تَرِي سَو trē sava, three hundred.
 ۴۰۰ چَارِ سَو čāre sava, four hundred.
 ۵۰۰ پَنچِ سَو panja sava, five hundred.

!..... نِيلُ nīlu, ten billions (one hundred kharbs).

!..... پَدَمُ padamu, one thousand billions (one hundred nīls).

Annotation. سَهَسُ sahasu is derived from the Sansk. सहस्र, Prāk. सहस्र. It is a regular substantive and inflected accordingly. هَزَارُ hazāru (s. m.) is of Persian origin. — لَكْهُ lakhu, Sansk. लक्ष; Hindūst. lak (and lākh); Marāthī lākh; it is likewise treated as a substantive masc. — كِرَوْرَ kirōre (Sansk. कोटि) is not inflected, whereas كُورُ kōru is treated as a regular substantive. The following numerals, which belong more to the realm of fancy, are all substantives, as: أَرْبُ, Sansk. अर्बुद; كَهْرَبُ, Sansk. खर्ब; نِيلُ, Sansk. ? پَدَمُ, Sansk. पद्म.

§. 23.

Inflection of the cardinal numbers.

هِكُ hiku or هِكِرُو hikirō are regular adjectives and inflected according to their respective terminations (هِكُ m.; هِكِ fem. etc.); the other numerals have no change of gender, but are inflected in the Formative Plural, as:

بَ ba, two;	Format. Plural:	بَيْنَ bine.
ثَرِي trē, three;	”	ثَرِينِ trīne.
چَارِ čāre, four;	”	چَإِنِ čāine.
پَنَجِ panja, five;	”	پَنَجَانِ panjane.
چَهَ čha, six;	”	چَهَانِ čhahane.
سَتَ saha, seven;	”	سَتَانِ satane.
أَثَ aṭha, eight;	”	أَثَانِ aṭhane.
نَآوِ nāvā, nine;	”	نَآوَانِ nāvane.
دَاهِ dāha, ten;	”	دَاهَانِ dahane.

The following numerals, from eleven-eigheten, throw final Anusvāra off in the Formative Plural and drop the short a, preceding h, as;

يَارَهَنَ	yārahā, eleven;	Format. Plur.	يَارَهَنَ	yārthane.
بَارَهَنَ	bārahā, twelve;	" "	بَارَهَنَ	bārthane.
تِيرَهَنَ	tērahā, thirteen;	" "	تِيرَهَنَ	tērthane.
چوڏَهَنَ	čōḍaha, fourteen;	" "	چوڏَهَنَ	čōḍthane.
پندرَهَنَ	pandraha,	} fifteen; "	پندرَهَنَ	pandhrane.
پندهرانَ	pandhrā,
ويِهَ	vīha, twenty;	" "	ويِهَ	vīthane.

Those numerals, which end in ě (ī) and ē, are not capable of inflexion, as: ستّھ سَٹھ saṭhe, sixty; سَتر satre, seventy; نَوِي navē or نوہ nōe, ninety; but اسی asī, eighty, makes the Format. Sing. اسی asia.

سَو sa-u, hundred; is inflected, as follows:

	SING.	PLUR.
Nom.	سَو sau;	سَو sava, or contracted سَا sā.
Format.	سَو sava;	سَو savane, سَان sāne, سَوِين savē,
		سَٹھ saṭh.

The cardinal numbers, chiefly the decimal ones, are also used as collective numbers, and in this case they are inflected according to their respective terminations, e. g. تِري تَرِي trē ḍahū, three tens, Formative تَرِي تَرِي trine ḍahune; چار سَٹھُون čāre sāṭheū, four sixties; نَوِي navē forms the Plural نَوِيُون navēū, Format. نَوِيُون navēune. When used in a collective sense these numerals are mostly put in the Formative Plural ending in ě, as: وِیهین vihě, in scores; سَوین savě, in hundreds, سَهَسین sahásě, in thousands.

When a noun in the Formative Plural takes the termination ne or ě, the preceding numeral, like all other adjectives, must take the same too, or: دَهَن وِیرِن کَہی to ten enemies, or: دَہین وِیرِئِن کَہی. بَ and تَری do not admit of a Formative in ě, but make it ĭ, as: بِین bĭ, تَرین trĭ; of جَار there is a Formative as well in ĭ as in ě; جَئین čaĭ or: جَہین čaě; but the Formatives bĭ, trĭ, čaĭ are also used with Formatives of nouns ending in ne.

The emphatic ĭ (hĭ) may also be affixed to the cardinal numbers to express completeness or intensity, as: بائی bāĭ or: بہئی bēĭ, all two = both, Formative Plural: بہئی bĭnhĭ or: بنہین bĭnhĭ; or: بنہین bĭnhine, بنہینی bĭnhinĭ. تَریئی trēĭ, all three, Formative Plural: تَرنہی trĭnhĭ or: تَرنہین trĭnhĭ; or: تَرنہین trĭnhine, تَرنہینی trĭnhinĭ. چارئی čārāĭ or: چارہئی čārēĭ, all four, Formative Plural: چَئینی čainĭ. اَٹھئی aṭhāĭ, all eight, Formative Plural: اَٹھینی aṭhanĭ, etc.

The cardinal numbers, from two upwards generally require their substantive in the Plural; but they may also be constructed with the Singular, after the manner of the Persian. Sau, hazāru, sahāsu, lakhū etc., being properly substantives, are either constructed with the Genitive Plural of the following substantive, or they have the same coordinated in the Plural. The numerals preceding a substantive may either be inflected according to the termination of the substantive or they may remain uninflected; when two or more numerals precede a substantive, the last only is inflected.

سَوِيَوْن	saviyō,	} the hundredth.
سَوْتُون	sau-ō,
سَيْتُون	sai-ō,

Of compound numbers only the last takes the form of the ordinal and is inflected, as:

هِيكُ سَو پَهْرِيَوْن hiku sau peheryō, the one hundred and first.

بَا سَوِيَوْن bā saviyō, the two hundredth.

بَا سَا بِيَوْن bā sā biō, the two hundred and second.

هَزَارُون	hazārō,	} the thousandth.
سَهَسُون	sahāsō,

Annotation. The ordinals are regularly derived from the Prākṛit; پہريون peheryō, the first, though, has not followed the traces of the Prākṛit (= पठम), but taken its own course of assimilation; Sansk. प्रथम, thence: pahama; the m of pahama has been changed in a rather unusual way to l (r), pahala, pahara, thence the Sindhī: paharyō or peheryō. Hindūst. and Panjābī: pahilā, Marāṭhī likewise: pahilā. بيو biō, the second, points back to the Prākṛit वीच्च (shortened from विदिच्च), and the other form بيجو bījō, corresponds to the Prāk. दुइज्ज. تريو triō, the third, coincides with the Prākṛit तीच्च, with this difference, that original r has been preserved in Sindhī. چوتھون čōthō, the fourth, Prākṛit चउट्; the original dental (th) has been preserved in Sindhī. The following ordinals are all regularly derived from the cardinals, by adding the affix ō corresponding to the Sansk. affix तम, which has in Sindhī been changed to ō by the elision of t (compare: Intro. §. 9). In Hindūstānī and Panjābī tama has been similarly changed to vā, in Marāṭhī to vā; the Gujārātī has preserved the affix mō, and the Bangālī even the whole affix tam.

§. 25.

Inflexion of the ordinals.

The ordinals are regularly inflected as adjectives according to their respective terminations:

§. 26.

III. ARITHMETICAL FIGURES.

The arithmetical figures or names of the numbers are expressed by adjectives, which are formed by adding the adjective affix ō to the cardinal numbers; some few have also, in order to distinguish the arithmetical figures from the ordinals, the affix kō.

ایکو ēkō, هڪو hikō, containing the number 'one';
the number or figure 'one'.

ٻڪو bikō, the number 'two'.

ٽرڪو trikō, " " 'three'.

چونڪو caūkō, " " 'four'.

پنجو panjō, " " 'five'.

ڇهڪو čhakō, " " 'six'.

اٺو athō, " " 'eight'.

نَانْتُون	nāñ, the number	'nine'.
دَهَو	ḍahō, " "	'ten'.
يَاَرْهَو	yārḥō, " "	'eleven'.
بَاَرْهَو	bārḥō, " "	'twelve'.

اَسِيَو	asyō, " "	'eighty'.
نَوِيَو	naviyō, " "	'ninety'.
سَوِيَو	saviyō, " "	'hundred'.

They are regularly inflected as adjectives ending in ō; هَكَا ٻَه two units; تَرِي ڪَهان پوءِ چَوَنڪو تَهو لڳي after the number three comes the number four.

§. 27.

IV. COLLECTIVE NUMBERS.

We have noticed already (§. 22), that the cardinal numbers may also be employed as collective numbers; but the Sindhī possesses also a peculiar kind of numerals, which express an aggregate sum; these are:

دَہاکو	ḍahākō,	the sum of ten; about ten.
وہارو	viḥārō,	the sum of twenty; about twenty.
ویہارو	viḥārō,
تِریہارو	triḥārō,	the sum of thirty; about thirty.
تِریہارو	triḥārō,
چالہیارو	čālhyārō,	the sum of forty; about forty.
پَنجَہی	pañjāhī,	the sum of fifty; about fifty.
پَنجَہو	pañjāhō,
ساتھیکو	sāṭhikō,	the sum of sixty, about sixty.

They are properly adjectives, formed by the affixes kō (§. 10, 24) and ārō, as: دَہاکو ḍahākō, making ten; وہارو virāhō, containing twenty. They may be constructed either as substantives with the noun in the Genitive, or as numeral adjectives, e. g.: دَہاکو چھوگرَن جو ḍahākō cchhogrān jō ten boys, literally: a decade of boys, or: دَہاکو چھوگرَن ḍahākō cchhogrān.

To express more distinctly the indefiniteness of such a number, the adverb کھَنُ khanu (literally: piece, portion, Sansk. खण्ड) is added to them as well as to the cardinal numbers; e. g. وہارو کھَنُ viḥārō khanu, about twenty.

پَنج ہزار کھَنُ مُرس ہئا

They were about five thousand men. Matth. 14, 21.

چَوَنَدُ čaūku, چَوَنَكِرِي čaūkirī, the sum of four, کَوَرِي kōrī, a score, are only used substantively, the latter generally in the Formative Plural کَوَرِيَن kōrē, in scores, as:

سَهَسِين شَكِرَانَا کَوَرِيَن بَهَالِ کَرِيمِ جَا

In thousands are the thanksgivings, in scores the favours of the kind one (i. e. God). Sh. Surāg I, Epil. 1.

سَيَكِرُو saikrō, a hundred, is only used when speaking of interest, expressing our “per cent”, as: رُوپِيَا پَنجِين رُوپِيَن سَيَكِرِي اُدَهَارِيَم I borrowed two hundred rupees at five rupees by the hundred (i. e. at five per cent). The percentage may also be expressed by an adjective (a so-called Bahuvrihi, cf. §. 12, II, 5), compounded of the respective amount and the adjective ōtirō, ‘having above’, as:

ایکُوْتِرُو سَوُ one hundred having one above it, i. e. one per cent;

پَرُوْتِرُو سَوُ two per cent.

تِرُوْتِرُو سَوُ three per cent.

etc. etc.

Of the same kind are the compound adjectives, such as: چَوَانُو سَوُ čauāno (sau), one hundred having four Annas, i. e. 4 Annas per cent; تِرِپَانِيُو سَوُ tripānyō (sau), one hundred having three quarters of a rupee, i. e. at three quarters of a rupee per cent, etc. When مِتي mitī (interest) is used, سَوُ is omitted, as: ڈِيڈْهُوْتِرِي مِتي, interest of one and a half.

§. 28.

V. PROPORTIONAL NUMBERS.

The numerals denoting 'fold', are:

هيكُونُو	hēkūnō,	} single.
هيكُوتُو	hēkūtō,

بينُو	bīnō,	} twofold.
بتُو	bitō,

ترينُو trīnō, threefold.

چئونُو	čaūnō,	} fourfold.
چُونُو	čaunō,

پنجُونُو panjūnō, fivefold.

چههُونُو čahūnō, sixfold.

ستُونُو satūnō, sevenfold.

اتهُونُو athūnō, eightfold.

نمونُو naūnō, ninefold.

دَاهُونُو ḍahūnō, tenfold.

يَارهُونُو yārḥūnō, elevenfold.

اَرهُونُو arḥūnō, eighteenfold.

اُونِيَهُونُو ūnīhūnō, nineteenfold.

ويَهُونُو viḥūnō, twentyfold.

ایکِہونو ekihūnō, twenty-onefold.

تِرِہونو trihūnō, fortyfold.

چَالِہونو čalihūnō, fortyfold.

پَنجَاہونو panjāhūnō, fiftyfold.

سَترِیونو sataryūnō, seventyfold.

اَسِیونو asyūnō, eightyfold.

نَوِیونو navēūnō, ninetyfold.

سَاُونو saūnō, hundredfold.

In the same way the affix ūnō (cf. §. 10, 28) is added to the fractional numbers, as:

اَدھُونو adhūnō, one half-fold.

سَوَاُونو savāūnō, one (or a certain sum) and a quarter-fold.

دَہْدھُونو dēdhūnō, one and a half-fold.

اَدھَاُونو adhāūnō, two and a half-fold.

جَدھِیَن اَندَو تَدھِیَن پَان کھَان بِنُو دَوَزَخ جُو بَار

سَٹھِیونَا کِی تِرِہُونَا

Other seeds fill upon good land; these brought forth fruit, some hundredfold, some sixtyfold, some thirtyfold. Matth. 13, 8.

§. 29.

VI. REDUPLICATIVE NUMBERS.

The numeral adverbs, denoting reduplication, are.

هڪارَ	hēkāra,	}	once.
هڪرَ	hēkara,
ٻهارَ	bihāra,	}	twice.
ٻهرَ	bihara,
ٽرهارَ	trihāra,	}	thrice.
ٽرهرَ	trihara,
ڇوهارَ	čohāra,	}	four times.
ڇوهرَ	čohara,

The further reduplicatives are commonly made up by the cardinals with the nouns وارو vārō, ٻهپرو or لنکو (linō).

Annotation. The affix هارَ, or shortened هَر, has taken its origin from the Sansk. वार, Hindūstānī: bārah, Panjābī: vārī; in Sindhī v has been elided and euphonic h inserted.

§. 30.

VII. FRACTIONAL NUMBERS.

The fractional numbers are of two kinds; they are either substantives or adjectives;

a) substantives are:

ڇوٽو	čōthe,	}	a quarter.
ڇوٽهاڻي	čōthāī,
ڇوٽهو	čōthō,

پاء pāu, a quarter; Plur. پاو pāva or پā pā.

تِرہائی trihāi, a third.

آدھ adhu, a half.

سَوائی savāi, one and a quarter; a quarter more (than the whole).

سَادھ sādhu, one half more (than the specified sum).

دِہدھے dēdhe, one and a half.

b) adjectives are:

پونو paunō, } one quarter less (than the whole).
مُنو munō, }

آدھ adhu, } half.
آدھو ādhō, }

سَوā savā, one quarter more (than the whole).

سَادھā sādḥā, one half more (than the whole).

دِہدھ dēdhu, one and a half.

آدھائی ādhāi, two and a half.

Annotation. چوتھ, چوتھائی, چوتھا is derived from the Sansk. चतुर्थांश, Hindūstānī cauth, cauthāi; in the same way تِرہائی is derived from the Sansk. तृतीयांश, Hindūstānī tihāi. پاء corresponds to the Sansk. पाद, Hindūstānī pāo; the adjective پونو has sprung from the Sansk. adj. पादोन, Hindūst. paunā, Marāṭhī pāun; the origin of مُنو is doubtful. آدھ is substantive and adjective at the same time, Sansk. अर्ध, Hindūst. ādhā. سَوائی and the adjective سَوā are derived from the Sansk. सपाद, having a quarter, Hindūst. and Marāṭhī: savā; سَادھ and the adjective سَادھā (Plur. m.) from the Sansk. adjective सार्ध, having a half, with a half, Hindūstānī (Instrum.)

sāḥē. اَدِّهْ and the adjective اَدِّهْ are apparently derived from an unusual Sansk. compound अधि + अर्ध, having three halves, Hindūst. dēḥ, Panjābī ḍeḍh, Marāṭhī ḍīd. اَدِّهَائِي has drawn its origin from the Sansk. अर्धाय, Hindūst. aṛhāi, Panjābī dhāi, Marāṭhī adīts.

In reference to the use of these fractional numbers it is to be observed, that مُنُو is generally used with units, and پُونُو with two, three etc., as: مُنُو رُوپِيُو a rupee wanting a quarter = three quarters of a rupee; پُونَا بَ رُوپِيَا two rupees wanting a quarter = one rupee and three quarters; پُونُو سَوُو one hundred wanting a quarter = 75. سَوَا one quarter more, as: سَوَا سِيرُ one sēr and a quarter; سَوَا تَرِي سِيرُ three sērs and a quarter.

سَوَا is not inflected in the Singular, nor in the Nominative Plural, but it has a Formative Plural masc., viz.: سَوَايِنِ savāine, سَوَايَانِ savāyane or: سَوَايَيْنِ savāē, and fem. سَوَايِنِ savāine or: سَوَايُونِ savāyune; but generally it is not inflected at all, e.g.: سَوَايِنِ چَٹِيں مَنِيں سِيں with four maunds and a quarter or: سَوَا چَٹِيں مَنِيں سِيں. سَوَا may also precede سَوُو, هَزَارُ etc., as: سَوَا سَوُو one hundred and a quarter = 125; سَوَا هَزَارُ one thousand and a quarter = 1250.

اَدِّهْ adhu, half, is a common adjective and used accordingly.

سَاَدِّهَا sādhā, adding one half, is only used with nouns of number subsequent to 'two', and therefore ever found in the Plural; its fem. is سَاَدِّهِيُونِ sādhīyūn.

تَدِهِن سَادَهَا نَنَوَن سِير سِنْدَر تَرَاتِي تَوَرِي

Then she weighs with a balance nine sērs and a half of read lead. Maj. 320.

دِدَه دēdhu, one and a half, is only used in the Singular and not compounded with other numbers, as: دِدَه أَنُو dēdhu ānu one Anna and a half; دِدَه رَتِي dēdhu ratī one ratī and a half.

اَدَهَايِي adhāī, two and a half, is only used in the Plural, without distinction of gender in the Nominative; in the Formative Plural it makes for the Masc. اَدَهَايِي adhāīne, اَدَهَايِي adhāyane or: اَدَهَايِي adhāīē, and for the fem. اَدَهَايِي adhāīne, اَدَهَايِي adhāyune, اَدَهَايِي adhāīē; اَدَهَايِي كَمِ adhāī kama two yards and a half; اَدَهَايِي تَوِيَرِ adhāī tawīr two Tōis and a half; Formative: اَدَهَايِي كَجِنِ adhāī kajan etc.

From these fractional numbers another kind of adjectives has been derived, implying "consisting of, computed at such a rate, standing in such a relation", as:

پَانِيُو pānyō or پَانِيَكُ pānyaku, only used in the compound: تَرِپَانِيُو trīpānyō or: تَرِپَانِيَكُ trīpānyaku, computed at at three quarters of a rupee.

پَاو pāo, compounded with cardinal numbers, as:

تَرِي پَاو trī pāo, consisting of three quarters.

سَوَايُو savāyō, computed at $1\frac{1}{4}$.

دِدَهو dēdhō, consisting of $1\frac{1}{2}$.

دِدَهو دِدَهو dēdhu dēdhu, standing in the $1\frac{1}{2}$ place.

اَدَهَايُو adhāyō, consisting of $2\frac{1}{2}$.

اَدَهَاو adhāo, standing in the $2\frac{1}{2}$ place.

These are used as common adjectives and inflected and constructed accordingly.

The other fractional numbers may be made up by compositions, as:

آدھ پاڻ adhu pāu = $\frac{1}{8}$.

ڊيڊھ پاڻ dēdhu pāu = $\frac{3}{8}$.

ٻا ٽريھائي bā trihāi = $\frac{2}{3}$.

پاڻا ٻا paṇā bā = $1\frac{3}{4}$.

etc. etc. etc.

Fractions with special application are:

پارپو pārupō, پاڻي pāilī, پاڻي pāine,	}	a quarter of a rupee.
--	---	-----------------------

پاڙي pāirī, the quarter of a گچ (yard).

لاري lārī, one third of a rupee.

آدھيل adhēlī, آدھيو ādhiō,	}	half a rupee piece.
--	---	---------------------

آدھيري adhirī, half a gaḷ, or half a ڊاميڙي (ḍamirī).

Chapter XI.

Pronouns.

§. 31.

The personal pronoun is in Sindhī of two kinds: it is either used as an absolute pronoun or as a suffix, acceding to nouns, adverbs or verbs.

I. PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

The Sindhī has a personal pronoun only for the first and second person Singular and Plural, the third person is made up by means of demonstrative pronouns. A remnant of the old (now lost) personal pronoun of the third person has been preserved in the pronominal suffix of the third person, as we shall see hereafter.

1) The personal pronoun of the first person.

There are two forms in common use for the first person Singular, آئون āũ, and shortened آں ā; besides these مان mā or مون mū are also dialectically used in Sirō.

The great deterioration of the language is strikingly illustrated by the present forms of the absolute pronouns. The Prākṛit form is अहं or अहञ् (Sansk. अहं); but in the corrupted Apabhraṃśa dialect, the mother of the modern Sindhī, we meet already the form हउं, from हमु (by elision of म), from which the Sindhī āũ has drawn its origin (Lassen, §. 183); the other form ā has been simply contracted from अहं. The two other forms mā and mū are originally the Accusative, Sanskrit मां (Prākṛit shortened मं), and are still used as the Formative Singular.

The Genitive منهن mūhū or منهن mūhē, with the adjective affix جو jō, is to be referred to the Prākṛit Genitive मह (Sansk. मम), Apabhraṃśa महु (Lassen §. 183), the vowels being nasalized in Sindhī.

The Nominative Plural is آسین asī, Prākṛit अम्हे (Sansk. root अस्म); in Sindhī m has been elided and final ē changed to ī (= ī); the Formative آسان asā corresponds to the Prākṛit Genitive Plural अम्हाण (Sansk. अस्माक).

Annotation. In the cognate dialects the Accusative has similarly been used for the Nominative; Marāṭhī mī (inferior Prākṛit dialect मई, Lassen §. 183, 2), Formative ma (Prākṛit Genitive मह); Hindūstānī maī, Formative mujhē or mujh (Prākṛit Genitive मज्ज); Panjābī: maī, Formative maī; but Gujarātī: hū, Formative ma. In the Plural the Marāṭhī has in the Nominative āhmī, in the Formative āhmā; the Hindūstānī ham, Formative ham or hamō; the Panjābī asē, Formative asā; the Gujarātī hamē or hamō, Formative ham or hamō.

2) The personal pronoun of the second person.

The pronoun of the second person is تُو tū, which points rather to the Sansk. त्वं, than to the Prāk. तुम;
 the Formative and Instrumentalis تُو tō is derived from the Prāk. Instrum. तुए; the Genitive تُوھن tūhū or تُوھن tūhē (with جو etc.) corresponds to the Apabhranśa Genitive तुहं.

The Plural of this pronoun presents a great variety of forms, as: تَوَهِينَ tavhī, تَوِينِ tavī, تَهِينِ tahī, تَيْنِ tai; or: أَوَّهِي avhī (avhē), أَوَّي avē, أَهِي ahī, آئِي āi, أَنِئِي āi.

The forms tavhī etc. have been derived from the Prākrit Nom. Plural तुम्हे, tū having been changed to tav, and m elided. The forms avhī, ahī etc. are very remarkable. As initial t is never elided, they cannot well be derived from tavhī etc. It is therefore very probable, that these forms are to be referred to the Sansk. Plural युष्मे = Prāk. युम्हे, and with elision of initial y, umhē; in Sindhī 'u' has been changed to 'av' and m elided, as in tavhī.

The Formative تَوَّهَانَ tavhā, أَوَّهَانَ avhā corresponds to the Prāk. Genitive Plural तुम्हाणं.

Annotation. The cognate dialects agree in all essential points with the Sindhī. Marāṭhī: tū, Formative tū or tūja (Prākrit तुह or तुज्ज; Nom. Plural tuhmī and Formative tuhmā. Hindūstānī: tū or tai; Genitive tē-rā (mē-rā), rā being used in this instance to form a pronominal adjective; the Formative tujh is properly the Prākrit Genitive तुज्ज, and the Instrumentalis tū coincides with the Sindhī tō. The Nomin. Plural tum is shortened from the Prākrit तुम्हे, and the forms tumhā (tumhā-rā), tumhō, tumh point back to the Prākrit Genitive Plural तुम्हाणं. Panjābī: tū, Genitive tē-rā, Instrument. tai (Prākrit तइ), Formative tai (Prākrit Genitive ते). Nom. Plural: tusī, Formative: tusā. Gujārātī: tū, Genitive: tāhā-rō, Formative ta; Nom. Plural: tamē or tamō, Formative tam or tamō.

II. DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

§. 32.

1) The proximate demonstrative pronoun is هي hī, هي hē or هيٺي hīu (also pronounced: هيٺي hīu); in Lār initial h is commonly dropped, as: اي ī, اي ē, ايٺي iū. The base of this pronoun is ī (cf. Bopp §. 360 sqq.); in the Formative another pronominal base is substituted, i-na, (Bopp §. 369; compare also the inflexion of इदम् 'this' in Sansk.).

• Annotation. The Marāṭhī form of this demonstrative is hā, Formative: yā (Prākṛit अय्यं = Sansk. अयम्); Hindūstānī: yeh, Formative: is (Sansk. अस्य); Plural: yē, Formative: in. Panjābī: ih, Formative: is, Instrument.: in; Plural: ih, Formative: inā.

2) The emphatic proximate demonstrative is اهو ihō, 'this very'; 'this here'. It is properly a compound pronoun, consisting of the demonstrative base 'i', and 'hō' = Sansk. ह (इह), and therefore inflected according to both terminations.

3) The demonstrative pronoun اِجھو ijhō, 'this one present' is only used in the Nom. Sing. and Plural. It is apparently compounded of the base 'i' and the Sansk. pronoun सः, s being now and then changed in Sindhi to j, and even to jh (see: Introduction §. 11, 2).

4) The remote demonstrative pronoun is هو hū or هو hō, in Lār pronounced او ū or او ō. The base of this pronoun, hū, is not in use in Sanskrit, but in Prākṛit a remnant of it has been preserved in the Genitive हे. Its theme must have been (according to Bopp, Comp. Gramm. §. 341) sva, from which 'hu' has been regularly formed. Its inflection quite agrees with that of هي hī, only hu (u) being substituted instead of 'hi' in the Formative.

Annotation. The Marāṭhī does not know this pronominal base; it only uses tō, corresponding to the Sindhī sō. In Panjābī we find uh, Instrum. un, and Formative us, Plur. uh, Formative unā. The Hindūstānī uses: wōh, Formative us; Plural wē, Format. un (Hinduī: wah, Formative vā; Plur. wē, Formative: un). The Gujārātī, like the Marāṭhī, has only the theme tē.

III. THE RELATIVE PRONOUN.

The relative pronoun in Sindhī is جَوُ jō, 'who', 'what', Sansk. यो, Prāk. जो; the Formative Singular جَنْهِن jāhē corresponds to the Prākrit Genitive जस्स = जह, the vowels having been nasalized in Sindhī. The Nom. Plural is جِي jē, as in Prākrit जे, and the Formative جِن jine or جَنِ jane points to the Prākrit Genitive Plur. जाण, ā having been shortened in Sindhī.

Annotation. IV. THE CORRELATIVE PRONOUN.

The pronoun سُو sō is nearly always used as the correlative of جُو; it is seldom found isolated, in which case it retains its original signification 'that'. It corresponds to the Sansk. pronoun सः, Prāk. सो. The Formative Sing. تَنُهِيْ tāhē is derived from the Prāk. Genitive तस्स (Sansk. तस्य) = तह; the Nom. Plur. سِي sē differs so far from the Sanskrit and Prākrit (ते), as having retained the base of the Singular; the Formative Plural تَنِ tane is to be referred to the Prāk. Genitive ताण, ā having been shortened, as in जाण.

Annotation. All the kindred idioms know this pronoun; Marāṭhī: tō, Plur. tē; Gujarātī likewise: tē, Plur. tēō; Hindūst.: sō or taun, Formative tis; Nom. §. 35.

V. INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

1) The interrogative pronoun ڪيرُ kēru, who?

This pronoun is only used absolutely. The Nominative base ڪيرُ kēru is derived from the Sanskrit कीदृश, Prāk. केरिस (see Introduction §. 2, 6); but the Formative Singular ڪنھن kāhē, and the Format. Plural ڪن kane point back to the Sansk. कः; Genitive Sing. कस्य, Prāk. कस्स = कह; Genitive Plural in Prākrit काण, the ā of which has been shortened in Sindhī.

Annotation. The cognate idioms fall back on the Sansk. base कः (i. e. on the Accus. Sing. कं), as Marāṭhī and Gujarātī: kōṇ; Hindūst.: kaun, Format. kis; Plural kaun, Format.

kin, kinh, kinhō; Panjābī: kaṇ, Instrument. kin, Format. kis;
Plural kaṇ, Formative kinā. Bangālī: kē, Formative kāhā;

2) The interrogative pronoun چها čhā, what?

This pronoun is only used in a neuter sense and has no Plural. The Genitive چها جو čhā jō etc. signifies: of what sort, of what kind? With the postpositions کهي khē, کان kāne, کهاں khā, it signifies: what for? to what purpose? why? — It is derived from the Sansk. किम् what.

Annotation. The Hindūstānī uses kiā, the Panjābī kī and kiā, Format. kās; the Marāṭhī kāy (Formative kasā); Bangālī: ki, Format. kāha. Hinduī: kahā, Format. kāhe.

جي لُون جو سَوادَ وَڃي تہ چها سان سلونو تهئي

If the savour of the salt goes, whit what shall it be salted? Matth. 5, 13.

3) The interrogative pronoun کوه kōhu, what?

This pronoun is only used in a neuter sense, just as the preceding one, and is indeclinable. It signifies very frequently 'why', 'what for'. In poetry it is occasionally shortened to کُه kuhu.

As to its derivation it is identical with چها (= kā, kahā), ā having been changed to ō in this instance. The same is also the case in Hinduī, where kaun, who? makes the Formative either in kā, kōhe or kāhe.

Sh. Kal. II, 25.

4) The interrogative pronouns کِهَوِ kēhō,
کِهَارَوِ kēhārō and کُجَارَوِ kujārō, what? which?

These three interrogative pronouns may either be used absolutely or adjectively with a substantive. Instead of کِهَوِ kēhō the form کِئَوِ kēō is also used in Lār; کِهَارَوِ kēharō may also be written کِهَرَوِ kēharō or it may be contracted to کِرِهَوِ kērō; about their derivation see Introd. §. 2, 6. They are inflected regularly. The Dative Sing. of کُجَارَوِ, i. e. کُجَارَی کِهِي kujārē khē and the Ablative of the fem. Sing. کُجَارَتَانِ kujārēā (frequently also written کُجَارَتَا) is generally used as an interrogative adverb, 'why?' 'what for?'

VI. INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

- 1) The indefinite pronoun ڪو kō, any one;
some one.

The root of this indefinite pronoun is the same as that of the interrogative (Sansk. कोऽपि); the Formative Sing. and Plural is therefore identical in both pronouns.

frequent use:

kō may also be repeated:

ڪنو ڏهيلي ڏاکھري ڪمندان ڪي کار

With hard labour scoop a little out the heart from the sugar-cane. Golden Alphab. VI, 8.

With a negation ڪو signifies: no one, nobody, and ڪي kī: nothing; for emphasis' sake they are frequently reduplicated, in which case the negation is put between them, as: ڪو نه ڪو kō na kō, nobody at all, ڪي نه ڪي kī na kī, nothing at all.

هتوئيئين همراھ تهينده ڪٽنبه منجهون ڪو نه ڪو

When ڪو is followed by the auxiliary verb آهي āhe (is) with a negation, a contraction takes place, as: ڪونهي kōnhē (instead of: ڪو نه آهي) there is nobody (m.), ڪانهي kānhē (f.); ڪونهڪو kōnhēkō, there is nobody at all (m.), ڪانهڪا kanhēkā (f.); ڪينهيڪي kīhēkī, there is nothing at all.

2) The compound indefinite pronoun جيڪو jēkō, whoever.

The original form of this pronoun is جوکو jōkō, fem. جاکا jākā, which alone is in use in the Formative Sing. and Plural, in the Nominative Sing. and Plural however the form جيڪو jēkō preponderates; it is composed of جي jē, if, and ڪو kō, literally: if any one. Instead of جيڪو or جوکو the reduplicated relative جوجو jōjō (and as its correlative سوسو sōsō) is likewise in use; it is inflected in the same way as the single جو (or سو).

The neutral form of this pronoun, جيڪي jēkī, whatever, is not inflected.

Annotation. Another compound of ڪو is هَڪو harkō, every one, whoever (Hindūstānī: harkōī); it is only used in the Singular and inflected regularly, as:

Nom. هَڪو harkō, fem. هَڪا harkā;

Format. هَڪَنهن harkāhē, com.

§. 37.

VII. THE RECIPROCAL PRONOUN

پَان pāna, 'self'.

The reciprocal pronoun in Sindhī is پَان pāna, 'self', in person, in contradistinction to پَان pānu, s. m., one's own person or personality. It is derived from the Sansk. आत्मा, soul, self, which becomes in Prākṛit either अप्या (Var. III, 48) or अप्याण (Var. V, 45). From the latter Prākṛit form appāṇa, the Sindhī پَان has sprung by dropping the first syllable 'ap'.

Annotation. The Marāṭhī reciprocal pronoun āpaṇ points likewise back to the Prākṛit appāṇa, whereas the Hindūstānī āp (possessive: ap-nā) is to be traced back to the Prākṛit form appā; similarly the Panjābī: āp, possessive āp-nā. In Gujarātī both Prākṛit forms reappear: āp, and possessive: āpaṇ-nō.

From the original signification of پَانْ pāna, 'soul' (like the Hebrew נֶפֶשׁ), its application may be easily explained. It refers in a sentence always to the chief-subject, be it distinctly expressed or only tacitly understood. In the Genitive (جُو پَانْهَن pāhā jō etc.), which serves as a possessive pronoun, it may be translated by 'own'; but at the same time it points out with a peculiar nicety the subject, to which it must be referred, and may then be translated by the respective possessive pronoun, required by the subject.

SINGULAR and PLURAL.

Nom. پَانْ pāna, self; masc. and fem.

Format. } پَانْ pāna.

Genit. جُو پَانْهَن pāhā jō; پَانْهَن جُو pāhā jō; پَانْ جُو pāna jō (in Lār).

Dative. } پَانْ کِهِي pāna khē.

Accusat. }

Ablat. پَانْ پَانْ panā; پَانْ کِهَانْ pāna khā.

An adverbial form is پَانْهَن pānahī, of, from, by himself or themselves, in person; in a similar sense the Ablative پَانْ panā is also used.

پَانْهَن سَنَجَانِي پَانْ پَانْ کَر پَانْ لَهِي

پَانْهَن پَسِي پَانْ کِهِي پَانْهَن هِي حَبُوبُ

پُوجَا کر مہ پَان کھی جُوگی رکھج جُوگی

Do not worship thyself; o Jōgī, keep (thy) devotion! Sh. Rāmākālī VII, 20.

تُون پَنھن جي بھاء کھی کينئي چَوَندين تہ مُون کھی
پَنھن جي آکھ مُون کَتر کَدھَن ٿي

How wilt thou say to thy brother: let me pull out the mote from thy eye? Matth. 7, 4.

In this last sentence the subject, to which the reciprocal pronoun is to be referred, must be found out from the context or the emphasis of the speaker.

دھُر dhure is not a reciprocal pronoun, as alleged by Capt. Geo. Stack; it is the Locative of دھُر dhuru, 'extremity', 'exact spot' (Panjābī: dhur, adv.), used adverbially. The same is to be remarked of پِنْدَ pinḍe, which is the Locative of پِنْدُ pinḍu, s. m. 'body', and signifies: 'in person'. For this reason its Genitive is جو پِنْدَ jō pinḍa etc.

پر پُچھ پِنْدَ پَانھن جو مَنجھس مَنھ. پاڙو

But ask thy own body (i. e. thyself), having turned thy face upon it. Golden Alphabet 43, 7.

'One another' is expressed in Sindhī in the following way:

ھينئا ھيڪڙا ٻين کھی سَدائين سارين

Their hearts always remember each other. Maj. 200.

§. 38.

VIII. PRONOMINAL ADJECTIVES.

Under this head we class only such adjectives, as participate more or less of the nature of pronouns and are somewhat irregular in their inflexion, and such, as are derived from pronominal themes. All other adjectives, which may, according to their position in a sentence, supply the place of the pronoun, we exclude from this list, such as: فُلَانُو fulānō, a certain person, هِكِرُو hikrō, one, بِنُو biō, another, سَجُو sajō, whole, as they are treated and constructed as regular adjectives.

1) Indefinite pronominal adjectives.

We have to deal here with the pronominal adjectives سَبْهُ sabhu, whole, all, every one; the emphatic form of which is سَبْهُوئِي sabhōi; with the compound سَبْهُكُو sabhukō, every one, and مِرْيُوئِي miryōi or مِرْيُوئِي mirōi, all, whole, every one.

a) The pronominal adjective سَبْهُ sabhu.

It is derived from the Sansk. सर्व, Prāk. सव्व; Hindūstānī: sab (Marāṭhī: sarv); in Sindhī b has been aspirated (as in Panjābī: sabh) on account of the elided r (see: Introd. §. 15, B. c.)

Ablat.	سَبْهَانِ سَبْهَانِ sabhaneā (سَبْهَانِ sabhinā). سَبْهَانِ کِهَانِ sabhane khā etc.

In the Nom. Plur. we find occasionally سَبْهِي sabhē written, instead of سَبْهَ sabhe. In the Formative Plural سَبْهَانِ sabhē may be used, instead of سَبْهَانِ etc., when the noun immediately follows in the Formative (ē).

The Locative Sing. masc. مِرْيَيْي mirēi, 'in all', 'throughout', 'altogether', is very frequently used, where we would employ the simple adjective all, whole; but it is to be noticed, that the Locative مِرْيَيْي mirēi always follows immediately the noun, on which the stress is thus to be laid.

2) Correlative adjectives.

The Sindhī possesses a great facility to derive correlative adjectives from pronominal bases.

a) The pronominal adjectives, denoting 'quantity' are formed by affixing to the original Sanskrit-Prākrit bases or other bases formed alike, the adjectival termination rō, as: کیتِرُو kētirō, how much? Sansk. कियत् Prāk. केसिञ्च. As similar phenomenon is to be noticed in the cognate idioms, as Hindūstānī: kittā and kit-nā; Panjābī: kit-nā; Marāṭhī: kitī or with the affix k: kitik; Gujārātī: kēt-lō; but Bangālī: kaṭ.

b) The pronominal adjectives denoting 'size', are formed by affixing to the respective pronominal base the termination: دَو dō, as: کیدَو kēdō, how large? This termination is properly not an adjectival affix, but an adjective: وَدَو vaḍō, 'great', the first syllable of which is dropped in this composition. This is clearly proved by the Marāṭhī, as: kē-vaḍhā, how great, and the Gujārātī: kē-vaṭō (but Panjābī: kē-ḍā, as in Sindhī).

All these pronominal adjectives admit again of a diminutive form, by adding the affix rō (see §. 11), as: کیدِرُو kēḍirō, how small?

c) The pronominal adjectives denoting 'kind' are formed by adding to the pronominal bases kēha, jēha, tēha, ēha, hūa (ūha), the diminutive affix rō, in consequence of which the long vowel of the pronominal base is shortened to its corresponding short one, as:

 کَهَرَوُ kēharō, of what kind or manner?

The pronominal bases, from which these three kinds of adjectives are derived, are: ē or hē, this; ō (ū) and hō (hū), that; the relative jō (jē), the correlative sō (tē), and the interrogative kē.

We exhibit them in the following survey:

From the base:	Quantity.	Size.		Kind.
ē or hē	اِيتِرَوُ ētirō	اِيدَوُ ēdō	اِيدِرَوُ ēdirō	اِهَرَوُ ēharō
	هِيَتِرَوُ hētirō this much.	هِيدَوُ hēdō as large as this	هِيدِرَوُ hēdirō as small as this	هِيَرَوُ hiarō of this kind.
ō or hō	اوتِرَوُ ōtirō	اوَدَوُ ōdō	اوَدِرَوُ ōdirō	اُهَرَوُ uharō
	هوَتِرَوُ hōtirō that much	هوَدَوُ hōdō as large as that	هوَدِرَوُ hōdirō as small as that	هُرَوُ huarō of that kind.
jō (jē) and sō (tē)	جِيَتِرَوُ jētirō as much	جِيَدَوُ jēdō as large	جِيَدِرَوُ jēdirō as small	جِهَرَوُ jēharō of which kind.
	تِيَتِرَوُ tētirō so much	تِيَدَوُ tēdō so large	تِيَدِرَوُ tēdirō so small	تِهَرَوُ tēharō of that kind.
kē	کِيَتِرَوُ kētirō ¹⁾ how much	کِيَدَوُ kēdō how large	کِيَدِرَوُ kēdirō how small	کِهَرَوُ kēharō of what kind.

All these correlative adjectives are inflected regularly, according to their respective termination (masc. and fem.).

1) Not to be confounded with کِيَتِرَوُ is the interrogative pronominal adjective کَنُونِ kāō, which of more than two, Sansk. कानम; about its formation see Introd. §. 9.

§. 39.

attached to nouns and postpositions.

Instead of the inflected cases of the absolute personal and possessive pronouns the Sindhī uses very extensively the so-called suffixes or pronouns, which are affixed to nouns, postpositions (adverbs) and verbs. The use of these suffixes constitutes quite a peculiar feature of the Sindhī language and distinguishes it very advantageously from all the kindred idioms of India, which are destitute of pronominal suffixes; but at the same time the construction of the sentences is very frequently thereby rendered so intricate, that it presents great embarrassments to a beginner. In this respect the Sindhī quite agrees with the Paṣtō and the Persian, being the connecting link between the Indian and Iranian languages.

Here we shall describe the manner, in which the suffixes are attached to nouns and postpositions; the verbal suffixes will be treated in their proper place.

The pronominal suffixes, which are added to nouns and adverbs, are:

Singular.	Plural.
I pers. م me.	اُون ū or هُون hū.
II pers. ا e.	و va.
III pers. س se.	ن ne or ن na.

The suffix of the I pers. Sing. me corresponds to the Prākṛit Genitive Sing. मे my; the Persian suffix is م— am, Paṣtō me, as in Sindhī.

The suffix of the II pers. Sing. ا has sprung from the Sansk. Genitive Sing. ते, thy, t being elided in Sindhī according to Prākṛit rule (see Introd. §. 7). In Persian final e (tē) has been dropped and t preserved (= at), whereas the Paṣtō has retained the original form of this pronoun, only with transition of the tenuis into the media = ॡ de.

The suffix of the III pers. Sing. se is to be referred to the Prākṛit Genitive से (shortened from अस्या), literally: hujus. In Persian it has become شـ, whereas in Paṣtō s has been changed to h (Zend hē) and then altogether elided = ٻي ē.

The suffix of the I pers. Plur. ũ or hũ accedes to postpositions only, no suffix of the I pers. Plur. being in use with nouns. It is a contraction from the Prāk. Genitive Plur. अम्हो, the first syllable being dropped in Sindhī. The Persian form is ما mā, Paṣtō مو mū or ام um.

The suffix of the II pers. Plur. ; va is derived from the Sansk.-Prāk. Genitive Plur. वो; Persian on the other hand شـا (pointing to the Sansk. Genit. Plur. युष्माकम्) but Paṣtō مو mū (m = v):

The suffix of the III pers. Plur. ne or na has apparently sprung from an old pronominal base न na, which is already in Pāli substituted for सो, that; the Prāk. Genit. Plur. would be रोहिं (cf. Lassen p. 325; Var. VI, 4), shortened ne, or na from राण.

These suffixes, according to their etymology, supply, when attached to nouns, the place of possessive pronouns; but when joined with postpositions or adverbs, they may stand in lieu of any inflected personal pronoun. The suffix however, which properly belongs to the noun, may also be attached to the verb, as will be explained under the verbal suffixes.

§. 40.

I. Pronominal suffixes attached to nouns.

When a suffix accedes to a noun, its final vowel undergoes in some instances a change. But it is to be noticed, that the suffixes are not used promiscuously with nouns, but for the most part only with those referring to man, far less with those referring to animals or to inanimate objects.

In the Nominative Singular:

- 1) Nouns ending in 'u' undergo no change before the suffixes.
- 2) Nouns ending in ō generally shorten the same to 'u'; but ō may also keep its place before the suffixes.
- 3) Masc. nouns ending in i change the same for euphony's sake either to yu or to ya.
- 4) Fem. nouns ending in i change the same either to ya or shorten it to 'i'.
- 5) Nouns ending in 'e' (i) remain unaltered before the suffixes.

In the Formative Singular the suffixes accede to the final vowel without any further change, with the exception of nouns ending in ō, the Formative Singular of which terminates before suffixes in ä, and not in ē.

In the Nominative Plural a final long vowel is shortened respectively and final nasal n dropped before the suffixes; but final i of masc. nouns is changed to ya, as in the Nom. Sing.

In the Formative Plural the suffixes accede to the termination ne without any further change.

Nouns ending in ū (ũ) and ā are hardly ever found with suffixes; of nouns ending in 'a' there are some instances, but they are very rare, and only found in poetry. On the whole the suffixes are for the most part attached to nouns ending in 'u' and ō, far less to those ending in ī (masc. and fem.) and 'e'.

The way, in which the suffixes are attached to nouns, may best be learnt from the following examples.

1) Nouns ending in u (masc.)

Nom. Sing. نَيْنَ nēnu, eye; Form. نَيْنَ nēna.

Nominative.

Sing.	{	I pers. نَيْنُمُ nēnūme, my eye.
		II pers. نَيْنِيَّ nēnue, thy eye.
		III pers. نَيْنِسِ nēnuse, his eye.

Formative.

Sing.	{	I pers. نَيْنَمُ nēname; نَيْنَهُمُ nēnahime.
		II pers. نَيْنِيَّ nēnae; نَيْنِهْ nēnahe.
		III pers. نَيْنِسِ nēnase; نَيْنِهْنِسِ nēnahise.

Nominative.

Plur.	{	II pers. نَيْنُوَ nēnuva, your eye.
		III pers. نَيْنُنِ nēnune, their eye.

Formative.

Plur.	{	II pers. نَيْنَوُ nēnava; نَيْنَهُنَّ nēnahīva.
		III pers. نَيْنُنِ nēnane; نَيْنِهِنِ nēnahine.

Nom. Plur. نَيْنَ nēna; Form. نَيْنِنِ nēnane.

Nominative.

Formative.

Sing.	{	I pers. نَيْنَمُ nēname, my eyes.	نَيْنِمُ nēnanime.
		II pers. نَيْنِيَّ nēna-e, thy eyes.	نَيْنِيَّ nēnani.
		III pers. نَيْنِسِ nēnase, his eyes.	نَيْنِسِ nēnanise.

	Nominative.	Formative.
Plur.	II pers. نَيْنَوِ nēnava, your eyes.	نَيْنِنَوِ nēnaniva.
	III pers. نَيْنَنِ nēnane, their eyes.	نَيْنِنَنِ nēnanine.

In the Formative Sing. there is instead of the suffix me, the form hime also in use, as: نَيْنَهَمِ nēnahime; and instead of se we find likewise the form hise, as: نَيْنَهِسِ nēnahise. In the Format. Plur. the suffix of the II pers. ē is generally contracted with the final e of the termination ne to ē (ē) or even i, or hē is affixed, to avoid a hiatus, as: نَيْنَنِ nēnanē, نَيْنَنِ nēnanī or: نَيْنَنِ nēnanehe.

In poetry final 'u' is frequently lengthened again to ō before the suffixes; but final 'a' may also be likewise lengthened, if required by the metre, as: نَيْنَانَ nēnāna, instead of نَيْنَنَا nēnana.

Some nouns of this class, which do not change final 'u' in the Formative Singular, are somewhat irregular in attaching the suffixes. These are: پِي پِي piu, father, بھاء bhāu, brother, ماء māu, mother, دھي dhiu, daughter, نھ nuhu, daughter-in-law.

2) Nouns ending in ō.

Nouns ending in ō do not differ essentially from those in 'u', as regards the annexion of the suffixes; they generally shorten final ō to 'u', but they may also retain the same in the Nom. Sing., which is frequently the case in poetry. The Formative Sing. always terminates in 'a', not in ē, when followed by suffixes. In the Nomin. Plural final ā may be likewise preserved before suffixes, instead of being shortened to 'a'.

1) In Sirō the people very commonly substitute 'i' instead of 'a' in the Formative Sing. as: مَتِهْمْ mathime etc.

2) In poetry the long vowels may be retained, as: مَتِهْوْ mathō-e, مَتِهَانْ mathā-na.

3) Nouns ending in ī (masc.)

Nouns ending in ī (m.) generally change the same to ya, far less to yu, before the accession of the suffixes; in the Formative Sing. ē must always be changed to ya. The same is the case in the Nom. Plur., so that only the context can decide, whether a noun is put in the Nominative or Formative Sing. or in the Nominative Plural.

In poetry a final short vowel may be lengthened before a suffix, as: دَهْنِيَّاسِ dhanyāse, instead of: دَهْنِيَّاسِ dhanyase.

4) Nouns ending in ī (fem.)

Nouns ending in ī (fem.) either shorten final ī to 'i' before the suffixes or change it to ya; the latter is always the case with adjectives and participles ending in ī. The termination of the Nomin. Plur. ū is shortened to 'u' and the final nasal dropped before the suffixes.

§. 41.

II. PRONOMINAL SUFFIXES

attached to Postpositions and Adverbs.

The rules, according to which pronominal suffixes are attached to nouns, are also applicable in reference to postpositions and adverbs. Any pronominal suffix may be joined with a postposition, but with most of them only the suffix of the third person Singular and Plural is in use. It is however quite optional in Sindhī, either to subjoin a pronominal suffix to a postposition, or to put the absolute pronoun before it in the Formative, with or without the Genitive case-sign جي, as: وڙسِ vāṭise, with him, or: هُنَ وَتَ huna vāṭe.

1) The postposition سَندو sandō.

سَندو sandō is originally not a postposition, but an adjective, and therefore declinable, as well as جو, the Genitive case-sign, for which it is very frequently substituted (see §. 18). It corresponds to the Panjābī sandā, being (Sansk. part. pres. सन्त = सन्) and signifies therefore: 'belonging to'. It is now used as a regular postposition, chiefly in connexion with suffixes, before such nouns, to which suffixes are not attached, either for the sake of the final vowel, or for perspicuity's sake, or, as in poetry, for the sake of the metre.

1) Short 'a' may be lengthened to ā in poetry for the sake of the rhyme.

In the same way the suffixes are attached to سِين sēnu, with. In the third person Plural we meet often in poetry the form سِينَان sēnāna or سِينَانِ sēnāne, instead of سِينِن sēnune.

Other postpositions of this kind are: گَرِ gare, to; وَتِ vate, near, with; مَنجِه manjhe, in; هِيتِه hēthe, below etc. Before the suffix of the third person Sing. final i (e) is often lengthened to ī, as: وَتِيس vatiṣe, near him, and before the suffix of the third person Plur. to ī, as: مَنجِهِين manjhīna, in them.

Postpositions and adverbs ending in ē are treated differently; they either retain ē before the suffixes or they shorten it to ě (i); thus the postposition کهي khē, the case-sign of the Dative or Accusative, retains its final ē before the suffixes, as: کھيس khēse, to him (her, it), کھين khēne or کھين khēna, to them, whereas اتي utē, upon, shortens final ē to ě (i) as: اٽيس utise, upon him (her, it) or: اٽھيس utehise; اٽين utine, upon them or: اٽھين utehine. Others again vary, as: مٿي mathē, upon (properly the Locative of مٿو mathō, the head), مٿا مٿا-matha-e, upon thee (the Formative of مٿو), but مٿيس mathise, upon him (being properly the Locative of مٿو, the top).

To the postposition مِیْنِ mē (in) the suffixes are attached in the following manner: مِیْنِسَ mēse, in him (her, it) or: مِیْنِسَ maīse (in Sirō); مِیْنُونِ maīnū, in us; مِیْنِ mēne or مِیْنِ mēna (in Sirō: مِیْنِ maina) in them.

4) Postpositions ending in ā, ā̃, āū, ō.

Those, which terminate in ā, remain unaltered before a suffix, as: کِیْنَا kīnā to thee, کَنَاسِ kēnāse, to him, کِیْنَانِ kēnāne, to them. Similarly کَہَا khā, from, as: کَہَاسِ khāse, from him, کَہَانِ khane, from them (the final nasal being dropped before a following dental n); مَتَہَانِ mathā, from upon (properly the Ablative of مَتَہُو mathō, the head), مَتَہَانِ mathāe, from upon thee, مَتَہَاسِ mathāse, from upon him; پُتَہَانِ pūthāse, from behind him, after him (properly the Ablat. of پُتَہُ pūthe, the back).

Before the suffix of the third person Plural a euphonic 'i' is occasionally inserted, especially in poetry, as: مَنجَہَانِیَن manjḥāine, instead of: مَنجَہَانِ manjḥāne, out of them.

Those ending in āū, āu, āu (termination of the Ablat. Sing.) remain likewise unchanged before suffixes, the final

SECTION III.

THE VERB.

The great deterioration, the modern Indian languages have undergone, is nowhere more apparent, than in their conjugational process. They have lost nearly all the Sanskrit tenses, especially those of the Past, which were too intricate for the conception of the vulgar, and have therefore been compelled to have recourse to compositions, in order to make up for the lost tenses. They differ very greatly as to the method, which they have followed in this respect, every one of them exhibiting some peculiar features, which are not to be met with in the other idioms.

Chapter XII.

Formation of the verbal themes, the Imperative and the Participles.

§. 42.

Formation of the verbal themes.

I. We have seen already (§. 7, 2) that the Infinitive of the Sindhī verbs, terminating in anu, corresponds to the verbal noun of the Sanskrit and Prākṛit. The root of the Sindhī verb is therefore not to be sought in the Infinitive, but in the Imperative, which exhibits the crude form of the verb without an additional increment, except that of the final vowel, which is no part of the verbal root.

Properly speaking there is only one class of verbs in Sindhī, as all verbs, with a slight difference, are inflected alike. There are therefore no different conjugations, as in Sanskrit, but the same rules of inflection apply equally to all verbs.

In some tenses though there is a marked difference between neuter and active verbs, and we may therefore, for practical purposes, divide the Sindhī verbs into neuter and active ones.

1) The neuter or intransitive verb ends in the Infinitive in anu and in the Imperative in 'u', as:

هَلَنُ hal-anu, to go, Imper. هَلْ hal-u, go.

وَرَنُ var-anu, to return, „ وَرْ var-u, return.

But in derivative verbs, where the termination of the Infinitive is preceded by ā, the Infinitive ends, for euphony's sake, in inu, as:

كَارَانِنُ kārā-inu, to be blackish, Imper. كَارَاءْ kārā-u.

When the verbal root ends in short 'a' or 'i', a euphonic v is inserted between it and the increment of the Infinitive, as:

پَوَنُ pa-v-anu, to fall, Imper. پَوْ pa-u.

نُونُ ni-v-anu, to bow, „ نُوْ ni-u.

2) The active or transitive verb ends in the Infinitive likewise in anu (in Sirō commonly in inu), and in the Imperative in 'e' (and partly in 'u'), as:

جَهَلَنُ jhal-anu, to seize, Imper. جَهَلْ jhal-e.

پَهَرَنُ phur-anu, to plunder, „ پَهَرْ phur-e.

But when the increment of the Infinitive is preceded by 'a', ā and ō, the Infinitive ends, for euphony's sake, in *inu*¹), as:

مَتِنُ ma-inu, to measure, Imper. مَيْ ma-e.

گَالِهَانِنُ gālhā-inu, to speak, „ گَالِهَاءْ gālhā-e.

دُهُونُ dhō-inu, to carry, „ دُهَوْدْ dhō-e.

1) Some Sindhīs, especially the Musalmāns, write and pronounce instead of ānu : ā-anu or contracted: ānu.

If a verbal root (active or neuter) end in ī and ū, these vowels are respectively shortened before the increment of the Infinitive, as:

پڻَ pi-anu, to drink, Imper. پي پي pi-u.

پوڻ pu-anu, to string beads, „ پو پو pū-u.

In some instances radical ō is likewise shortened to 'u' in the Infinitive, as:

دھون dhu-anu, to wash, Imper. دھو دھو dhō-u.

رون ru-anu, to weep, „ رو رو rō.

A number of Sindhī verbs have a different form when used in a neuter or active sense, but it would be wrong to say, that such neuter verbs are changed into an active form; they recur to a different Sanskrit form, from which they are derived and must therefore be considered as independent verbs.

The most common of these are:

 ھَپَامنُ hapāmanu, to be lessened . . . ھَپَائِنُ hapāinu.
 يَبھنُ yabhanu, to be copulated . . . يَھنُ yahanu.

II. Almost from every neuter or active verb a Causal may be derived. Those causals, which have sprung from a neuter verb, are, as regards their signification, active, whereas those, which are derived from an active verb, are doubly active.

The Causal is derived by adding to the root of a verb the long vowel ā, to which the increment of the Infinitive accedes as usual; e. g.:

وَرَجَنُ virṇaṇu, v. n., to be tired; causal: وَرَجَاتِنُ vir-c-ā-inu, to cause to be tired or to tire.

دَسَنُ ḍasaṇu, v. a., to show; causal: دَسَاتِنُ ḍasā-inu, to cause to show.

دِهَوْنُ dhōinu, v. a., to carry, causal: دِهَوْنَاتِنُ dhō-ā-inu, to cause to carry.

But when the verb ends in radical 'a', euphonic v is inserted between the final root-vowel and the causal increment, as:

مَاتِنُ ma-inu, v. a., to measure; causal: مَوَاتِنُ ma-v-ā-inu, to cause to measure.

Exceptions to this rule:

a) When a verb ends in radical r, ṛ, ṛh, h, preceded by a short 'a', the causal increment may be inserted in the root itself, coalescing with the short radical 'a' to ā, as:

بَرَنُ baraṇu, v. n., to burn; caus.: بَارَنُ bāraṇu, to kindle.

كَرَنُ garaṇu, v. n., to drop; caus. كَارَنُ gāraṇu, to cause to drop.

پَرَهَنُ parhaṇu, v. a., to read; caus.: پَارَهَنُ pārhaṇu, to cause to read, to teach.

كَهَنُ gaḥaṇu, v. n., to work hard; caus.: كَاهَنُ gāhaṇu, to make work hard.

In a number of verbs, the final r (ṛ) of which is preceded by the vowel 'i', ā is inserted before the final radical and 'i' dropped, as:

سُدْهِرَنُ sudhiraṇu, v. n., to be arranged; caus.: سُدْهَارَنُ sudhāraṇu, to arrange.

وِسِرَنُ visiraṇu, v. n., to be forgotten; caus.: وِسَارَنُ vi-sāraṇu, to forget.

كِهَنْدِرَنُ kindiraṇu, v. n., to be spread; caus.: كِهَنْدَارَنُ khindāraṇu, to spread.

اُجِرَنُ ujiraṇu, v. n., to be waste; caus.: اُجَارَنُ ujāraṇu, to lay waste.
etc. etc.

But the regular mode of forming the causal is also in use, as:

اَرَّانُ araṇu, v. n., to be caught; caus.: اَرَّانِ arā-inu, to entangle.

تَرَّانُ taraṇu, v. a., to fry; caus.: تَرَّانِ tarā-inu, to cause to fry.

پَرَّانُ parhaṇu, v. a., to read; caus.: پَرَّانِ parhā-inu, to cause to read.

سَنْبَهَنُ sambahaṇu, v. n., to be ready; caus.: سَنْبَهَانِ sambahā-inu, to get ready.

b) When final r or ṛ of a verbal root be preceded by the short vowels 'i' or 'u', the causal increment ā coalesces with them to ē and ō respectively, as:

پِهَرَنُ phiraṇu, v. n., to turn; caus.: پِهَرَنُ phēraṇu, to cause to turn.

كِهَنْدِرَنُ khindiraṇu, v. n., to be spread; caus.: كِهَنْدِيرَنُ khindēraṇu, to spread (besides كِهَنْدَارَنُ).

وَجْهَرُنْ vičhuraṇu, v. n., to be separated; caus.: وَجْهَرَزُنْ vičhōraṇu, to separate.

Those verbs, in which the root-vowel 'i' coalesces with the causal increment ā to ē, may add, besides the causal increment, ā to the end of the root, without altering the simple causal signification of the verb: as:

پِهَرُنْ phiraṇu, v. n., to turn; caus.: پِهَرِنْ phēraṇu or: پِهَرَايِنْ phērā-inu.

Some verbs with radical 'u', form the causal in the common way, as:

کُرُنْ kuraṇu, v. n., to be tired; caus.: کُرَايِنْ kurā-inu, to tire.

A few verbs change in the causal the final cerebral t (ṭr) and d̄ to ṛ, as:

بُدُنْ būdaṇu, v. n., to be drowned, caus.: بَوْرُنْ bō-raṇu, to drown.

تُرُتْرُنْ truṭraṇu, v. n., to be broken, caus.: تَرَوْرُنْ trō-raṇu, to break.

c) If a verb end in radical 'i' or 'u', r is inserted after the causal increment ā, as:

دِيَنْ dī-ṇu, v. a., to give; caus.: دِيَاَرُنْ dī-ā-r-aṇu, to cause to give.

چُونْ ču-aṇu, v. n., to leak; caus.: چُيَاَرُنْ ču-ā-r-aṇu, to cause to leak.

The same is the case, when final h is preceded by 'i', as:

وَهَنْ veh-aṇu, v. n., to sit; caus.: وِهَارُنْ veh-ā-r-aṇu, to cause to sit,

but if final h be preceded by 'u', the common rule holds good, as:

كُهْنُ kuh-aṇu, v. a., to kill; caus.: كُهَّائِنُ kuhā-iṇu, to cause to kill.

On the reverse a euphonic r is inserted before the causal increment in such verbs, the final radical of which ends in ā, as:

كُهَّائِنُ ghā-iṇu, v. a., to wound; caus. كُهَّارائِنُ ghā-rā-iṇu, to cause to wound.

There is a number of causal verbs, which cannot be brought under any of the foregoing rules; these are:

أُتَهَّنُ uthaṇu, v. n., to rise; caus.: أُتَهَّارِنُ uthāraṇu, to cause to rise.

دَرَجِنُ drijāṇu, v. n., to be afraid; caus.: دَرَجَّارِنُ drējāraṇu, to frighten.

سِكُهَّنُ sikhaṇu, v. a., to learn; caus.: سِكُهَّارِنُ sēkhāraṇu, to instruct.

سُمُهَّنُ sumhaṇu, v. n., to fall asleep; caus.: سُمُهَّارِنُ sumhāraṇu, to put to sleep.

وَنَجِنُ vaṇaṇu, v. n., to be lost; caus.: وَنَجَّائِنُ viṇāiṇu, to loose.

وَنُهَجِنُ vēhejaṇu, v. n., to bathe; caus.: وَنُهَجَّارِنُ vē-hejāraṇu, to wash.

III. From most of the causal verbs a second causal may be derived, according to the rules laid down already, the first or simple causal being treated again as a theme by itself.

Simple caus.: وَرَجَّائِنُ virčā-iṇu; double caus.: وَرَجَّارائِنُ virč-ā-r-ā-iṇu, to cause (another) to weary.

Simple caus.: گَارِنُ gāraṇu; double causal: گَارَّائِنُ gār-ā-iṇu, to cause to shed (tears).

Simple caus.: विचोराय viçhōraṇu; double caus.: विचोरायिन viçhōr-ā-iṇu, to cause to separate.

Simple caus.: पेहरायिन phēr-ā-iṇu; double caus.: पेहरायिन phēr-ā-r-ā-iṇu, to cause (another) to cause to turn.

Simple caus.: कहारयिन ghā-r-ā-iṇu; double caus.: कहारयिन ghā-r-ā-r-ā-iṇu, to cause (another) to cause to wound.

Annotation. The Prākṛit forms the causal either by adding the increment ē (Sansk. ay) or āvē (Sansk. āpay = ābē = āvē, cf. Varar. VII, 26, 27). In the modern Indian idioms only the latter increment is in use, which has been shortened to ā in Sindhī, Hindūstānī and Bangālī, the syllable vē having been dropped. In Gujārātī the causal is formed by adding the increment āv (and vād, when the verb ends in a vowel); in Panjābī by means of the increment āā. In Marāṭhī āv is generally shortened to av.

The insertion of euphonic r in Sindhī (in Hindūstānī and Panjābī l) has its precedent in the euphonic l, which is inserted in some Sanskrit causal themes.

The double causal is formed in Hindūstānī by inserting v before the simple causal increment ā; the same is the case in Panjābī and Gujārātī.

IV. Almost from every neuter, active or causal verb a Passive may be derived by adding to the verbal root the increment जन् jaṇu (j-anu). A few verbs, chiefly denominatives, are only found in the passive form, as: अकन्दहिजन् ukandhijaṇu, to long for, अङ्गुलिजन् angurijaṇu, to be exchanged, दमिरजन् ḍamirjaṇu, to be angry etc. Any neuter verb may take the passive form, without changing its original signification.

The passive of neuter or intransitive verbs is mostly used impersonally (III pers. Sing.), whereas that of active and causal verbs is inflected through all persons.

The passive increment جَنْ jānu is joined to the verbal root, if it end in a consonant, with or without the conjunctive vowel 'i', as euphony may require it; but if the verbal root end in a vowel, the conjunctive vowel 'i' must always be employed, as:

پُورَنْ pūraṇu, v. a., to bury; pass.: پُورَجَنْ pūr-jānu, to be buried.

كَهَتَنْ ghaṭaṇu, v. n., to lessen; pass.: كَهَتَجَنْ ghaṭi-jānu, to lessen.

وِنَجَائِنْ viñāinu, v. caus., to loose; pass.: وِنَجَائَجَنْ viñā-i-jānu, to be lost.

Those verbs, which end in a radical 'a' and in the Imperative in 'u' (see §. 43), as: چَوَنْ ča-v-aṇu, Imper. چَوُ ča-u, to speak, drop before the increment of the passive the euphonic v of the Infinitive, as: چَیَجَنْ ča-i-jānu, to be spoken; پَوَنْ pa-v-aṇu, to fall, Imper. پَوُ pa-u, pass. پَیَجَنْ pa-i-jānu, to fall.

Those verbs, which shorten their final root-vowel (ī, ū, ō) before the increment of the Infinitive (§. 42, 2), retain their long vowel before the passive termination j-aṇu, as:

پِئَنْ pi-aṇu, v. a., to drink; Imper. پِی پīu; pass. پِیَجَنْ pī-jānu, to be drunk.

پُورَنْ pu-aṇu, v. a., to string beads; Imper. پُورُ pū-u; pass. پُورَجَنْ pū-i-jānu, to be strung (as beads).

دُھَوَنْ dhu-aṇu, v. a., to wash; Imper. دُھَوُ dhō-u; pass. دُھَوَجَنْ dhō-i-jānu, to be washed.

Exceptions to these rules are:

تِهِنَنْ thi-aṇu, v. n., to become; Imper. تِهِي thi-u; pass. تِهَجَنْ thi-jānu, to become.

کَرَنُ karaṇu, v. a., to make; Imper. کَرِ kare (Prec. کِجِ kije); pass. کِجَنُ ki-jaṇu, to be done.

Annotation. In Sanskrit the Passive is formed by adding y to the root of the verb; in Prāk. y is dissolved into īa or ījja, and in the Apabhraṇṣa dialect ija or ījja is employed for the formation of the Passive (Lassen, p. 467). The increment of the Passive is therefore in Sindhī j, joined to the affix of the verbal noun or the Infinitive = j-āṇu. The Sindhī (and to some extent the Panjābī) is the only modern idiom of India, which has preserved a regular passive voice, all its sister languages being compelled to resort to compositions, in order to express a passive voice. The common way to form a passive voice in the kindred idioms is, to compound the past participle passive with the verb jānā, to go, as in Hindustānī: مَارَا جَاتَا هُون māī mārā jātā hū, I go being beaten = I am beaten. But the use of the passive voice, if it may be called so, is very limited in the cognate languages, and it is avoided wherever possible, which is greatly facilitated by a great number of verbs having a neuter or passive signification.

§. 43.

The Imperative.

The Imperative represents the root of a Sindhī verb, as stated already, and as the whole conjugational process depends a great deal upon it, its formation must be explained in the first place.

1) The Imperative of neuter and passive verbs always ends in 'u'), as:

مَرَنُ mar-aṇu, to die; Imper.: مَرِ mar-u.

اچَنُ aṇu, to come; Imper.: اچِ aṇ-u.

1) The only exception to this rule is:

پاڻوهَنُ pābuh-aṇu, v. n., to smile, which has in the Imperative, besides the regular پاڻوهِ pābuhu, also: پاڻوهِ pābūhe.

كَدَّجَنُ gaḍ-ij-aṇu, to meet; Imper.: كَدِّجُ gaḍ-ij-u.

Those verbs, which insert a euphonic v in the Infinitive, drop it again in the Imperative, as:

نَوْنُ na-v-aṇu, v. n., to bow, Imper.: نَوُ na-u.

If a final vowel has been shortened in the Infinitive, it is restored again in the Imperative, as:

تَهْنُنُ thi-aṇu, v. n., to become, Imper. تَهِيْ thī-u.

چُونُ ču-aṇu, v. n., to leak, Imper. چُو čū-u.

رُونُ ru-aṇu, v. n., to weep, Imper. رُو rō (= رُوْء).

Similarly: وَهْنُ veh-aṇu, v. n., to sit down; Imper. وَهْ vēh-u.

The following verbs form their Imperative both regularly and irregularly:

اَچُنُ ač-aṇu, v. n., to come; Imper. اَچُ ač-u and آء ā-u¹).

وَانُ vañ-aṇu, v. n., to go; Imper. وَنُ vañ-u and وُونُ va-ū.

2) The Imperative of active and causal verbs ends in 'e', as:

پَالُنُ pal-aṇu, v. a., to foster; Imper. پَالِ pāle.

كَهْتَانُنُ ghaṭā-iṇu, v. caus., to lessen; Imper. كَهْتَاءُ ghaṭā-ē.

But there is a considerable number of active verbs, which end in the Imperative in 'u' and not in 'e'; some have both terminations. These are:

1) From an old root \bar{A} ā, which is no longer used in Sindhi, but in Hindustāni (آنا ā-nā).

The following active verbs form their Imperative in an irregular way:

دِئَنْ ñiaṇu, to give; Imper. دِئِ ñe (instead of: دِئِ ñiu).

1) Capt. Stack in his Sindhi Grammar has adduced the following verbs also as active and ending in the Imperative in 'u':

بَكْنْ bakaṇu, to chatter,	سُنْهَنْ sūhaṇu,	} to suit,
بُهْلَنْ bhulaṇu, to forget,	سُنْهَائِنْ sūhā-iṇu,
چَنْبَرَنْ čamburaṇu, to stick close to,	وُچَرَنْ vačuraṇu, to stick to,
جَهَكَنْ jhakaṇu, to prate,	وِسَهَنْ visahaṇu, to trust,
رُچَنْ ručau, to please,	وَنَنْ vaṇaṇu, to please;

but all these are properly intransitive verbs and therefore quite regular in their Imperative.

نِئَنُ niaṇu, to take away; Imper. نِي (instead of نِيْ niu).

Verbs which end in the Imperative Sing. in 'u', form the Plural in ō (or yō, with euphonic y, if the verb end in any other vowel but 'a' and ū), and those, which end in the Imperative Sing. in ě, form their Plural in yō or iō, as:

أَئُ aṭu, come,	Plur.	أَؤُ aṭ-ō.
دَهْوُ dhō-u, wash,	„	دَهْوِوُ dhō-yō.
پُ pa-u, fall,	„	پَؤُ pa-ō.
دِي dē, give,	„	دِئِوُ dī-ō.
جَهَلِ jhal-ě, seize,	„	{ جَهَلِوُ jhal-yō or جَهَلِئِوُ jhal-iō.

An older form of the II. pers. Plur. is the termination hō, which is also in use, as; جَهَلِئِوُ jhal-ihō.

The other persons of the Imperative must be supplied from the Potential.

There is another from of the Imperative, ending in je¹⁾, which is added equally to the root of neuter and active verbs. This form of the Imperative is properly a Precative, implying exhortation, request or prayer, as:

مَوْتَنُ mōṭaṇu, to return; Imper. مَوْتُ mōṭu; Prec. مَوْتِجِ mōṭ-i-je, please to return.

وِئَنُ vīṭaṇu, to scatter; Imper. وِيتِ vīt-e; Prec. وِيتِجِ vīt-i-je, please to scatter.

If a verb end in 'i' or ī, the initial 'i' of ije is dropped, as:

1) In poetry ije is now and then lengthened to ěje, as well in neuter as active verbs, ending in the Imperative in 'u' or 'e', as:

كَرِجِ kar-ěje, from كَرَنُ karaṇu, Imper. كَرِ kare. وَنَجِجِ vaṇēje, from وَنَجَنُ vaṇaṇu, to go, Imper. وَنَجِ vaṇu.

كِهْنُ khianu, v. a., to eat, Imper. كِهْ khi-u; Prec.

كِهْجِ khi-je.

تِهْنُ thianu, v. n., to become; Imper. تِهْ thī-u;

Prec. تِهْجِ thī-je or: تِهْجِ thi-je.

Quite irregular is كَرْنُ karanu, to do, in the Precative, as:

كَرْنُ karanu, Imper. كَرْ karē, Prec. كِجِ ki-je or: كِجِ ka-je.

Neuter or such active verbs, as end in the Imperative in 'u', take frequently, especially in poetry, the termination iju instead of ije, as:

سُنْ sunanu, to hear; Imper. سُنْ sunu; Prec. سُنْجِ sun-iju.

This termination is also now and then found in active verbs, ending in the Imperative in 'e', as:

بِهَانِنُ bhā-inu, to think; Imper. بِهَانِ bhā-e; Prec. بِهَانِجِ bhā-iju.

The Plural of the Precative ends in ijō (or ejō, as the case may be), as:

پُورِجِ pūr-ije (پُورِجِ pūr-ēje), shut up; Plur. پُورِجُو pūr-ijō (پُورِجُو pūr-ējō).

Instead of ijō (ējō) the terminations ijā, ijāe (ijā-e), ijāhu (ijāu) ijāha are also in use, especially in a honorific sense, and are therefore also referred to a subject in the Nominative, as:

وَرِجِ var-iju, return; Plur. وَرِجَا var-ijā.

وَنِجِ vañ-iju, go; „ وَنِجَا vañ-ijā-e.

سُنْجِ sun-iju, hear; „ سُنْجَا sun-ijāha.

پَرِهْجِ parh-iju, read; „ پَرِهْجَا parh-ējā-u.

Annotation. In Prākṛit the different (10) conjugations of the Sanskrit have already been discarded and only the first of them is in common use. The II pers. Sing. of the Imperative ends in Prākṛit in 'a', which in Sindhī has been changed to 'u' and 'e' respectively; the II pers. Plur. ends in ha (Sansk. धा dha), and in Sindhī in ō, h being commonly dropped. — In the cognate idioms the final vowel of the II pers. Sing. of the Imperative has been dropped altogether; in the Plural the Imperative ends in ō, as in Sindhī, with the exception of the Marāṭhī, the Plural Imperative of which ends in ā, and the Bangālī, the Plural Imperative of which is identical with the Singular.

The Sindhī Precative is to be referred to the Prākṛit increment ija or ijja, which is inserted between the root and the inflexional terminations in the Present, the definite Future and the Imperative (Varar. VII, 21). Lassen's conjecture (p. 357), that this increment has sprung from the Sanskrit Precative, is borne out by the modern idioms. — The Gujārātī forms the Precative in the same way as the Sindhī by adding to the verbal root the increment aje (Plur. aḷo). — In Hindūstānī iyē is joined to the root of the verb for the III pers. Sing. (generally with āp etc.), it being considered more respectful to address a person in the III pers. Sing.; and iyō for the II or III pers. Plur.; jiē is only used, when the root ends in ī or ō. — In Panjābī the increment ī is added to the root for the II pers. Sing., and iō for the II pers. Plur. Similarly iō is joined to the root in Bangālī, as well for the II. pers. Sing. as Plur.

The participle present.

From the Imperative or the verbal root the Participle present is derived in the following way:

1) Neuter verbs ending in the Imperative in 'u', add to the root the affix andō (see §. 8, 11), as:

هَلَانُ halānu, to go; Imper. هَلْ hal-u; Part. pres. هَلَنْدُو hal-andō.

The same is the case with active verbs, the Imperative of which ends in 'u', as:

هَنَنْ hananu, to strike; Imper. هَنْ hanu; Part. pres. هَنَّدُو han-andō.

Some of these however use also the other form in indō, as:

سُنَنْ sunanu, to hear; Imper. سُنْ sunu; Part. pers. سَنَّدُو sunandō or: سَنِندُو sunindō.

Those verbs, which end in radical ā, and in the Imper. in 'u', form, for euphony's sake, their Participle present in indō, and not in andō, as:

كِهَائِنْ khā-inu, v. a., to eat; Imper. كِهَاءْ khā-u; Part. pres. كِهَائِندُو khā-indō.

بُدَّهَائِنْ budhā-inu, v. n., to become old; Imper. بُدَّهَاءْ budhā-u; Part. pres. بُدَّهَائِندُو budhā-indō.

Those verbs, which shorten their final vowel in the Infinitive or insert a euphonic v (§. 42, 1. 2), do the same before the affix of the Participle present, as:

پَوَنْ pa-v-anu, to fall; Imper. پَوْ pa-u; Part. pres. پَوَّندُو pa-v-andō.

پِئِنْ pi-anu, to drink; Imper. پِئِ pi-u; Part. pres. پِئِندُو pi-andō.

دُھَوَنْ dhu-anu, to wash; Imper. دُھَوْ dhō-u; Part. pres. دُھَوَّندُو dhu-andō.

In some verbs, with euphonic v inserted, a contraction takes place, as:

چَوَنْ ča-v-anu, to say; Imper. چَوْ ča-u; Part. pres. چَوَّندُو ča-v-andō or: چُونْدُو čundō.

هُوَنْ hu-anu, to be; Imper. هَوْ hō-u; Part. pres. هُونْدُو hūdō (instead of هَنَّدُو hu-andō).

A similar contraction takes place in:

کھینن khi-aṇu, to eat; Imper. کھی khi-u; Part. pres. کھیندو khīndō.

ڏيڻ di-aṇu, to give; Imper. ڏي dē; Part. pres. ڏيندو dīndō.

نيڻ ni-aṇu, to take away; Imper. ني nē; Part. pres. نيندو nīndō.

The following verbs form their Participle present in an irregular way:

اچڻ ač-aṇu, to come; Imper. اچ ač-u; Part. pres. ايندو indō.

وڃڻ vaṇaṇu, to go; Imper. وڃ vaṇu; Part. pres. ويندو vēndō or ويندو vīndō.

2) Active and causal verbs form the Participle present by adding the affix īndō to the root, as:

بھرن bhar-aṇu, v. a., to fill; Imper. بھر bhar-e; Part. pres. بھريندو bhar-īndō.

گنڌھائڻ gaṇḍhā-iṇu, to cause to connect; Imper. گنڌھاء gaṇḍhā-e; Part. pres. گنڌھائيندو gaṇḍhā-īndō.

The verb ڪرڻ karaṇu, to do, forms its Part. pres. both regularly and irregularly, ڪريندو kar-īndō or: ڪندو kandō, ڪندو kindō.

3) The participle present of the Passive voice is formed by adding the affix ibō to the root of the passive theme (cf. §. 8, 13), as:

پسن پساṇu, v. a., to see; pass. پسجن pas-ijaṇu; Part. pres. پسبو pas-ibō.

چون ča-v-aṇu, v. a., to say; pass. چجن ča-ijaṇu; Part. pres. چبو ča-ibō.

دُھُونُ dhu-aṇu, v. a., to wash; pass. دھُوڃُنُ dhō-ijaṇu;

Part. pres. دھُوڻِيُو dhō-ibō.

پِيَن pi-aṇu, v. a., to drink; pass. پِيڃُنُ pī-jaṇu; Part.

pres. پِيِيُو pī-bō.

تِهِنَ thi-aṇu, v. n., to become; pass. تِهڃُنُ thi-jaṇu;

Part. pres. تِهِيُو thi-bō.

ڪَرَن karaṇu, v. a., to do; pass. ڪِيڃُنُ ki-jaṇu; Part.

pres. ڪِيِيُو ki-bō (also: ڪاڄِيُو ka-bō).

The Participle present is also used in the sense of a Future, as will be seen under the future tense.

§. 45.

The Participle past.

From all Sindhī verbs, be they neuter, active (causal) or passive, a past participle may be derived by adding the affix iō or yō (the latter always, when the root ends in a vowel) to the root of the verb (see §. 8, 14). The past participle of neuter verbs implies simply a prae-terite sense, whereas that of active (causal) verbs always denotes a prae-terite passive signification.

جَاڳِنُ jāgaṇu, v. n., to be awake; p. p. جَاڳِيُو jāg-iō, having been awake.

کهاڻَن khaṭaṇu, v. a., to gain; p. p. کهاڻِيُو khaṭ-yō, having been gained.

پَرَبهائِنُ parbhāiṇu, v. caus., to quiet; p. p. پَرَبهائِيُو parbhāyō, having been quieted.

پَرکهاڻَن parkhijaṇu, v. p., to be tested; p. p. پَرکهاڻِيُو parkh-iō, having been tested.

Those verbs, which insert euphonic v in the Infinitive, drop it again before the affix of the past participle, as:

چَوْنُ ča-v-aṇu, to say; p. p. چَیو ča-yō.

نَوْنُ na-v-aṇu, to bow; p. p. نَیو na-yō.

If a verb end in 'i' or ī, the initial 'i' of the affix iō is dropped in the past participle; the same is commonly the case, when the root ends in one of the Palatals č, čh, ĵ, ĵh.

نِئْنُ ni-aṇu, to take away; p. p. نِئو ni-ō.

تِهِنُ thi-aṇu, to become; p. p. تِهئو thi-ō.

جِنُ ji-aṇu, to live; p. p. جِئو jī-ō.

کُچھَنُ kučhaṇu, to speak; p. p. کُچھو kučh-ō.

سَوَجھَنُ sōjhaṇu, to investigate; p. p. سَوَجھو sōjh-ō.

If final ō and ī has been shortened in the Infinitive, it is restored again (with a few exceptions) in the past participles, as:

دُھَوْنُ dhu-aṇu, to wash (Imper. دھوء dhō-u); p. p. دھوئو dhō-yō.

جِنُ ji-aṇu, to live (Imper. جِئو jī-u); p. p. جِئو jī-ō.

About the compound affixes ya-lu or ia-lu, ya-rō (ia-rō), which are attached to the past participle, in order to impart to it more the nature of an adjective, compare §. 9, 22.

A considerable number of verbs form their past participle in an irregular way, that is to say, they have retained the old Sanskrit-Prākṛit form of the past participle, modified only according to the laws of transmutation of letters, as current in Prākṛit and Sindhi. We subjoin here an alphabetical list of them.

§. 46.

The participle of the Future passive or the Gerundive¹⁾.

The participle of the Future passive or the Gerundive is formed by adding to the verbal root the affix inō (or anō, if the verb end in 'i' (ī) and optionally inō and anō, if the verb end in 'u' (ō)). The Gerundive can only be derived from active verbs; neuter verbs form also a similar participial noun by means of the affix inō, but it is not to be confounded with the Gerundive; see §. 9, 12.

The final vowel of a verbal root undergoes the same changes before the affix of the Gerundive, as before the affix of the Infinitive (§. 42), so that for practical purposes the rule may thus be given, that the termination of the Infinitive anu is simply changed to anō (inō), in order to form the participle of the Future passive. About the derivation of the affix inō see §. 8, 12.

وَجَهَنُ vijhanu, v. a., to throw; Gerund. وَجَهِنُو vijhinō, what is to be thrown.

دِيَنُ dīanu, v. a., to give; Gerund. دِيَنُو dīanō, what is to be given.

1) A kind of participle of the Future active is formed by attaching the affix hāru to the Infinitive, as: هَلَنَهَارُ halana-hāru, one who is about to go; see §. 9, 33.

دُھُونُ dhuanu, v. a., to wash; Gerund. دُھُونُو dhuanō or دُھِيْنُو dhuinō, what is to be washed.

کھَايْنُ khāinu, v. a., to eat; Gerund. کھَايْنُو khāinō, what is to be eaten.

§. 47.

Indeclinable past participles.

The Sindhī uses different past conjunctive or indeclinable participles.

1) The form most in use is that ending in ī (ō) or ē.

a) Neuter or such active verbs, as terminate in the Imperative in 'u', form the past conjunctive participle by joining to the verbal root the affix ī, as:

وَرَنُ var-anu, v. n., to return; past part. conj. وَرِي var-ī, having returned.

سُنَنُ sunanu, v. a., to hear; p. part. conj. سُنِي sun-ī, having heard.

Those verbs, which end in a radical ī, coalesce with the affix of the past part. conj. to ī, as:

تِهِنُ thianu, to become; Imper. تِهِي thīu; p. p. conj. تِهِي thī, having become.

Those verbs, which end in ū, shorten ū before the affix ī (as before the affix of the Infinitive), as:

پُونُ pu-anu, to string (beads); Imper. پُو پū-u; p. p. conj. پِي pu-ī.

But those verbs, which shorten radical final ō to 'u' in the Infinitive, restore the same again in the past participle conjunctive, as:

رُونُ ru-anu, to weep; Imper. رُو rō; p. p. conj. رُوِي rō-ī.

If in the Infinitive euphonic v has been inserted between the verbal root and the affix of the Infinitive, it is dropped again in the past part. conj., as:

چَوْنُ ča-v-aṇu, to speak; Imper. چَوُ ča-u; p. p. conj.

چَیْی ča-ī, having spoken.

پَوْنُ pa-v-aṇu, to fall, forms either regularly: پَیْی pa-ī, or irregularly پِیْی pē-ī, having fallen.

The verb اچَنُ ačaṇu, to come, makes in the p. p. conj. either regularly اچِی ač-ī, or irregularly اچِی ač-ē.

The verbs دِنُنُ dīṇu, to give (Imper. دِی dē) and نِیْنُ nīṇu, to take away (Imper. نِی nē) make in the p. part. conj. دِیْی dē-ī and نِیْی nē-ī or نِیْی na-ī.

Passive verbs, be they derived from neuter or active themes, form the p. part. conj. quite in the same way, as verbs of the active voice, by adding the increment ī (ō) to the passive base, as:

لَوُئِجَنُ lō-ij-aṇu, v. p. to be moistened; p. part. conj.

لَوُئِجِی lō-ij-ī or لَوُئِجِو lō-ij-ō, having been moistened.

b) Active and causal verbs, ending in the Imperative in 'e', form the past part. conj. by adding the affix ē to the root of the verb, as:

مَلَنُ malaṇu, v. a., to polish; p. p. conj. مَلِی mal-ē, having polished.

لَکَّائِنُ laḡāiṇu, v. caus., to apply; p. p. conj. لَکَّائِی laḡā-ē, having applied.

2) The second past participle conjunctive is formed by adding to the root of the verb, be it transitive or intransitive, the affix yō (or iō). This form is only used with a Present, Future or Imperative, and may therefore in most cases be translated by the present participle, as:

مَوْتَنُ mōṭaṇu, v. n., to return; p. p. conj. مَوْتِيُو mōṭ-yō (mōṭ-iō).

سِثَهَنُ sithaṇu, v. a., to compress; p. p. conj. سِثَهِيُو sith-iō.

If the verb end in 'i' (ī), it coalesces with the affix iō, as:

دِيَنُ dīaṇu, to give; p. p. conj. دِيَنُو dīō.

پِيَنُ pi-aṇu, to dink (Imper. پِيِي پīu); p. p. conj. پِيَنُو piō.

Those verbs, which shorten original ō to 'u' in the Infinitive, restore the same again in the p. p. conj., as:

دِهُونُ dhu-aṇu, to wash (Imper. دِهْو دhō-u); p. p. conj. دِهْوِيُو dhō-yō.

رُونُ ru-aṇu, to weep (Imper. رُو rō); p. p. conj. رُونُو rō-yō.

The verbs كَهَنُ khaṇaṇu, to lift up, هَنُ haṇaṇu, to strike, كَرَنُ karaṇu, to do, drop, as in the past participle, their final radical before the affix yō, as:

كَهَنُ khaṇaṇu, p. p. conj. كَهَنِيُو khā-yō or: كَهِيُو kha-yō.

هَنُ haṇaṇu, p. p. conj. هَنِيُو hā-yō or: هِيُو ha-yō.

كَرَنُ karaṇu, p. p. conj. كَيُو ka-yō or: كِيُو ki-yō (ki-ō).

3) The third past participle conjunctive is formed by adding to the root of transitive verbs, irrespectively of their termination in the Imperative, the affix jē (i-jē), and jī (i-jī) to the root of neuter verbs.

This form is generally used with the Present and Past tenses.

كَهَنُ khaṇaṇu, v. a., to lift up (Imper. كَهَنُ khaṇu);
p. p. conj. كَهَنِيَجِي khaṇ-ijē.

وَرَجَنُ virčaṇu, v. n., to be tired; p. p. conj. وَرَجِيَجِي virč-ijī.

4) The fourth past participle conjunctive is formed by putting کري karē, the p. p. conj. of کرن karaṇu, after the past partic. conj. ending in ī or ē. This compound form is used with the Present, the Future, the Past tenses and the Imperative, as:

وَرِي varī karē, having returned; Inf. وَرَن varaṇu.

مَلِي malē karē, having polished; Inf. مَلَن malaṇu.

لَوِيجِي loij-ī karē, having been moistened; Inf. لَوِيجَن loij-aṇu.

Annotation. The indeclinable past participles are formed in Sanskrit either by the affix tvā or ya. In Prākṛit tvā is changed to tūṇa and (by elision of t) to ūṇa, and ya becomes ia. In Sindhī the first form of the past participle conjunctive ending in ī (or ē) corresponds to the Prākṛit affix ia. The second form of the p. p. conj., ending in yō, is identical with the first, and the same must be said of the third form ending in jī (or jē), the Sanskrit affix ya (Prākṛit ia) having been changed in Sindhī to ja (= jē), as in the case of the Passive.

This is fully borne out by the kindred idioms. In Hindūstānī we find the following forms of the past part. conjunctive (Inf. mār-nā): mār, mār-ē, mār-kē, mār-karkē. In the first form mār the affix ia has apparently been dropped altogether, whereas in the second mār-ē the affix ia has been contracted to ē. The affix kē in mār-kē, corresponds to the Sindhī affix jē, j having been changed to a guttural, with transition of the Media into a Tenuis. Mār-kar and mār-karkē are compound past participles conj. like the Sindhī form. Similarly we find in Panjābī (Inf. ghall-nā, to send): ghall and ghall-kē.

The Gujārātī uses two forms of the past part. conj., one ending in ī (used especially in compound verbs), as lakhī, having written, and the other in īnī, as lakhīnī. The first form is identical with the Sindhī affix ī, the latter, īnī, corresponds to the Prākṛit affix ūṇa, ī having been substituted for ū.

The Marāṭhī uses only one form of the past part. conj., ending in ūn, as karūn, having done; this affix quite coincides with the Prākṛit affix ūṇa. — The Bangālī uses either the affix yā (iyā), as dākhiyā (dāk-ē or dākh-ī also being employed), or the Locative of the past participle, dēkhitē, in the state of having seen.

Chapter XIII.

Formation of the Tenses and Persons.

§. 48.

In treating of the Tenses in Sindhī we must distinguish simple and compound Tenses.

I. Simple tenses.

In the Active and Passive Voice there are only three simple tenses, viz.: the Potential, the Aorist and the Future.

1) The Potential, which implies possibility, uncertainty or a wish, is formed by adding to the root of the verb the inflexional terminations. The absolute personal pronouns may also be put before the verb, where any stress is to be laid on the person, but they may also be omitted, where such is not the case, the respective person being sufficiently pointed out by the inflexional termination itself.

Neuter and such intransitive verbs, as end in the Imperative in 'u', and all passive verbs, receive the same personal terminations, whereas those transitive verbs, which end in the Imperative in 'e', differ from them in the I and partly in the II pers. Sing. and in all the persons of the Plural, by retaining their characteristic 'i' (e) before the inflexional terminations.

Personal terminations of the Potential.

Verbs ending in the Imperative in 'u'.		Verbs ending in the Imper. in 'e'.
Singular.	Plural.	Singular.	Plural.
I pers. -ā	-ū	-yā, -iā	-yū, iū
II pers. -ī, ē	-ō	-lē, yē; ī, ē	-yō, iō
III pers. ē	-ane	-ē	-īne, ine

In reference to verbs, ending in the Imperative in 'u', it is to be observed:

a) A final long vowel is shortened before all the personal terminations in the same way, as before the affix of the Infinitive; e. g. رَوْنُ ru-ānu, to weep, Imper. رُو rō, Potential I pers. رُتَانُ ru-ā, I may weep; پِيْنُ pi-ānu, to drink, Imper. پِي pīu, Potential I pers. پِيْتَانُ pi-ā, I may drink; پُوْنُ pu-ānu, to string (beads), Imper. پُو pū-u, Potential I pers. پِيْتَانُ pu-ā, I may string (beads). In poetry an original long vowel may be restored again in the III pers. Sing., the personal termination ē being at the same time shortened to 'e', as: رُوْه rō-e, he may weep, instead of رُتِي ru-ē.

b) The euphonic v, which is inserted between the root of a verb ending in 'a', and the affix of the Infinitive, is commonly retained in the Singular and the III pers. of the Plural, but dropped commonly in the I and II pers. Plural, as: Inf. پَوْنُ pa-v-ānu, to fall, Potential, Sing. I pers. پَوَانُ pa-v-ā, II pers. پَوِيْن pa-v-ē, III pers. پَوِي pa-v-ē; III pers. Plur. پَوِيْن pa-v-ane; Plur. I pers. پِيْتُونُ pa-ū, II pers. پِيْتُو pa-ō. In the II and III pers.

I and II pers. Sing. and the II and I pers. of the Plur. to yā, yē (yī), yū, yō, or not, if the verb end in a consonant; but the contraction must take place, if the verb end in a vowel, as: چھڌيان چھاڌيā, or چھڌيان چھاڌيē or چھڌين چھاڌي etc.; but: بھايان bha-yā, بھايين bha-yē etc. from بھائن bhaīnu, to think. In poetry however the looser form is also in use, as: بھائيان bha-iā or بھايان bha-iyā. In the II pers. Sing. the inflexional termination yē or yī may also be contracted to ē or ī, as: سانڌھين sāṇḍhē or سانڌھين sāṇḍhī, thou mayst cherish.

In the III pers. Plural 'i' is generally lengthened to 'ī', and the initial 'a' of the inflexional termination āni dropped in order to distinguish the neuter and active verbs. But īne is again frequently pronounced and written ine, especially when the verb ends in a long ā, as: گالھائين gālhā-ine, they may speak.

2) The verb ڪرڻ karaṇu, to do, forms the III pers. Plural either regularly in ڪرين karīne, or irregularly in ڪن kane or ڪين kine.

Annotation. The Sanskrit Potential has already quite disappeared in Prākṛit. But, abstracted from this significant circumstance, there can be no doubt, that the Sindhī Potential corresponds originally to the Prākṛit Present tense. In Sindhī itself there are many reminiscences, that the Potential properly represents the old Present of the Prākṛit; for it is very often, chiefly in poetry, used without the characteristic تھو, in the sense of the Present. After the custom had gained ground, to express the Present by joining the تھو thō to the old Present, the old Present was reserved to denote a Potential mood. The inflexional terminations of the Sindhī Potential correspond very closely to those of the Prākṛit Present, as: Prāk. I pers. Sing. āmi (Sansk. āmi), Sindhī ā; II pers. Sing. asi (Sansk. asi), Sindhī ē (or ī), 'a' being dropped (as a conjunctive vowel) and s being first changed to h and then dropped altogether; III pers. Sing. a-ti or a-di (Sansk. a-ti), and by elision of t or d: a-e, Sindhī ē. In the I pers. Plur. the Prākṛit has different terminations, as ā-mō (Sansk. ā-mah), ā-mu, ā-ma, or a-mō, a-mū etc. These latter terminations have given rise to the Sindhī terminations ū, m being elided and final 'u' lengthened to ū and nasalized at the same time; II pers. Plur. a-ha (Sansk. a-tha), Sindhī ō, h having been dropped and 'a' lengthened to ō; III pers. Plur. a-nti (Sansk. a-nti), Sindhī ane, t having been elided in this conjunct letter. — The Hindūstānī, Panjābī and Gujārātī coincide in this respect with the Sindhī, forming the Potential in the same way, as the Sindhī, only with modified inflexional terminations. The proper Potential of the Marāṭhī, which is now commonly called by the Grammarians the "Past Habitual"¹⁾, exhibits likewise the signs of the old Prākṛit Present. — The Bangālī alone has preserved the old Present tense, formed by joining the inflexional terminations to the root of the verb; the Present is in Bangālī also used in the sense of a Potential.

2) The Sindhī has a regular Aorist or Praetere tense denoting, that an action once took place in time past.

a) The Aorist is formed from neuter verbs, by joining to the past participle the terminations of the (now in Sindhī) obsolete substantive verb as, to be. This tense is therefore originally a compound, and the participle must be put, according to the gender referred to, either in the masc. or the feminine. The inflexional terminations are only affixed to the I and II pers. of the Sing. masc. and fem., to the I pers. of the Plur. masc. and fem. and to the II pers. of the Plur. masc., the III person of the Sing. and Plur. masc. and fem. being left without any inflexional terminations, as well as the II pers. of the Plur. fem.

b) From transitive verbs, the participle past of which always has a passive signification, the Aorist is formed by joining to the past participle the same inflexional terminations, as to that of neuter verbs, the III pers. of the Sing. and Plur. masc. and fem. and the II person of the Plur. fem. being likewise left without inflexional terminations. If the Agent is to be expressed, this must be put in the Instrumental, the participle past agreeing throughout with its subject (expressed or only hinted at) in gender and number.

1) As in the Marāṭhī Grammar, published by the American Mission, Bombay 1854.

The inflexional terminations of the Aorist are:

Singular.		Plural.
Masc.	Fem.	Masc.	Fem.
I pers. -se	-se	-sī, sū	-sī, sū.
II pers. -ē	-ā (ē)	-u	—
III pers. —	—	—	—

The past participle of neuter and active verbs commonly ends, as we have seen, in yō or iō, fem. ī. If therefore the past participle be of the masc. gender, its final ō is shortened before the inflexional termination of the I person to u = u-se, whereas the final ī of the fem. gender is changed, as before the other pronominal suffixes, to ya or ia = ya-se, ia-se; e. g.

هَلِیَو haliō, m., gone, I pers. masc. هَلِیو haliu-se, I went or have gone, fem. هَلِیَا haliā-se; in the same way دِثِہَو dithō, past participle of دِثَسَنُ dīsanu, seen: دِثِہَس dithu-se, masc. I was seen, fem. دِثِہِیَا dithia-se or: دِثِہِیَس dithya-se. In poetry though iō or yō may keep its place before the inflexional termination se, and ia or ya may be lengthened to ia or yā, as: چِہَدِیَو chadiō-se, I was left, fem. چِہَدِیَا chadiā-se.

Before the inflexional termination of the II person masc., ē, final ō is dropped altogether, as: هَلِیَہ hali-ē, thou hast gone; دِثِہِیْن ḍiṭh-ē, thou wast seen; before the inflexional termination of the II person fem. ā, final ī is shortened to 'i' = i-ā (occasionally also as in the masc. to i-ē), as: ہَلِیْن hali-ā; thou hast gone, دِثِہِیْن ḍiṭhi-ā, thou wast seen.

In the first person Plural the inflexional termination sī (sē), sū is affixed to the masc. or fem. Plural of the past participle, as: ہَلِیْاَسِیْن haliā-sī, we have gone, ہَلِیْوَسِیْن haliū-sī (fem.); دِثِہَاَسِیْن ḍiṭhā-sī, we were seen, دِثِہِوَسِیْن ḍiṭhiū-sī (fem.).

In the II person masc. the final ā of the Plural (ہَلِیْا) is shortened before the inflexional termination 'u' = a-u, as: ہَلِیْو halya-u, you went; دِثِہَو ḍiṭha-u, you were seen; to the II person fem. no inflexional termination is added, the Plural fem. of the past participle alone being used, the subject of which must be indicated either by the absolute personal pronoun or gathered from the context.

It is to be noticed, that in poetry the inflexional terminations are frequently left out, in which case the subject, if it be not indicated otherwise (by an absolute personal pronoun etc.), must be gleaned from the context.

Annotation. The three praeterite tenses of the Sanskrit, with the exception of a few traces (Varar. VII, 23), have been already discarded in Prākṛit, their formation being apparently too intricate for the conception of the vulgar. In their lieu the past participle has been substituted in the sense of an Aorist, either with or without inflexional terminations, the Perfect proper being denoted by a compound tense. The inflexional terminations, which are affixed in Sindhī to the past participle, are derived from the Sanskrit substantive verb 'as', to be, though they be now so much mutilated and differ so considerably from the forms used in Prākṛit (Lassen, p. 345), that they are scarcely recognisable. The termination of the I person Sing. -s corresponds to the Sanskrit asmi (Prāk. amhi), 'm' having been thrown out in Sindhī.

In the II pers. (Sansk. and Prāk. asi) s = h, has been dropped and final i (e) lengthened in the masc. to ē, whereas in the feminine the initial 'a' of asi has been retained, and the latter half of it dropped altogether. The masculine termination ē is however also now and then applied to the feminine.

In the I person Plural the Sanskrit smāh (Prākrit amhō) has been changed to sī (sē) or sū; in the II person masc. the Sanskrit stha has been first changed to tha, thence to ha, and with the elision of 'h' to 'u'.

In Hindūstānī, Panjābī and Gujarātī the Aorist is made up by the past participle without the addition of inflexional terminations, but in Marāṭhī inflexional terminations are affixed to the past participle, as in Sindhī. The same is the case in Bangālī, but with this difference, that it can form an Aorist of the active voice not only from neuter verbs, but also from active verbs; in the Passive though it must have recourse to a composition.

3) The Future,

which implies in Sindhī not only the sense of futurity, but also of possibility, uncertainty, is formed

a) In the Active Voice, by affixing to the present participle the same inflexional terminations as to the Aorist.

b) In the Passive Voice, by affixing to the present participle passive the same inflexional terminations, as to the present participle of the Active.

Annotation. The Sindhī has quite left the traces of the Prākrit in forming the Future and fallen back to a composition, in order to make up for the lost future tense. It has approached in this respect again nearer to the Sanskrit, which likewise forms the I Future of the active voice by affixing the inflexional terminations of the substantive verb 'as', to be, to the participial noun ending in tā (tr). The modern Arian idioms differ very greatly from each other as to the method, in which they form the Future. The Hindūstānī and Panjābī express the Future by means of a compound verb; they add to the Potential of a verb the past participle gā (instead of the common giā), from the root gam, to go, the gender of which must agree with the subject in question. This is properly a Desiderative, and not a Future; but already in Sanskrit the Desiderative is now and then used in the sense of a Future. Thus we have in Hindūstānī کرُونگا karūn-gā, masc., and کرُونگی karūn-gī, fem. I shall do, literally: I am gone (گَا gā), that I do (کرُون karū), i. e. I will do or shall do; similarly in Panjābī: karāngā, masc., kā-rāngī, fem.

The Gujarātī on the other hand accedes again more closely to the Prākṛit; the conjunctive vowel of the Prākṛit (i) has been lengthened in the I person Sing. and Plur., in order to make up for the double ss, which has been reduced to a single one (cf. Introd. §. 19), as: lakh-īś, I shall write, Plur. lakh-īśū, we shall write.

In the II and III person Sing. and Plur. the conjunctive vowel has been dropped altogether, as II pers. Sing. lakh-sē, thou wilt write etc.

The Future of the Marāṭhī is quite peculiar, and, as it seems, made up from the different terminations of the Future, used in Prākṛit.

The termination of the I person Sing. īn (ēn) seems to have arisen from the Prākṛit termination himi (Varar. VII, 12), and that of the I person Plural ū, from the Prākṛit sisi (= hisi; Lassen, p. 352), the final 'i' of which has been dropped and in compensation thereof medial 'i' lengthened = sīs; final 's' has been hardened to 'r' and thence to 'l'. The II person Plur. ends in āl, which I would refer to the Prākṛit termination -ssaha, the latter half of which (aha) seems to have been dropped, and the conjunct ss reduced to 's' by lengthening the preceding (conjunctive) vowel = ās; 's' again seems to be hardened to r = l. A similar process appears in the III pers. Sing., ending in īl (ēl); the Prākṛit termination is hidi (= sidi); the initial 'h' has been elided and id(i) lengthened to īd, final 'd' being changed at the same time (as it is usual in the past participle) to 'l'. The III person Plural, ending in tīl is quite perplexing. We would refer to the fact, that in Prākṛit hittha is also used instead of hissa (tth = ss; Lassen, p. 353; Varar. VII, 15), though restricted to the I pers. Plural. In Marāṭhī it appears, that tth has also been used in the III pers. Plural, so that the III pers. Plural would properly terminate in hitthintī; of this initial hi has been elided and the aspirate conjunct tth reduced to tt = t; n is in Marāṭhī always dropped in the termination of the III pers. Plural and in consequence the preceding vowel (i) lengthened; thus we get tīt, of which final 't' must have been changed to l = tīl.

The Bangālī forms the Future by affixing to the root of the verb the inflexional termination iba; this is very remarkable and without any analogy in any of the Prākṛit dialects. It reminds us very strongly of the Latin termination bo in the formation of the Active Future of the I and II conjugation, which Bopp (Comp. Gramm. II, §§. 526, 663) derives from the Sanskrit bhū. It would be near at hand, to compare this affix with the Sindhī affix bō, employed to form the present participle passive; but its origin will hardly allow of such a comparison.

II. Compound tenses.

1) The compound Potential.

The Potential may be compounded:

a) with the present participle and the Potential of the auxiliary verb هُونَ huanu, to be, in order to denote an enduring action or state, as: أَنْتُونِ يَرْهَنْدُو هُنَّانِ I may be reading.

b) with the past participle and the Potential of the auxiliary verb هُونَ huanu, to be, as: أَنْتُونِ رَلْتُو هُنَّانِ I my have wandered about; مُونِ دِثْهَوُ هُتِي it may have been seen by me, i. e. I may have seen it.

2) The present tense.

The Sindhī has two forms for the Present tense:

a) The common or indefinite Present tense, which denotes, that an action is commenced or going on at the time being, is formed by putting after the Potential (and occasionally before it) the augment تَهو *thō*¹⁾, which must agree with the gender of the subject, as: آئون ڪلڻ تهو I go; fem. آئون ڪلڻ ٿي I go.

1) Instead of تَهو thō: پِئُو peō (fem. پِئِي peī) is also used, but with this difference, that a more enduring action is thereby denoted. Cf. §. 53, 2.

b) The definite Present, which implies habit, usage or that an action is still going on at the time of speaking, is formed by compounding the present participle with the Present of the auxiliary verb هون huanu, as: آئون لکهندو آهيان I am writing, or I am used to write; رندو آهي he is in the habit of weeping.

In poetry the auxiliary verb is often left out and the participle used by itself, determined by a noun or pronoun as subject.

Annotation. The Potential, which, as stated already, represents the old Present tense, is no longer considered sufficient, to express the Present by itself; the augment تهو thō is therefore added, to render more prominent the sense of the Present. This augment تهو thō is derived from the Sanskrit adjective स्थ stha (as used at the end of compounds) and signifies 'standing', as: آئون ڀسان تهو I see, literally: standing I see, I am in the state of seeing.

In Hindūstānī thā is used as an augment for forming the Imperfect, whereas the common or indefinite Present is expressed by the present participle alone, and the definite Present by the addition of the auxiliary verb hōnā. The same is the case in Panjābī, with the only difference, that the Sanskrit stha has been assimilated in Panjābī to sā. In Gujārātī the indefinite Present is formed by adding the auxiliary (defective) verb čhaū etc., I am etc. (derived from the Sansk. substantive verb 'as', to be) to the Potential, as: hū lakhū čhaū, I write, and the definite Present by joining the Present of the auxiliary verb hōvū, to be, to the present participle, as: hū lakhō hōū čhaū, I am writing.

The Marāṭhī forms the common or indefinite Present by affixing the inflexional terminations of the Sansk. substantive verb 'as', to be, to the present participle, ending (originally) in tā, with which the terminations coalesce, as tō, tōs etc. Besides this the Marāṭhī uses three other compound forms for the definite Present, the first of which is compounded with the present participle ending in 'at' or 'it', and the irregular form of the auxiliary verb asanē, viz: āhē, as: mī lihīt āhē, I am writing; the second adds the auxiliary verb āhē etc. to the indefinite Present ending in tō etc., as: mī lihītō āhē, I am writing. Both these forms of the definite Present, which do not differ from each other as to their signification, denote an action going on or enduring at the time of speaking. The third form adds to the present participle ending in 'at' or 'it', the regular Present of the auxiliary verb asanē to be, viz: asatō etc., as: mī lihīt asatō, I am in the habit of writing, and implies a habit, custom or natural disposition; it may therefore be termed the Present Habitual. — The Bangālī has, as noticed already, a simple Present, formed by affixing the inflexional terminations to the root of the verb, and a definite Present formed by uniting the auxiliary verb āchi etc. with the present participle ending in itē, the initial ā of which is dropped in this composition, as: āmi dēkhitēchi, I am seeing.

3) The Habitual Aorist, which implies, that an action was repeated in past time or went on at the time indicated, is formed by adding to the Aorist the indeclinable augment تھی thē, which may follow or precede it, as the augment of the Present; e. g.: ہو آيو تھی he came (repeatedly), or: was coming.

This tense is quite peculiar to the Sindhī, no analogy to it being met with in the kindred idioms. The indeclinable augment تھی thē is apparently the Locative of thō, and signifies: 'in standing', which agrees well with the import of this tense.

4) The Imperfect, which denotes, that an action was progressing or repeated at a particular time past, is formed by adding to the present participle the Aorist of the auxiliary verb هُوَ huanu, as: رُندو هوس I was wandering about; لُودھيو هوس I was being driven out. The Imperfect may be rendered more emphatic by premising the past participles پيو piō (having fallen), as: هُوَ يَبْأُ ذِسْنَدَا هُأَا, they were in the habit of seeing.

Annotation. In Hindūstānī the Imperfect is formed, as already alluded to, by adding thā to the present participle; the same is the case in Panjabi, which adds sā; the Marāṭhī joins the Aorist of the auxiliary verb asanē, viz: hōtō etc. to the present participle ending in at or it. The same method is kept to in Gujarātī and Bangālī, in the latter language with the slight difference, that the Aorist of the auxiliary verb (viz: chilām etc.) is coalescing with the participle present.

5) The Perfect,

which implies an action, that has been completed in time past, is formed by adding the auxiliary verb آنهيان āhiyā etc. to the past participle, as: وَتُو آنهيان, I am gone, جَهليو آنهيان I have been seized.

Annotation. All the kindred idioms form the Perfect in the same way as the Sindhī, by adding the Present of the auxiliary verb to the past participle.

6) The Pluperfect,

which implies an action, that has been completed in remote past time chiefly in relation to some other time, expressed or only understood, is formed by adding the Aorist of the auxiliary verb هُوَن huanu to the past participle, as: هَلِيو هوس I had gone; دُهني هيس I had been enticed (fem.).

Annotation. In Hindūstānī and Panjābī, the Pluperfect is formed by adding thā and sā respectively to the past participle. In Marāṭhī the Aorist hōtō etc. is joined to the past participle and similarly in Gujarātī hatō etc. In Bangālī (which must not resort to a passive construction in the case of transitive verbs, as the other idioms) the Aorist of the auxiliary verb, viz: chilām etc. is united with the past participle ending in yā.

7) The compound Future tenses.

There are two compound Future tenses in Sindhī:

a) The one is compounded with the participle present and the Future of the auxiliary verb هُونُ huanu, which may be termed the Definite Future, as: اِسَندُو هُونْدِسِ I shall be seeing.

b) The other is compounded with the past participle and the Future of the auxiliary verb هُونُ huanu, and may be termed the Past Future, as: هَلِئُو هُونْدِسِ I shall have gone; هُو بَدَهو هُونْدُو he will have been bound.

Both these tenses do not only denote futurity in its strict sense, but imply also possibility, uncertainty or doubt.

A. The auxiliary verb هُونُ huanu, to be.

Before we can fully develop the conjugational process of the Sindhī, we must first describe the inflexion of the auxiliary verb هُونُ huanu, to be, by means of which the compound tenses of other verbs are being made up.

This form is commonly used in the Present, and always in compound tenses, whereas تَهْو هُنَّ huā thō is seldom to be met with, and never in a compound tense.

The initial vowel ā is often found without a nasal sound as: آهِيَان āhiyā instead of آهِيَان āhiyā. When كُو kō na, كَ kā na, كِي kī na not any one etc. precedes آهي, they are contracted to كُونَهِي kōnhē, كَانَهِي kānhē, كِينَهِي kīnhē; نَ na, not, preceding آهِيَان etc. may coalesce with it, as: نَاهِي nāhē or: نَ آهي na āhē, he is not.

As from all neuter verbs, so also from this auxiliary an impersonal or passive form may be derived, as:

III pers. Sing. Present هُوَ تَهو hō-iḥe thō, literally: it is been; III pers. Sing. Future: هُوَ تَبو hō-ibō, literally: it will be been.

Annotation. The root هُو hō (Inf. هَوْن hu-aṇu) corresponds to the Sansk. root भू bhū, to become, which is assimilated in Prākṛit to hō or huva; the past participle of it is in Prākṛit huō or hūō, thence the Sindhī huō. In reference to the Potential hujā etc., it is to be kept in mind, that Prākṛit uses already for the Present (and Future) such forms as hojja, hojjā etc., which Lassen derives from the Sansk. Precative भुयात् (Lassen, p. 357).

The root hō is used in all the kindred idioms.

The old Present أَنِهِيَان āhiyā, I am, is derived from the Present of the Sansk. substantive verb अस 'as' to be, Prākṛit amhi etc. The Marāṭhī form of it approaches very closely to that of the Sindhī, as: āhē etc. In Hindūstānī (hā, haī, hai etc.) initial 'a', which has been lengthened in Sindhī and Marāṭhī, has been dropped; the same is the case in Panjābī, as hā, haī, hai etc. In Gujarātī, where initial 'a' has been likewise thrown off, we find the forms čhaū, čhē, čhē etc., which correspond to the Prākṛit form अच्छि ačchi etc. (Lassen, p. 266, 346). In Bangālī we meet with the still more primitive form āchi etc.

Chapter XV.

Inflection of the regular verb.

§. 51.

A. Inflection of the neuter or intransitive verb.

All the neuter verbs end in the Imperative in 'u' (§. 43) and in the participle present in andō (§. 44).

But there is also a considerable number of transitive verbs ending in the Imperative in 'u' and in the participle present in andō, which take in consequence thereof the same inflexional terminations as the neuter verbs, with the only difference, that in the Past Tenses they must invariably resort to the passive construction.

We exhibit now the inflexion of a regular neuter verb.

Neuter verbs very often take in the Potential and in the Present tense the passive form, without altering in any way their signification, and are then inflected like other passive verbs (see the inflexion of the passive verb), as: پَهَرَنُ pharaṇu, v. n., to be fruitful, or پَهَرَجَنُ phar-j-aṇu; لُرَهَنُ v. n., luṛhaṇu, to float, or لُرَهَجَنُ luṛhe-j-aṇu, کَاوِرَنُ kāviraṇu, v. n., to be angry or کَاوِرَجَنُ kāvir-j-aṇu, اَچَنُ v. n. acaṇu, to come, اَچَجَنُ ač-iṛ-aṇu, پَوَنُ v. n. pavaṇu, to fall, or پَچَنُ pa-iṛ-aṇu etc.

The III pers. Sing. of neuter verbs in the passive form is frequently employed impersonally throughout all the tenses with the exception of the Aorist and Perfect, as:

هَلِجِي halijē, it may be gone, هَلِجِي تَهو halijē thō, it is gone, هَلِبو آهي halibō ahē, it is being gone, هَلِبو هو halibō hō, it was being gone; هَلِبو halibō, it will be gone.

Many neuter verbs are in Sindhī considered both active and neuter, and therefore in the Past tenses constructed either as neuter (i. e. personally) or as transitive verbs (i. e. passively, the agent being put in the Instrumental), as: وڙهيس viṛhiuse, I quarrelled or: وڙهيو مون mū viṛhiō, by me it was quarrelled, from وڙهَنُ viṛhaṇu, v. n., to quarrel; کهليوس khiliuse, I laughed, or: کهليو مون mū khiliō, by me it was laughed, from کهلَنُ khilaṇu, v. n., to laugh; but روَنُ ruṇu, v. n., to weep, is always constructed passively in the past tenses, as: رُنائين runā-ī, he wept (it was wept by him).

On the other hand there are also some active verbs

(but ending in the Imperative in 'u'), which are constructed in the Past tenses like neuter verbs, and not passively, as: سِکْهِيُسْ sikhiuse, I learnt (not مُونِ سِکْهِيَتُو) from سِکْهَانُ sikhanu, v. a., to learn; سِکْيُسْ sikiuse, I longed for, from سِکْنُ sikanu, v. a., to long for.

§. 52.

B) Inflexion of the transitive verb.

The inflexion of the transitive and causal verb agrees on the whole with that of the neuter verb in the Potential, the Present, the Imperfect and the Future; but it differs from the inflexion of the neuter verb by being destitute of the Past Tenses of the Active Voice, which must be circumscribed by the past tenses of the Passive Voice, the past participle of transitive verbs having always a passive signification. The agent must therefore in the past tenses be put in the Instrumental, or it may, if that be a pronoun, be affixed to the past participle in the shape of a Suffix. It is understood, that the past participle passive must agree with its substantive in gender and number, as well as the adjective.

From every transitive and causal verb (and partly also, as noted already, from the neuter verb) a passive theme may be derived, which is regularly inflected through all tenses.

We exhibit now the inflexion of a transitive verb, ending in the Imperative in 'e'.

Chapter XVI.

Compound verbs.

§. 53.

The Sindhi possesses a great facility in giving different shadows of meaning to a verb by compounding it with another verb.

1) The most common way of compounding a verb with another is to put the past conjunctive participle of the active or passive mood, ending in i or *ē*¹⁾, before it.²⁾ The construction of a verb thus compounded depends entirely on the definite verb, not in any way on the past conjunctive participle. In this way are formed

a) So-called Intensitives, which impart to the definite verb a peculiar signification, arising out of the sense of the preceding past conjunctive participle, as: وَتَّهِي وَتَّجَنُ vathī vaṇaṇu, to take off, literally: to go having taken; مَرِي وَتَّجَنُ marī vaṇaṇu, to be dead, lit.: to go having died; چَرَّهِي وَتَّجَنُ čarhī vaṇaṇu, to ascend, lit.: to go having ascended; کُھَلِي پَرُونُ khulī pavanu, to be opened, lit.: to fall having been opened; جِي پَرُونُ jī pavanu, to become alive, literally: to fall having lived; وَهِي پَرُونُ vahī pavanu, to pour down (as rain), literally: to fall having flown. — وَدَّهِي وَجَهَنُ vadhē vijhaṇu, to cut down, lit.: to throw having cut; سُورِي کَدَّهَنُ sōrē kadhaṇu, to pull out, lit.: to pull having moved; چَارَّهِي آَنُنُ čarhē āṇaṇu, to hang up, lit.: to bring having caused to ascend; لُورَّهِي چَهَدَنُ lōrhē čaḍaṇu, to float off (act.), lit.: to give up having floated away; تَانِيَوُ جَهَنُنُ tāniō čhinaṇu, to pluck out, lit.: to pluck out having pulled; مَوَتَّاي نِنُنُ mōtā-ē niaṇu, to bring back, lit.: to take away having caused to return, etc. etc. It is to be noted, that کَهَنِي khanī, the past conjunctive participle of کَهَنُنُ khaṇaṇu, to lift up, is used with all sorts of verbs, to intensify their signification, implying, that the action is done forthwith, as: كَهَنِي لِكَهَنُ khanī likhanu, to set to writing; كَهَنِي أُجَارُنُ khanī ujāranu, to set to polish, كَهَنِي وَجَائِنُ khanī vajāinu, to set to play (an instrument); كَهَنِي وَجِنُ khanī vañanu, to be off.

1) The past conjunctive participle ending in iō is also occasionally used to make up a compound verb.

2) In poetry though the past conjunctive participle may also follow the definite verb.

In the same way the past conjunctive participle of پَوَنُ pavanu, to fall, viz.: پَٻِي paī or پِيٻِي pēī, is put before a verb, to intensify its signification, as پَٻِي كِهَنُ paī khianu, to eat on or up, literally: to eat having fallen upon it. The augment تَهو thō of the Present tense is dropped, when the verb is thus compounded with پَٻِي paī or پِيٻِي pēī.

He who will eat (it) with pleasure, that is my friend. Maj. 319.

b) Compound verbs, implying possibility, and power are formed by putting a past conjunctive participle before the verbs سَكَهَنُ saghanu¹), to be able, and جَانُنُ jānanu, to know, as: کَرِيو سَكَهَنُ karē, karyō saghanu, to be able to do; دَئِي جَانُنُ dēi jānanu, to know to give.

1) With سَكَهَنُ the Infinitive may also be joined.

c) The idea of completion is expressed by putting a past conjunctive participle before the verbs: رَهَنُ rahanu, to remain, وَتَهَنُ vathanu, to take, چُڪَنُ čukanu, to be at an end; نِبَهَنُ nibhanu or نِبَنُ nibanu, to be ended; similarly before ڪَرَنُ base karanu, to leave off, to have done, as: وَتَهِي رَهَنُ vathī rahanu, to have taken; رَمِي رَهَنُ ramī rahanu, to be off; ڪَهاڻِي وَتَهَنُ khāē vathanu, to have done eating; ڪَري چُڪَنُ karē čukanu, to have done; ڪَري چَئي ڪَرَنُ čai base karanu, to have done speaking.

ماڻهون هن جو مٿ ٻنڌهي وسا تهئا

When Jesus had ended these sayings, then the people, having heard his doctrine, became astonished. Matth. 7, 28.

d) Duration or repetition is expressed by putting before the definite verb the past conjunctive participle ending in iō, to which also the emphatic ī may be affixed, als: پَرِهَئو پَرِهَئو parhiō parhanu, to read over again, to keep on reading.

پَرِهَئو پَرِهَئو سَبَقُ إِنهين سَوَرِ جَو

Read over again the lesson of this very pain. Sh. Jam. Kal. V, 31.

سَوَئِي سَوِ حَرْفُ پَرِهَئوئِي تَهو پَرِهَئان

Even that, that letter I read over and over again Sh. Jam. Kal. V, 33.

2) Another kind of Intensitives is formed by putting the past participle of پَوَنُ pavanu, to fall, viz.: پِئو piō, before the Imperative, Present¹⁾ or Imperfect of a definite verb, as: پِئو مَانِجَانِسِ piō mānijāse, enjoy her; پِئَا تِهَنِسِ piā thiane, they become پِئَا دِسَنَدَا هُئَا they were seeing.

جَدِهين كَهَتِ تِي اچي نَدِهين تُون پَرِ پَتِي كَدِهَجَانِسِ

پَوِ پِئو مَانِجَانِسِ

Many of his miracles the other boys used to see. Abd-ul-Latīf's life, p. 3.

1) In this case the augment تَهو thō is dropped as unnecessary.

3) The idea of continuation is expressed by putting a present participle before the verbs رَهَنُ rahanu, to remain and وَتَنُ vatanu, to go about, as: وِندَو رَهِي vēndō rahī, he continues going; چَارِندَو وَتِي čārīndō vatē, he keeps on grazing.

وِندَو رَهَنَدَو وَرْچِي مَنجَهَان مِصرَ شَامَ

بِيَجَلُ كَهَوَزَا چَارِندَو وَتِي

Bījalu goes on grazing the horses. Story of Rāe Diāču, p. 2.

4) Two verbs may also be joined by putting the Infinitive of a verb in the Formative case before the verbs: لَگَنُ laḡanu, v. n. to apply, اَچَنُ ačanu, to come, وَنَجَنُ vaṇanu, to go. In this way so-called Inceptives are formed, as: رُونَنُ لَگَنُ ruṇa laḡanu, to begin to cry; وَسَنَ اَچَنُ vasana ačanu, to come to rain; سَدَنَ وَنَجَنُ saḍana vaṇanu, to go to call.

Chapter XVII.

The Verb with the Pronominal Suffixes.

§. 54.

The Sindhi uses the pronominal suffixes far more extensively with the verbs, than with the nouns (cf. §. 30). The suffixes attached to the verbs express, strictly speaking, only the Dative and Accusative (the object), and, with the past participle passive, also the Instrumental, though we may translate them by any case, save the Nominative.

The pronominal suffixes attached to verbs are identical with those attached to nouns, with this difference, that the suffix of the I person Plural, ũ, which is not in use with nouns (but with adverbs and postpositions), is used throughout the verb. There is further a peculiar Instrumental affix, attached to the past participle passive, which is never used with nouns or adverbs, viz.: ī for the Singular, and ũ for the Plural.

It appears, that the suffix ī is originally the Instrumental Sing. اِنَ ina, by him (from هِي hī, this), and ũ the Instrumental Plural اُنَ une, by them (from هُوَ hū or اُو ū, that).

To the first person Sing. and Plur. the suffix of the same person is never attached, as in this case the reflexive pronoun پَانَ pāna, self, must be employed.

In the compound tenses and in compound verbs the suffix always accedes to the latter part of the compound, though it properly belongs to the first member of the compound. Similarly the suffix is never attached to the augment تھو thō or تھی thē, but always to the verb itself.

To the past participle passive even two suffixes may accede, the first expressing the Instrumental and the second the Dative or Accusative, as will be shown afterwards.

The way, in which the several suffixes are attached to the inflexional terminations of the verb, will be best seen from the following survey.

§. 55.

I. The pronominal suffixes attached to the auxiliary verbs هُنَّ and هُنَّ

1) The Imperative.

The same as the II pers. Sing. and Plur. of the Potential.

The Precative.

	SING.	PLUR.
Sing.	Suffix
	I pers. هُجَانِم huj-ā-me.	هُجُوم hujō-me.
	be to me.	be to me.
	III pers. هُجَانِس huj-ā-se.	هُجُوس hujō-se.
	be to him.	be to him.
Plur.	Suffix
	I pers. هُجَانُون huj-ā-ū.	هُجُونُون hujō-ū.
	be to us.	be to us.
	III pers. هُجَانِ huj-ā-ne.	هُجُونِ hujō-ne.
	be to them.	be to them.

In the same way the suffixes are attached to تَهْجُ thijū, as: تَهْجَانِم thij-ā-me, become to me, تَهْجَانِس thij-ā-se, become to him.

يَوُّهُ هُوَ تَهْيِي اَكْ مِيْن دَ ثَوْنِ يَتَّهِ مِيْنِ تَجَانِ

Then if those are in front, be thou in their back.

1) Or هُؤِمِ hō-me, هُؤُسِ hō-se.

2) Or هُئِيئِي huane-ī.

3) When a nasalized vowel (ē) is followed by a dental nasal, the sign of nasalisation (ن in Arabic characters) is generally dropped as superfluous; thus هُئِيئِنِ huē-ne, instead of هُئِيئِنِنِ huē-ne, هُؤِنِ hū-ne, instead of هُؤُونِنِ hū-ne.

In the same way the suffixes are attached to the Potential تِهَّانِ thiã, I may become, and to the Indefinite Present تَهوْ huã thō and تِهَّانِ تَهوْ thiã thō, as: تَهوْ تِهَّانِ huẽ-me thō, thou art to me etc.

	III آهِيُونِ āhine-ū.	آهِيَنِ āhini-va.	آهِيَنِ āhini-ne.

Instead of آهي āhē and آهين āhine the form آه atha is also in use, but only when joined by suffixes. It corresponds to the old Prākṛit form अथि athi (the III pers. Sing. of the substantive verb asmi, I am, see Lassen, p. 345), which in Sindhī has also been transferred to the Plural.

The suffixes are attached to it in the following manner:

	Suffixes of the I pers.	Suffixes of the II pers.	Suffixes of the III pers.
Plur. and Sing.	آتهم atha-me.	آتهي ath-i,	آتهس atha-se.
	آتهون ath-ū.	آتهيثي athē-i.	آتهن atha-ne.

In the Present Definite: هوندو آهيان the suffixes accede, as noted already, to the latter part of the compound.

1) Or هَيَّيْنِمِ huiē-me, هَيَّيْنِمِ huyē-me, هَيَّيْنِمِ huyā-me.

That to هو hō, هُوَ huī etc., when forming with the past participle passive the Pluperfect, also a suffix, denoting the Instrumental, may be attached, will be shown in §. 56, 5.

It is to be observed, that the inflexional termination of the I pers. Sing. masc. and fem., se, becomes sā before the accession of the suffixes; the fem. termination هُيَسَ huyase is at the same time reduced to its original form هُيَ huī, as: هُيَسَانِي huī-sā-e. The suffix of the I pers. Plur. is in the Aorist sū or sī, and not ū, as in the Imperative, Potential and Present. In the II pers. fem. Sing. the form هُيَيَ huyē or هُيِي huyī is employed, when followed by the heavy suffix sū or sī, the accent being then thrown on the last syllable of the verb, as: huyē-sū or huyī-sū.

In the same way as to هُوسَ hōse and هُيَسَ huyase the suffixes accede to تِهِيَسَ thiuse and تِهِيَسَ thiase, and to every other neuter verb in the Aorist, for which تِهِيَسَ thiuse may serve as paradigm.

The Aorist تِهِيَسَ thiuse.

2) The final i (y) of هُوْنْدِ يِ hūndī is frequently dropped in poetry, as, هُوْنْدِمِ hūnda-me, instead of هُوْنْدِ يَمِ hūndya-me (hūndia-me).

In the same way as to هُونْدُسِ hūnduse and هُونْدَسِ hūndiase the suffixes are also attached to the Future of the active and passive voice, and consequently to the present participle of both voices.

In the same way the suffixes accede to the Potential of the passive voice. The Potential and Present of the regular passive is however very rarely found with a suffix, more frequently that of intransitive verbs in the passive form, as: گَدْجَانِي تَهَوَ gadjā-e thō, I meet with thee.

In the Imperfect the suffixes accede, as stated already, to the auxiliary verb هَوَسِ hōse.

3) The past participle.

(The III pers. of the Aorist.)

The way, in which the pronominal suffixes accede to the Aorist of neuter verbs, may be seen from the paradigm of تَہُسِ thiuse. In the Aorist of the passive voice the suffixes are only attached to the III pers. Sing. and Plur. or to the past participle passive. The suffixes thus attached imply either a Dative-Accusative (the object in general) or an Instrumental. The suffixes of the I and II pers. of the Sing. and Plur. may at the same time denote the object or the agent, but in the III pers. Sing. and Plur. different suffixes are employed to express the object or the agent, se and ne denoting the object, and ī and ū the agent (see §. 54). Both ī and ū are considered as heavy suffixes, which draw the accent from the first to the last syllable of the verb; final ō of the past participle must therefore be changed to ā before them (and for euphony's sake with an additional nasal to ā), to give a support to the following heavy suffix. In the fem. Sing. an ā must likewise be inserted between the final ī and the suffixes ī and ū, to which even the feminine Plural termination ū must give way, so that the Singular and Plural of both genders become alike, if joined by the instrumental suffixes ī and ū.

b) The past participle with two suffixes.

To the past participle passive two suffixes may be attached, the first denoting the agent and the latter the object (Dative-Accusative), as:

مَوْن تَو كَهِي چَهْدِئَو = chadiō-mā-e thou wast given up by me, literally: by me it was given up in reference to thee.

To suffixes of the II pers. Sing. and Plur. no further suffix is added, joint suffixes of this kind being mostly found in the III pers. Sing. and Plur., very seldom in the I pers. Sing. and Plur.

The suffix used for the I person Singular is in this case not me, but mā (the Instrumental of أَنْسُون), as 'me' would not be strong enough to support the following suffix. The Instrumental suffix of the III pers. Singular ī is either contracted with the preceding ā to ā, or is retained before a following suffix; the suffix of the III person Plural keeps its place before another acceding suffix, but is frequently shortened to ū (u).

No change of gender and number can take place in the participle, when joined by the suffix of the III person Singular or Plural; but when the participle is provided with a suffix of the I person Singular or Plural, it must agree with its subject in gender and number.

4) The past participle with the auxiliary

آهِي āhē etc.

(The Perfect.)

The single suffixes, be they referring to the agent or the object, are joined to آهِي āhē and اَنِهِنِ, but chiefly to the form اَتَهْ atha (§. 55), and not to the participle itself.

But to the form اَتَهْ atha a double suffix may be joined, the first implying the agent and the latter the object, as: دُنُو اَتَهِيْمَانِي, I have given to thee, literally: it has been given by me in reference to thee. The suffix of the III. person Singular and of the II. person Plural does not admit of a second suffix.

The original i of अत्थि atthi reappears again and is lengthened at the same time, when followed by a double suffix in the II. and III. person Singular, to give a support to the heavy joint-suffix.

The lions awakened him (saying): the fairies have come to thee. Ibid. p. 150.

5) The past participle with the auxiliary ھو etc.

(The Pluperfect.)

The single suffixes are joined to ھو hō etc., which see. Thus in the III person Singular and Plural the instrumental suffix ī and ū is also attached to ھو etc., as: چَهڙِئُو ھُئَانِئِينِ čhaḍiō huā-ī¹⁾, by him it had been given up, چَهڙِئُو ھُئَانِئُونِ čhaḍiō huā-ū, by them it had been given up.

But to ھو hō etc. a double suffix may also be attached, the first denoting the agent and the latter the object, as: چَهڙِئُو ھُوَماڻِي čhaḍiō hō-mā-e, thou hadst been given up by me, literally: it had been given up by me in reference to thee. These double suffixes however are of rare occurrence; in the II person Singular and Plural they are not in use.

1) Instead of ھُئَانِئِينِ huā-ī and ھُئَانِئُونِ huā-ū the contracted forms ھَانِئِينِ hā-ī and ھَانِئُونِ hā-ū (from ھو) are also in use.

SECTION IV.

ADVERBS, POSTPOSITIONS, CONJUNCTIONS AND INTERJECTIONS.

Chapter XVIII.

Adverbs.

§. 57.

The Sindhī has only a limited number of original adverbs.¹⁾ Adverbs are not derived from adjectives by any change of the adjectival termination, but the adjective as such (in the masc. Sing.) is either used in an adverbial sense, or the adjective, agreeing in gender and number with the subject referred to, is employed, where we would use an adverb as a complement to the verb, as:

هُوَ رَمِي مَانِي كَهَائِي تَهو he weeps much: كَهَنو رُئي تَهو he eats only bread.

A number of substantives are at the same time also used adverbially, either in the Nominative, the Instrumental, the Locative or the Ablative case, similarly some adjectives in the Locative and Ablative have received an adverbial signification.

1) Adverbs borrowed from the Arabic or Persian are here only so far taken into consideration, as they are commonly used in Sindhī.

گڏُ gaḍu, together.	نڪڻين nikaṇī, thoroughly;
لُرُ lura, straight-	wholly.

II. Peculiar use of Adjectives.

The following adjectives may be either used as (indecl.) adverbs or they may agree with their subject in gender and number even in such constructions, where in English an adverb would be used.

1) Grammatical treatises in Arabic.

2) بھلی is substantive, after which کُری karī is to be supplied;
i. e. having made a favour thou art come = thou art welcome!

آڏو āḍō¹), opposite; in front.

In the same way the Adjectives, implying time or place, derived from adverbs by the affixes āhō or ārō are either used adverbially or they may agree with their subject in gender and number, as:

1) آڏو، اوڏو، سامھون، وِجھو، may be constructed with جي or ڪھي.

2) سُڏھو is probably derived from the Sansk. सार्द्धम्, with; سَڏو from मंहित, joined by.

When used adverbially (which is commonly the case), they take also the fem. termination, as:

اَگَاهِي agāhī, in front; in advance.

مَتَاهِي mathāhī, on the top; above.

The Adjectives, ending in āitō (§. 10, 20) may at the same time be used adverbially, as:

وَسَائِيٲُو vasāitō, optional and optionally.

etc.

etc.

etc.

The Adjectives of one ending, which are not inflected, may all be used as adverbs; as:

جَالِ jala, } much; very.

جَلْدُ jaldu, quick and quickly.

سَوْدِيٲُ sōḍītu, true and truly.

V. Adverbs derived from the Pronominal bases.

From the pronominal bases a number of adverbs is derived by means of certain affixes, which coalesce with the pronominal base. We exhibit them in the following survey.

Pron. base.	Manner.	Place.	Direction.	Time.
i, ī, ē hē.	اينِي īa ¹⁾	اِيت ite ²⁾	ايڏِي ēḍē ³⁾	ايسين ē-sī ⁴⁾ in this wise.

1) Or short: اِنِي īa, هِنِي hīa; اُنِي ūa, جِنِي jīa etc.

2) Or اِتي ite, هِتي hete; also اِتهِي ithe; اُتي ute etc.

3) There are many other forms of this adverb, as: ايڏاهن ēḍahā, ايڏاهن ēḍahū, هيڏاهن hēḍahā etc.; see Stack's Sindhi Dictionary under the different forms.

4) Or ايسيني ēsia, ايسني ē-sīa etc. This set of adverbs is generally compounded with the postpositions تائين tā-ī, توڙين tō-ī or ٿوڙي tōṇī, as: ايسينتائين ēsitāī etc., or shortened: ايسٽائين es-tāī etc.

	in which wise.	where.	in which direction.	as long as.	when.

sō	تِينِي tī-a	تِت ti-te	تِيْدِي tē-dē	تِيسِين tē-sī	تَدِهِين taḍe-hī
	تِئِين ti-ē	تِت ta-te		تَاسِين tā-sī	تَان tā
	in that wise.	there.	in that direction.	so long.	then.

1) Or جِتي ji-te; جَتِي ja-te, جِته ji-the, جِتهي ji-the. There is also a lengthened form جَاتِي jā-te, جَاتِهي jā-the. All these forms may equally be used with the Correlative ti (as ti-te etc.) and ki.

2) Instead of the postfix سِين sī, the postfixes تَائِين tāī, تَوَّيْن tōī, تَوْنِي tōni, may also be joined to جِي jē and تِي tē, as: جِيَتَائِين jē-tāī, تِيَتَائِين tē-tāī etc.

kō	كِينِي	كِت	كِثِي	كِسِين	كِهِين

	كِثِين	كِت		كَسِين
	ki-ē	ka-te		kā-sī
	in what wise?	where?	in what direction?	how long.	when?

Some of these adverbs are again compounded with adverbial postfixes (and partly prefixes): as: جَانِكِي jā-kī or جَانِكِيَتَان jā-kī-tā, so long as; جَدِّهَاكُو jaḏeh-ā-kō, جَدِّهَاكُو جَدِّهَاكُر jaḏeh-ā-kura (ā-kara), from such a time as, since. تَائِكِي tā-kī or تَائِكِيَتَان tā-kī-tā, as long as; تَدِّهَاكُو taḏeh-ākō, تَدِّهَاكُو تَدِّهَاكُو taḏeh-ō-kō, تَدِّهَاكُو تَدِّهَاكُر taḏeh-ā-kura, from that time; كَدِّهَاكُو kaḏeh-ā-kō¹⁾ etc., from what time? اِيْدُّنِي ēḏ-tē, اِيْدُّتَائِين ēḏ-tāī or اِيْدُّتَاهِين ēḏ-tāhī, a little in this direction; جِيكَدِّهِين jē-kaḏehē if (at any time).

The adverbs implying 'place' and 'direction' may also be put in the Ablative, as: اِتَان it-ā, اِتَانُون it-āū, اِتَاهُون it-āhū, from this place, hence; اُتَان ut-ā, اُتَانُون ut-ū, اُتَاهُون ut-ahū, from that place, thence; تَتَان tit-ā, تَتُون tit-ū, تَتَاوُن tit-āū, from that place; كِتِهَان kith-ā, كِتِهُون kith-ū, كِتِهَاهُون kith-āhū etc. from what place, whence? اِيْدَان ēd-ā, اِيْدَاوُن ēd-āū, اِيْدَاهُون ēd-āhū, اِيْدَاهُون ēd-āhū etc. from this direction.

1) The forms: جَدِّهَاكُو jaḏeh-ā-kō etc. are properly double compounds viz.: جَدِّهَان jaḏeh-ā, the Ablative and كُو kō or كُون kū, a postposition (identical with كِهُون khū) 'from'. In the same way جَدِّهَاكُر jaḏeh-ā-kara is compounded from جَدِّهَان jaḏeh-ā (Abl.) and كُر kara (or kura) postposition, up to, literally: from which time up.

The emphatic ī (ī) or hī (hē) very frequently accedes to these adverbs, as: اِيْثِي iē-ī, in this very wise; اِيْثِي ita-ī or اِيْثِي ita-hī¹), even here; اِيْثِي itā-ī, اِيْثِي it-ā-hī, even hence; اِيْدَاوُن ēda-ī, اِيْدَاهُون ēda-hī, in this very direction; اِيْدَان ēd-ā-ī, from this very direction etc.

1) The final ē o these adverbs is changed to 'a' before the emphatic ī, for the sake of euphony; but ē keeps its place also, as: اَتِيْئِي utē-ī, in that very place.

VI. Compound adverbs.

The Sindhī uses a considerable number of compound adverbs¹⁾, which are formed either by reduplicating the adverb (or noun), or adding a similar adverb (or noun), or by adding an adverbial affix or postposition.

1) Such compound adverbs may be written in one word or separately. When joined by a conjunctive vowel it is usual to join them also in writing.

Chapter XIX.

POSTPOSITIONS.

§. 58.

The Sindhī has no prepositions, but only postpositions, as all adverbs or particles, which influence in any way the noun, are placed after the noun and not before it. Only رِ rē, رِی ria may be optionally used as preposition or postposition.¹⁾

1) In poetry the postpositions are frequently turned into prepositions, if required by the metre.

There is only a small number of original postpositions in Sindhī, which require the noun in the Formative; far the greatest part of the postpositions now in use are originally adverbs (i. e. substantives and adjectives used adverbially; cf. §. 57, II. III. IV.), which either retain their original adverbial signification and are consequently constructed with جي jē, or which are already treated as postpositions and require the Formative of the noun governed by them; the greater part of them may therefore be constructed with or without جي jē, and be put before or after the noun, they govern.

I. Postpositions proper, requiring the Formative of the noun governed by them.

بھَر bhara, } on, with such a part downward; against;
بھَر bhare, } supported from. Sansk. भर, adj.¹⁾

توئیں tōī, }

توڑی tōrī²⁾, } up to; till.
توئی tōī, }

1) بھَر bhar has already in Hindūstānī a signification bordering on that of a postposition. In Sindhī the substantive بھَر bharu, prop. support, is also in use, of which بھَر bhare is the Locative.

2) Apparently derived from توڑ tōru, the end; توڑی tōrī, = توڑی tōrī-ī, emphatic Locative.

3) The Ablative forms dāhā etc. are generally used in the sense of the Locative.

INTERJECTIONS.

Besides the Vocative signs, mentioned already in §. 16, 8, the following are the most common; they imply:

THE SYNTAX.

We divide the Syntax into two parts, the analytical and synthetical. In the analytical part the chief constituent parts of speech, which have been described in the elementary grammar, are to be considered according to their exact signification, their intrinsic value and their special application. In the synthetical part it will be shown, how the different parts of speech are linked together in order to form a sentence and how two or more sentences are joined together.

I. THE ANALYTICAL PART.

SECTION I.

THE NOUN.

Chapter I.

On the absence of the article in Sindhī.

§. 61.

The Sindhī possesses no article definite, as little as the Sanskrit and the modern Ārian tongues of India. The noun may therefore be definite or indefinite, as: Ĵī the woman or: a woman.

There are no fixed rules, by which a noun may be known as definite or indefinite, the only safe guide is attention to the context. On the whole it may be remarked:

1) A certain number of nouns have by themselves a definite meaning, as: هِنُونِ hīṇ, the mind, سِجُ siju, the sun, اُبِهَرَنَدُو ubhirando, the east, سُرُگُ surgu, the heaven, اُبُه ubhu, the sky etc. Similarly all proper nouns.

2) If a noun stands in apposition to a proper name, it is thereby rendered definite, as: چينَ وَلَايَتَ the country of China, حُسينَ پَري the fairy Husine.

If for any reason a noun is to be pointed out as indefinite, the numeral adjective هِڪَڙو one, or the indefinite pronoun ڪو, some one, any one, is used. There is some slight difference in the use of هِڪَڙو and ڪو, the first particularizing the noun by implying that only one person or thing is understood, the latter generalizing the same, by implying, that some one out of many, or something, which is not further described, is intended. هِڪَڙو may also be used in the Plural, especially before another numeral, to render the number somewhat doubtful, as: هِڪَڙا ٻه ماڻهون some two men, or about two men, the number not being fixed as certain. — If some portion or quantity of a thing is to be indicated ڪي (or کين kī) is put before the noun, irrespectively of the gender of the noun (as in Hindūstānī کُچھ).

Chapter II.

On the gender of nouns.

§. 62.

The Sindhi possesses only two genders, the masculine and feminine, the neuter having been lost in the course of time. As to the special use of the genders it is to be remarked:

1) The masculine gender is the next and refers either to male beings, or to things and abstract ideas.

a) The masculine gender denotes living beings in general (the females being included therein) as: ماڻهو maṇhu, a man (generally); ٻچو bačō, a child; جانور jānvaru, an animal; گهوڙو ghōrō, a horse (generally). But in some nouns, implying inferior animals, the feminine includes both genders, as: بلا balā, a snake (generally); مکھ makhe, a fly; جون jū; a louse etc. But if the gender of a noun is to be expressly mentioned, نر nar, a male, and مادي mādī, a female, must be put before it.

ماڻهو مڪي شهر جا ميٽو ميٽا ڪن

The people of the city of Mekka assembling form crowds. Maj. 38.

خُذَاءَ چِيُو تَه دَهَرَتِي اُپَچَايِي جِئَرَا پَنَهَن جِي جَاتِ سَارُو دَهوَر * وَرَهَنَدَر جَانُوَر

نُر پَکَهي وَهَن نَه تَهَنُون چَهَدِين

They do not allow a male bird to sit down. Amulu Mān. p. 141.

It is an anomaly, that the nouns بَازُ bāzu, بَاشُو bāšō, شِکِرُو šikirō, چَرُگُ čaragu, سِيچَانُو sīcānō, بَایَسِرُو baīsirō, لَگَرُ lagaru, denoting different kinds of female hawks, are masculine, whereas the nouns بَاشِين bāšina and چِپَکُ čipaka, denoting male hawks, are feminine.

b) If a neuter idea is to be expressed, the masculine must be employed, the masculine generally supplying the place of the neuter, as: چَنکُو آهي it is good; مُون چِيُو it was said by one. But this is only the case in the Singular, the masc. Plural of an adjective (or participle) never being used in a neuter sense. It must not be lost sight of, that the masc. form of an adjective cannot be employed in Sindhi in the sense of an abstract substantive ¹⁾ (as in Latin, Greek or German), but that the corresponding substantive must be used (cf. §. 9, I. 1, 2) or the adjective must be accompanied by a substantive denoting 'thing' or 'matter' ²⁾; only the masc. Singular

1) In sentences like the following: چَنکُو کَرَن رَهَنَدُو to do good is allowed, چَنکُو آهي is an attribute, belonging to کَرَن, literally: well doing is allowed.

2) It is a different case, when adjectives are used without a sub-of the past participle passive may be used in the sense of a neuter substantive.

خُذَاءَ جِهَتَا تِهِنْدَوَ چَنگائی ۽ مَنڊائی جا سُدھوآرا

Ye will become like God, knowing good and evil.

مُنهن جو چيو نَ ڪري هلي تون هتِه ڪرينس

She does not, what I said, go thou and subdue her. Maj. 285.

c) In such nouns, in which a distinction between a larger or smaller size is admissible, the masc. termination is used to express the idea of relative largeness, as: ماکوڙو mākōrō, a large ant, مکھو makhō, a big fly; بھنگو bhungō, a house (large hut); کوڻھو kōthō, a large room; کاڻھو kāthū, a beam (a big stick) etc.

2) The feminine gender refers either to female beings, or to things and abstract ideas.

a) The feminine being considered the weaker sex, the idea of relative smallness, littleness or weakness is expressed by the fem. termination in all such nouns, which admit of such a variation of meaning, as: ماکوڙي mākōrī, a small ant, مکھ مکھ makhe, a small fly; بھنگي bhungī, a small hut etc.

stantive, as: سڄو ڪھڙو right (and) left, scil. پاسو, which is to be supplied.

b) A number of adjectives are only found in the fem. form سَنَدِه sandhe, barren (said of women); پَچَہَر pačhara, barren (said of cattle; گَرَبِهِنِي garbhini or گَرَبِهِن garbhine, pregnant (said of women); سُوَا suā, milch (said of animals); گَبھوَرَاڙِي gābhōrārī, having a child (said of a mother); وَرَہِيتِي varētī, having a husband (said of a married woman), وَدَّوَر وَدَّوَر vadavara, fit to be married etc. etc.

c) Adjectives or pronouns in the feminine are frequently used eliptically, the noun گَالِه gālhe, word, matter, being understood. The noun تَارِيخ tāriḡa, date, day, is also occasionally omitted.

Chapter III.

Number.

§. 63.

The Sindhī has only two numbers the Singular and the Plural, the Dual having been dropped already in Prākṛit (cf. §. 15). As to their special use it may be remarked:

1) Arabic nouns in the so-called broken Plural are (according to their original signification) treated as collective nouns, and consequently constructed with the Singular of a verb (or adjective). The Arabic fem. Plural in آت is likewise treated as a Singular. But now and then the Arabic Plur. is constructed with the Plural of a verb etc., or it is put in the Sindhī Plural form and treated accordingly.

بُجْهَ ذَ اَوْلَادُ كُوْمُن كِهِي حَقَّ دَرگَاهَ مَوْن لِكِهِيئُو آهِي كِ ذَ

Ask, if some children are destined for me from the threshold of God. Amulu Mān., p. 139.

اَوْلَادُ چَبَا

Blessed are those, who are peace-makers; for they shall be called children of God. Matth. 5, 9.

ذَ رَالِي دُنَارِيئِي وَيِي جِتِ آهِي جَنَاتِ عَدْنِ جِي

Then the Lord gives thee a meadow, where the gardens of Eden are. Sh. Sōr. I, 9.

ذَ تَهَا دِسُو جُو سَرْدَارُ عَالَمِ جُو مِرْنِي اَصْحَابِنِ سَان ء
سَبَهِيئِي نَبِي آيَا اَنِهِن

Do ye not see, that the Lord of the world with all companions, and all prophets are come. Life of Abd-ul-Latif, p. 37.

2) With numerals the Singular form of a noun may be used, though the Plural is more common (cf. §. 23).

3) The Plural is frequently used in a honorific sense, when speaking with respect of any person. A noun in the Singular may therefore be constructed with the Plural of a verb (adjective etc.), or the noun itself may be put in the Plural, though implying only a Singular. This is frequently the case with the nouns هَوْتُ, دَوُسُ, سَپَرِينِ etc.

For the same reason the II pers. Plural of a verb is used, when addressing politely a person, but not so frequently as in Hindūstānī, the common people being as yet in the habit of addressing each other by the II pers. Singular.

عَبْدُ الْلطِيفِ نَنْدَهِينَ مِينِ كَدِهِنِ كَدِهِنِ پَانِ جِيئِنِ
چھوڪَرَنِ سَانِ لِيڪَ لِيڪَوَٽِي رَانِدِ ڪَنڊَا هُئا

Chapter IV.

The cases of the noun.

§. 64.

I. The Nominative.

As to the special use of the Nominative it may be noted:

1) Nouns or proper names standing in apposition to another noun are generally coordinated to the same, as: لِكَ لِكُوْتِي رَانِدِ the harbour Karāčī; لِيكَ لِيكَوْتِي رَانِدِ the play lika likōtī; شَمْسُ پَاتِشَاهُ the king Shamsu etc.; but the noun in apposition may also be subordinated by means of the Genitive; cf. §. 67, 4.

مُرْمِي مَرَّ مَاَنَا رَانِي رَاوِ ڏِيَاچَ جِي

Well! smiles the queen-mother of the king Dīācu; i. e. saying: well! she smiles etc. Sh. Sōr. III, 6.

لَيْلَا نَالُو نَارِ جُو جَا قَاصِي قَمَرِ دِهِي

Lailā is the name of a woman, who (is) the daughter of the Qāzī Qamar. Maj. 33.

ڏٽهَوَ حَرَمُ مَاَه سَوَنُڪُو شَاهَزَادَن تِهِي

The month (= moon) (of) Muharram was seen; anxiety befell the princes. Sh. Kēd. I, 1.

2) Substantives implying a number or quantity may be likewise coordinated to another noun, instead of governing it in the Genitive (cf. §. 23), as: ڏَاتَرِ ڌَلِ lots of liberal persons.

اَصْلِ عَاشِقِن تِي چُلِ چَارِي لَكِه

There are throughout lakhs (of) tale-bearers and scouts upon lovers. Maj. 254.

مَارِي مِصْرِن سِين دِهُونْدَهَ كِئَانُون ڏِهِيَر

Having cut with (their) swords they made heaps (of) carcasses. Sh. Kēd. III, 4.

ڌَانِ ڌَلُوچَا ڌِلِ وَنِيَا وَتِهِي رَاصِي تِهِي

Having taken buckets (of) heart-pleasing gifts be content! Sh. Sōr. III, 4.

3) The duration of time is expressed by the Nominative (or by the uninflected case generally).

اَتَهَيِي پَهَرِ عَظِيمَ جو کُنڌُھُ مَنجھُ کِپَارَ

The (whole) eight watches (i. e. day and night) the hook of the Great (= God) is in my skull. Sh. Sör. I, 20.

رَاتُونِ جَاگَنِ جِي سِي آئون کُنڌَرِي سِينَ

رَهَ آجُوكِي رَاتَرِي تُون لَالَن مُون لَانِي

Stay for my sake this night, o darling! Sh. Sam. I, 20.

4) The Nominative is frequently used absolutely to avoid two or more nouns following each other in the inflected case, which is contrary to the Sindhī idiom; the case, in which the nouns should properly stand, must then be taken up by a pronoun or pronominal adjective. If the stress be laid upon some part of a sentence, it may be put quite absolutely, its relation or subordination being taken up by a pronoun. This is especially the case, when a noun is nearer defined by a relative pronoun in the Nominative, the noun being then attracted by the following relative.

مِيوَا مَنجَرِ مَکَهيُونِ سَبِهِي چَکَهيَن چَسَ

Fruits, clusters of flowers, (kinds of) honey, they try the taste of all. Sh. Um. Mār. VI, 9.

تَ اِهين پَنهن جو پيُ جو آسان مين آهي تنهن جا پُتر تهيندو

Then ye will become children of your father, who is in heaven. Matth. 5, 45.

§. 65.

II. The Vocative.

By the Vocative a person or thing taken personally is addressed; the Vocative stands therefore in no connexion with other nouns or with a verb, and is generally put at the beginning of a sentence.

1) The Vocative is used without any interjectional particle, if no particular stress is laid upon the address; but if the attention of the person spoken to is to be roused, the interjectional particles يَا yā, اَيِ ē, اَيِ ai, اُو ō, هُو ho are used promiscuously with masc. and fem. nouns, اَيِ ī and اَيِ ai only with fem. nouns.

In addressing an inferior person, or when speaking very affectionately to a person, the interjectional particles رَ ڙي rē (ري rē) and اَرَ ڙي arē (اري arē) are used with masc. nouns, and رَ ڙي rī (ري rī) and اَرَ ڙي arī (اري arī), (cf. §. 16, 8, Note) with fem. nouns, be they in the Singular or Plural. بارَ ڙي barī, رَ ڙي rī and رِڙون riū are also used independently of a noun, in addressing an inferior female (or intimate friend).

جيسَ جيڏيون مُنهن جا آءُ پُنهن پيهي

I have been quickened, companions, come in my Punhū! Sh. Dēśī II, Epil.

Hallo! son of man, doest thou go having beaten our mother? Amulū Mān. p. 148.

ڙي ٻورچيائي ماني اِنِ

Hallo! cook, bring bread! Ibid. p. 144.

2) Adjectives preceding or following a noun in the Vocative are likewise put in the Vocative. But if an adjective defines another adjective in the sense of an adverb, it remains uninflected.

دوسَ مِٹھا دِلدارَ عَالَمَ سَبھُ آبَادُ کَرین

Sweet, charming friend! mayst thou fertilize the whole world! Sh. Sār. IV, 12.

کھنؤ سَباجھا سِپرین مُون کھی چھڈِ تانمُون مَس

O very kind friend! they (= she, Sing.) have given me up with difficulty (i. e. unwillingly). Maj. 664.

3) The Nominative Plural is occasionally used instead of the Vocative, especially with nouns terminating in 'u' (masc.).

کیر آھیو کِیڈھَن اچو پُرسَ پَراہین پَار

Who are ye? whence do ye come from? ye men of foreign appearance? Nānga jō Qissō, v. 23.

آہین گھیل * وَڈی بَار کھنیل مُون وَت اچو

Ye, that labour and are heavy laden, come unto me. Matth. 11, 28.

4) A number of nouns are commonly found in the Vocative only, as: اَمَرِ amarē (اَمَنِ amanē), ایلِ āl, آئی āī, āyale, اُمی amī, مائی māī, o mother! an affectionate term for a female; ادی adī, دادی dādī, o sister! جِجَا jījā or جِجی jījī, o aunt; آدَا adā or دَا دَا dādā (Nom. آدو and دَا دُو) o brother! آبا abā and بابَا bābā (from آبو and بابو), o father! a term, which may be applied even to a child (male or female); میاں miyā (Sing. and Plur.) o friend! a respectful address.

Having come, o darling, o friend! cover with dust the tomb of the deceased one in the mountain-passes. Sh. Maṣḍ. VI, Epil.

§. 66.

III. The Instrumental.

1) The Instrumental either denotes the agent, by whom an action is performed, or the instrument, by means of which any thing is done.¹⁾ The Instrumental in Sindhi is not only used with the past tenses of transitive or causal verbs (which always have a passive meaning), but also with any tense of neuter verbs implying a passive signification.²⁾

سَاتِهِي ٻَدَهَا بَار تُو کهي اَرُس اَکِهَرِيَن مِيَن

By the people of the caravān the loads have been bound up; in thy eyes there is sloth. Sh. Surāg. III, Epil.

1) The sense is different, if the postposition سَانُ be used with a noun denoting an instrument. In this case it is implied, that some one was accompanied or armed with any thing, but not, that he has performed any thing by a certain instrument.

2) Independently of a verb the Instrumental of نَالُو nālo, name, is used quite in an adverbial sense, as: هِکَرُو فَتِيرُ مُحَمَّدِ عَالِمِ نَالِي: one faqir, by name Muhammad ʿAlim.

سُنْهِنِيْ كِهِي سَيِّدُ جَرِي وَدِهَوُ قُرْبَ كِهِي

Sūhinī was killed, says the Sayyid, by (her) relationship. Sh. Suh. V, 17.

پِيرِيں آئُونِ نَه پُجِي ڏِيَه پَرِيَانِ جُو ڏُورِ

By drops they are not reconciled; they have espied the jars of the heroes. Sh. Jam. Kal. IV, 9.

2) The Instrumental expresses causality¹⁾ (by reason of, by dint of):

سَتِنِيْ مَاهِ سُكِي وَتُو مَنجِهَانِ رَتُ رَمْنِ

اَتَهِنِيْ مَاهِ عَاشِقِ سَنَدِيُونِ اَكِهُونِ اُنَجِ مَرْنِ

On the seventh in the month the blood went out of the veins by reason of dryness;

On the eighth in the month the eyes of the lover die of thirst. Maj. 478, 477.

3) The Instrumental expresses the way and manner, in which any thing is done.

سُنَّتَ قَاصِي سَاْمُهُونِ چَنَكِي بَهَتِ رَكِهَانَتِيْنِ

He kept the custom (good breeding) in a good manner before the Qāzī. Maj. 173.

1) In a similar sense the postposition کِهَانِ may also be employed.

لَا مَقْصُودَ فِي دَارَيْنِ إِنْ يَرِ اتَّانُونِ

'There is no purpose in both mansions', in this wise they spoke. Sh. Jam. Kal. V, 23.

بِنَهْنِ كَهِي بَهْرِنِ پَرِينِ وَبِجَارِنِ وَرُوهْ

To both helpless ones (there is) pleasant talk in many ways. Maj. 198.

4) The Instrumental expresses the price, for which any thing is bought or sold.¹⁾

بَ جِهْرَكُونِ پَنَسِي كِي نَه تَهْيُونِ وَكَامَنِ

Are not two sparrow sold for a piece? Matth. 10, 29.

كَارُونِ كَهْتَهْيُونِ خَاصِيُونِ اُوچهي اَتِ اَجَنِ

Fine black woollen blankets come there to hand for a paltry (sum). Sh. Um. Mār. VI, 8.

§. 67.

IV. The Genitive.

1) It must be remembered, that the Genitive in Sindhī is originally an adjective, formed by the affix جَو, which always requires the Formative of the noun, to which it accedes; the Genitive admits therefore of gender, inflection and number, like other adjectives. Instead of جَو its diminutive form جَرَو jarō is also found in poetry, and especially سَنَدَو sandō (cf. §. 16, 6) and its dim. form سَنَدِرَو sandirō. The Genitive case-sign جَو etc. may also accede to a noun with suffixes; in poetry it is frequently dropped altogether, to be supplied from the context. سَنَدَو may also be separated from the noun, to which it belongs.

1) But the postposition سَانُ may also be used in this sense.

فَقِيرِي جُو فَهَمُ سَو آهي نَه آسانُ

The understanding of the duties of a faqīr is not easy. Mēnggho 37.

جَانَبَ مُنْهَن جِي جِيئِي مِين تَنْهَن جِي طَلَا پَو

كَهَر جَا دَهَنِي اُتَهِي چَهَا دِسَن تَه چَوَرُ كَهَر جِيُون مِڙِيئي

وَتَهَن مِڙِي هَر بَنْدِهِي دَارُون پِي كَهِيُو تَهِي تَهو نَجِي

بَهَاتُوبَهَات جَا كَهَاچَ مَاتَهَن جِي كَهَرَن مان ڏينَهَارِي

چَوَرِي گَري اُنَ كَهِي اُئي ڏينْدَا هَا

سَنَدِي جَا سَاڙِيَهَ كَهَهَ كَهَتَهَوَرِي بَهَانِئَان

The grass of (my) fatherland I consider as musk. Sh. Um. Mār. II, 1.

2) As regards the position of the Genitive, it generally precedes the noun, by which it is governed, like other adjectives; but if the stress be laid on the governing noun, or if the euphony of the sentence should require it, the Genitive follows the same. In poetry the Genitive precedes or follows the noun, on which it is dependent, either immediately or separated by one or more intervening nouns, as it may be required by the metre or the rhyme.

جيڪو دقت پورهئي جي ڪنا بهڄندو اُن جو حال کٽن

جان تهيندو

Whoever flees from the trouble of labour, his state will become like that of the dogs. Sindhī Read. B., p. 61.

ڪشٽي ڪيئي جي الله لکي اُڪار

Escort, for God's sake, the boat of the helpless one! Sh. Barvō Sindhī II, Epil.

3) The Genitive has a double signification in Sindhī; it refers either to the subject or to the object of the sentence. The Genitive is called subjective, if the attribute expressed by the Genitive refers to the governing noun (or subject) as to its owner or author, and it is called objective, if it refers to the object, to which the action of the subject is directed.

ستهم ساهيڙن جا طعنا توهي لاءِ

I have borne the taunts of (my) companions for thy sake. Sh. Mūm. Rāṇō I, Epil.

انهيان جن سنڌڙي مون ڪهي سي نه جهڏيندا

Those, whose I am, will not abandon me. Sh. Kōh. II, Epil.

پيرن هيٺو پرني جي آئون وجهايان وار

Beneath the feet of (my) friend I spread (my) hair. Maj. 231.

Complaints about the separation I shall utter to dear Punhū, o friend! Sh. Hus. VIII, Epil.

4) One noun is often made dependant on the other by means of the Genitive, where we should properly expect an apposition.¹⁾ In this way نَالُو nalō, name and similar nouns subordinate the appellation in the Genitive. The same subordination in the Genitive takes place, when the genus is nearer defined by the species, as: a fig-tree, or when a geographical appellation, as: town, mountain, river etc. is followed by a proper name, as: the river Indus. In some instances the English idiom resorts to the same construction, as the Sindhī, e. g. the city of London.

بِرَهَ جي بَانِي ڪَنهن ڪَهاَن سِڪَهيَن سِيرِيَن

From whom hast thou learnt the word (of) 'separation', dear friend! Sh. Barvō Sindhī II, 8.

There was a very respectable inhabitant of the town of Thata. Ibid. p. 45.

1) See §. 64, 1.

5) The Genitive describes the material, of which something is made or composed; in this case the Genitive quite supplies the place of an adjective.

يُحْتَا جُو وَكُو مِلَسَ جُو هُو ۞ چيلِه دھارين چَم جُو پَتَكُو

The garment of John was of camel's hair and round his waist a girdle of leather. Matth. 3, 4.

She, having put on bracelets and buttons, will cause to bring (call for) a garment of pearls and rubies. Amulu Mān. p. 144.

6) The Genitive describes the nature or quality of the noun, on which it is dependent (Genitivus qualitatis). But in this case the Genitive must always be accompanied by an attribute, be that an adjective, pronoun or another noun in the Genitive; the repetition of a noun may also serve as an attribute. In poetry, and even in prose, the Genitive case-sign is frequently dropped, so that constructions of this kind can hardly be distinguished from those with the Locative, see §. 70, 4.

ڪُپَڙَا طَرَحين طَرَحين جَا ڏِيئي هَلَايانِ

Having given clothes of different kinds he started them off. Amulu Mān. p. 140.

7) When the Genitive is dependent on nouns, implying a part, quantity or measure, it expresses the whole of that, of which the governing noun forms a part. But if no such noun precede and a part is to be singled out, a postposition must be used (as: مَنجَهَان, مان etc.).

جَنهن ڪهي زال وڻهي آئي جي ٽرين پنين مين لڪايو

Which a woman took (and) hid in three measures of flour. Matth. 13, 33.

8) A certain number of adjectives and appellatives, which have partly taken the signification of substantives, may subordinate another noun in the Genitive. Of this kind are the nouns formed by the affix āku, āū (see §. 8, 9) and others.

9) The Genitive is used, without being dependent on a governing noun, to express a space of time, as: جُو رَاتِ by night, جُو دِيْنَهَ by day etc., the noun, by which the Genitive is governed and which is idiomatically left out, being وِلَو vėlō, time.

This construction is therefore identical with that mentioned in §. 64, 3. In Hindūstānī كُو is used in the same sense.

وَجِنِي جُو اَن دِيَهِي جَرِ پَلُو پَاتِيَاَن

Sitting at (the time of) evening prayer I spread out my skirt on the water. Sh. Sōr. V, 14.

10) A number of adjectives require idiomatically the inflected case of the Genitive (i. e. جي), when a noun is made dependent on them. The most common of them are: آڏو ādō, in front; اوڏو ōdō (Dim. اوڏڙو ōdīrō), near to; سامھون sāmuhō, in front of, opposite; مھنديون mahandiyō, in front; ويجهو vējhō (Dim. ويجهڙو vējhirō), near etc. These adjectives being mostly used as adverbial postpositions (§. 58, II), the same construction has apparently been preserved, when they are used as regular adjectives.

When they came near to Jerusalem. Matth. 21, 1.

11) The relative adjectives جهو jehō, جهڙو jeharō, such as, like as, fit to, سڏو sandō, like as, جيترو jē-tirō, as much as, and جيڏو jēdō, as large as, are always constructed with the simple Formative of the noun, that depends upon them.

Then no mote, as large as a sesamum seed, came into thy body, o friend? Ajaib v. 21.

12) When a noun is subordinated by means of the Genitive to the Infinitive of a neuter or active verb, the case-sign of the Genitive may be optionally dropped.

گوتَهَانُو اَن تَهوَرِي اَن جِي سَوَرَن مَنجِه رُنْبِهَلُ تَهَتُو §. 68.

V. The Dative.

1) The Dative denotes the more distant object, in reference to which the subject is acting. This is already indicated by the postposition ڪهي khē (§. 16, 4), by means of which the Dative case is made up¹⁾, and which originally signifies: 'on account of, for the sake of, in reference to'. In prose the postposition ڪهي is always put after the Formative of a noun, but in poetry it may precede the noun, or it may be dropped altogether.

When a Genitive, depending on a noun in the Dative, follows the same immediately, the postposition ڪهي is put after the Genitive case-sign.

آءُ اوزارهن سپرين ڏکهي ڏکھ م ڏيڃ

Come near, dear friend, do not give pain to the distressed. Sh. Ābirī X, 4.

ٿان مَسْتِ نازِ ملوڪ ڪهي اچي هيئي اُتو

1) In poetry the postpositions ڪن kane, ڪن kane and ڪر gare are used in the same sense as ڪهي.

بَندِهي دِکيدَارَ کوڙَهَ جِي کهي ڏَنانئونَس

2) The Dative with the auxiliary verbs هُونُ to be, and تَهِيَنُ to become, to be, expresses the idea of possession.

مُون کهي آهي اُميدَ اَللهَ جِي

تَهُو تَهِيَم

I have no lack whatever of wealth, but children are not at all born to me. Amulu Mān. p. 139.

3) The Dative denotes the remote object, in reference to which the action takes place. In this case the postposition کهي must be translated by: for, for the sake of.

کَهامي دِلِ خَمَارَ مِين هِنئون کهي هَوَتِن

(My) heart (and) mind burns for my sweetheart in intoxication. Maj. 728.

کيچ تَنهين کهي کوڙَهَ کي نَ جَنهين جِي جَهَ مِين

4) The Dative expresses the idea of motion to a place.

ڪاشيداني ڪار ڪي نہ رسائي ڪيچ ڪهي

The work of a messenger (i. e. travelling) does not at all bring to Kēč. Sh. Ābirī IV, 10.

5) The Dative is used to express time, when only an indefinite space of time is spoken of, whereas the postposition مِين or مَنجھ، in, is employed, if the time, during which any thing is done, is to be noted.

قَيَصَرِ چي ڪَلاتِ مِين راتِ تنهين ڪهي رس

Qaisare says: arrive that very night in Kelāt. Sh. Sār. IV, 3.

وهندو تنهين ڊير ڪهي فرامين فرماش ٿهي

§. 69.

VI. The Accusative.

The Accusative has two forms in Sindhi, it is either identical with the Nominative or with the Dative, i. e. the idea of the Accusative may be expressed also by means of the postposition ڪهي.

1) The Accusative is commonly expressed by the form of the Nominative, whenever the verb governs only an Accusative, and not at the same time a Dative.

سو جڏهين پنهن جا ڪهوڙا ٻيڙا سپاهي رکهي ۽ پنهن جا آچار ويچار ڪري

When he shall keep his own horses, boats, soldiers and make his own judgements and thoughts. Amul. Mān. p. 139.

جي پڙئيندس ته اها حسن پري پڙئيندس

If I shall marry, I shall marry this very fairy Husine. Ibid. p. 141.

2) But when the subject of the sentence is an animate noun (in the Nominative) the object (Accusative) must be marked out by means of the postposition ڪهي, to avoid a possible mistake. If the subject be animate, and the object inanimate, the object (Accusative) generally remains in the uninflected form (i. e. without the Postposition), if there be no danger of misapprehension. If both, subject and object, imply inanimate things, the object may likewise remain uninflected.

If ever this word the king of the mice will hear. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 62.

تَهْو رَکْھِي

If that (treasure) some man finds, he keeps it concealed. Matth. 13, 14.

The (black) marks (from blows) cause pains; the bones also are aching on account of the (= my) sweetheart. Sh. Ābirī, Čhōṭ. 2.

3) When the object (Accus.) of an active verb is for any reason to be rendered more prominent, the post-position کَھِي is used for this purpose. This is especially the case, when the object implies living beings, whose mention has been made already, or when two or more persons or things are in any way compared or set against each other. But much scope is left in this respect to individual judgement. In poetry کهي is occasionally dropped, but then the contracted form of the Formative must be used in the Plural.

اُن مُرید دھڙي کهي سڏي ڇيو

That disciple, having called (that) girl, said. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 48.

ديون ڇيو تون انهي کهي سڃاڻندين

کهي بهانڏ مين ميڙي رکھو

جي کي سکن سڪھ نا تہ پس سڳندڻين

Whatever longing there is, learn (it); otherwise look at the longing ones. Sh. Jam. Kal. VII, 7.

4) Whenever an active verb is constructed impersonally in the past tenses (§. 94, 5) the object must be pointed out by the postposition کهي, signifying: as regards.

تڏهن تنهن کهي سانه ستيهي جهڏو

Then it was abandoned by the caravan as regards her, while being asleep, i. e. she was abandoned by the caravan while being asleep. Sh. Kōh. I, 8.

ان جي گنڌهڙي وڙهي ان کهي جهڏي ڏنائين

Having taken his bundle he started him off. Sindhi Read. Book, p. 53.

5) When a verb governs a double Accusative, both objects remain in the uninflected state, if they imply things; but if the first object be a person or a living being in general, it is rendered more definite¹⁾ by the accession of the postposition کهي, whereas the second object, be it a person or thing, remains in the uninflected state of the Singular, though it refer to a Plural. If the stress is on the second object (compare §. 94, 3), it may be placed first.

ڏيندس مانھ مرڻ کهي آئون ڄڻا جيئي ڪري

I shall give (my) flesh to the wild beasts, having made atoms (my) life. Sh. Ābiri IX, Epil.

سو مڙمانن کهي ماني ڪهاراڻيندو هو

Make the weak one pass the Hārḥō, says Latīf. Sh. Dēsi IV, 4.

آئون اوهان کهي مڙهن جو ميو ڪندس

I will make you fishers of men. Matth. 4, 19.

1) But both objects may also remain in the uninflected state, though implying persons; see §. 94, 3.

6) When an active verb subordinates at the same time a near and a more distant object (i. e. an Accusative and a Dative), the Accusative (in the uninflected state) generally follows the Dative, except a particular stress be laid on the Accusative, in which case it precedes the Dative.

The accomplished one causes daily nice blandishments to be made to Qais. Maj. 223.

§. 70.

VII. The Locative.

The Locative, as noted already, can only be expressed in the Singular of masculine nouns terminating in 'u'; in all other nouns and throughout the Plural the Locative must be circumscribed by the postpositions مین and منجہ, 'in'. In poetry these postpositions are commonly dropped and only the Formative of a noun is used to express the idea of the Locative, in the Plural the contracted form of the Formative (ending in ē or ā) must in this case always be employed. But also in prose the postpositions مین and منجہ are frequently left out idiomatically, especially after nouns implying time.

When a substantive in the Locative is accompanied by an adjective ending in 'u', the adjective must be likewise put in the Locative; but adjectives of other terminations, pronouns or numerals are only put in the Formative.

1) The Locative expresses in Sindhī not only the place, in which an action is going on, but also direction and motion to a place. The Locative is therefore used after verbs of motion, such as: وَجَنُ vanaṇu, to go, اَچَنُ acaṇu, to come etc.

2) The Locative is used with nouns implying time, to express the point of time, at which an action takes place.

One day, making a journey, they arrived at (lit.: came out of) Jesalmēr. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 40.

جڙو جڙيرن مين راتيان ڏينهان روه

(My) body weeps in the nights (and) in the days, in the chains (i. e. in prison). Sh. Um. Mār. V, 7.

3) The Locative is used also in the sense of the Latin Ablative absolute, to express a state or circumstance. In this way either an adjective may be used absolutely (i. e. substantively, so that an attribute may be joined to it) or a substantive with an adjective; in either case the participle present هوندي in being, being, should be supplied, but is idiomatically left out.¹⁾

1) About the Locative of the participle present and past, see §. 81, 2.

4) The Locative describes the attributes or qualities, in which the subject is, to say so, immersed. In the English idiom such a Locative must be translated by the postposition 'of' or 'with'.

§. 71.

VIII. The Ablative.

The idea of the Ablative is expressed either by the Ablative case (cf. §. 16, 5) or by postpositions, as: ڪهان, ڪهان from, مان, مڃهان from-in, ٿان, متهان from-upon etc.

1) The Ablative denotes in the first instance separation, removal, distance from a place or thing; it is therefore commonly used with such verbs, postpositions and adverbs, as imply a distance or separation from any thing (place, time etc.).

2) The Ablative is therefore used in comparisons, the object, with which a noun is compared, being put in the Ablative, to state the distance or difference of one noun from another (cf. §. 21).

خَتَهَابِيَا كَهَنِي وَجُو جَانِ سَا خُوشِيَانِ كَهَام

Go, ye scholars, that she may eat with pleasure. Maj. 117.

4) The Ablative denotes also instrumentality and accompaniment; but this use is restricted to inanimate nouns and to poetry; in prose either the Instrumental or the postposition سَانُ would be employed for this purpose.

هُو چُونِي تُونِ كِي مَ چَرُ وَاَتَانِ وَرَائِي دِينُ

Those say to thee: do thou not return a word with (thy) mouth. Sh. Jam. Kal. VIII, 17.

Give thou praise to the wise one publicly with (thy) tongue. Sh. Surāg. I, Epil. 1.

The mouthfuls, which thou, o camel! hast obtained (and) plucked with the mouth. Sh. Kambh. II, 29.

1) رَبَانَا instead of رَبَانَانِ.

Go with the gold to the banker, (but) do not at all take down the load! Sh. Surāg. IV, 9.

5) With neuter verbs the Ablative (especially with the postposition کِهَان) denotes the agent. The same is the case with passive verbs, if the agent be an inanimate noun.

سَانِثِين مُوَنَهَان دُوْهُ تَهْتُو سُو تُون تُوْهِينِ

Master, I have done wrong, forgive me that! Life of Abd-ul-Latif, p. 20.

Chapter V.

Pronouns.

I. Personal pronouns.

§. 72.

1) The personal pronouns are generally not expressed, being implied in the inflexional terminations of the verb. They are therefore only used either for the sake of perspicuity or for the sake of emphasis¹⁾ or contrast. In poetry a personal pronoun is often omitted,

1) Commonly with the emphatic i (ĩ) or hi, hĩ.

where we should expect one, and must then be supplied from the context.

On the whole the personal pronouns precede the verb, to which they belong, but they may also follow it, especially in poetry.

آئون هيڪلي حب مين ڏ مون مٿر ڏ ڪاڻو

I am alone on the Hab, I have no friend nor brother. Sh. Suh. II, Epil. 2.

ڊڙيتيون به ڊڙو آن ڏ ڊڙنديس ڊڙ ڊي

Ye married women also return! I shall not return without (my) husband. Sh. Ābirī IV, 9.

وڃو سڀه مڙي اوين جي ڊڙن ڊاڙين

Go again ye all, who have husbands! Ibid. IV, 9.

مونهن ڪهي مارين مونهن سندا ڏڪهڙا

Even me kill my own pains.

2) The Genitives جو منهن and تنهن جو my, thy, are possessive adjectives in the Nominative and inflected accordingly. In poetry the case-sign جو is frequently dropped, but then the forms مون and تو must be employed. Instead of the possessive adjectives the pronominal suffixes attached to nouns (verbs and postpositions) or ٿو سندا (cf. §. 40, 2) may also be used, and in certain cases پنهن جو, see §. 77.

The Genitive of the personal pronoun of the I and II pers. Sing. and Plur. (Lat. mei, tui etc.) is expressed by the Formative جي منهن جي, تنهن جي etc., which is also used before such postpositions, as require جي, cf. §. 58, II.

هِنئون مَنُهَن جُو هِت تِهِنو هِت مِتي ۽ مانُه

My heart is fixed there, here is (only) earth and flesh. Sh. Um. Mār. VI, 16.

مُون کَهَر مُون پَرِين جِي اَچَن جُو وارو

It is my friend's turn to come to my house. Sh. Kambh. I, 9.

تو جيڏا تو يار لَهَرِن لاَوَهَارا كِيا

Thy companions, thy friends have been carried down the river by the waves. Sh. Surāg. VI, 6.

چيڪو پُترَ جَان دِهِي ڪهي مُون ڪَهَان ڪَهَنو ڪَهَرَندو سو

مَنُهَن جِي جُوڳ نَ آهي

Whoever loves son or daughter more than me, is not worthy of me. Matth. 10, 37.

اَچُ مَنُهَن جِي پُئون هَلُ

Come, walk after me, i. e. follow me. Ibid. 19, 21.

3) مَنُهَن جُو and تَنُهَن جُو are also used substantively, especially in the Plural, in the sense of: my, thy people or friends.

اَڪَنڏَه مُون اَپَارَ شَالِ مَنُهَن جَا موٽِيا

I have a very great longing; would that my (friends) had returned! Sh. Sām. II, 17.

4) The Accusative of the personal pronouns must always be marked by the postposition ڪهي, which in poetry however is frequently dropped. But if in a sentence a Dative and Accusative of a personal pronoun (or pronoun of the III pers.) should occur, the Dative takes the postposition ڪهي as well as the Accusative;

constructions of this kind are however avoided, whenever possible.¹⁾

مُون ڪهي مُون حَبِيبَ طَعْنُوڻِي تَنُهَن جُو

(To =) Upon me (is) thy reproach, o my friend!
Sh. Mūm. Rānō II, 14.

ڪَاڪِئَان وَنُجُ مَ ڪِيڏِهِيَن رَانَا تُو نَ رِهَاءَ

Go not away from Kāk anywhere, o Rānō, it is not right for thee. Sh. Mūm. Rānō I, Epil.

اَوَهَان ڪهي بَهَتَ نَ تِهِي ڇَهڏِي ۽ تُون مَ بَهَجُ

Bhīṭa does not give you up, and thou do not run away! Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 21.

3) When the personal pronouns are accompanied by an attribute in the inflected case, they must precede it in the Formative.

کَرِ کَرُو بَهِيَرُو ڪَانْدَهَ مُون نِيَمَانِي جِي بَجُوهِي

Make some turn, o husband, to the hut of me, the lowly one! Sh. Dāharu III, 1.

وَوُ مُون نِيَمَانِي تَان ڪِي نَ ڇِيُو

Woe, by me the humble one nothing was then said! Sh. Dēsi IV, Epil.

ڏِيندَا مُون ڏُڪهي ڪهي آلَهَ لَکِ اُهَنجَان

They will give to me the afflicted a sign, for God's sake. Sh. Kōh. III, Epil.

1) This may be done easily by a passive construction, as:

مُون اَوَهَان ڪهي هِن جِي هَتِه بَخَش ڪِئُو

I have presented you into his hands, i. e. made a present of you to him. Amulu Māp. p. 148.

§. 73.

II. Demonstrative pronouns.

1) There is no personal pronoun of the III pers. (Singular and Plural) in Sindhī, its place being generally supplied by the demonstrative هُوَ that, he, she; but if a distinction between a nearer and a more distant object is to be made, the demonstrative pronoun هي this¹⁾, is referred to the object near at hand, and هُوَ to the more distant one. When the subject (or object) of the sentence immediately preceding is to be taken up again by a pronoun, the demonstrative pronoun سو²⁾ is used.

جَدِّهِن كِنِڪَ اُنَ جِي مَرَنَ جِي اُنَ جِي ڪَنَ ٿِي رَسي

When the groan of her dying came upon her ear.
Sindhī Read. B. p. 64.

تون مُرُسُ اَنهين هُوَ مِهري

Thou art a man, she a woman. Amulu Mān., p. 147.

هِنَ ڪهي رَاتِ رُوحَ مِينِ هي تها: بهائين هي

That one has in his mind (the word) 'night', these ones think this. Maj. 34.

1) هي is also used idiomatically in the following way:

نَ تَهَ هي مُلُڪَ هي تُون

Otherwise this is the kingdom, this thou, i. e. I will have nothing to do with the kingdom nor with thee. Amulu Mān. p. 141.

2) The demonstrative pronoun سو, when joined to a personal pronoun, signifies 'therefore'; as:

عُمَرَ سَا اَنئون ڪينئي پَتَ پَهريان سُوَمرا

O Umar of the Sumirō clan, therefore how shall I put on silk?
Sh. Um. Māruī VII, 6.

تو ڪهي ڏيو نولڪهو هار ڏنو سو به مون جهڙي هتھ ۾ ڪٽو

The Dēv has given thee a necklace of nine lakhs; that also I snatched away and took to hands. Amulu Mān. p. 147.

هي مڙڙي مينهنن منجهانئس تهيون آهن سي پنهن

جيون وڻھ

All these buffaloes have come out of it (= were born); take them as thy own. Sindhī Read. B. p. 61.

2) The demonstrative pronoun اهو, this very, refers emphatically either to an object near at hand, or just mentioned or immediately following, and اُهو that very to a more remote or afore mentioned one. اجهو this here, and اُجهو that there, are only used in a local sense.

جيڪڏهن اها مال ڪئن جو بادشاهه ٻڌهندو

If ever this very (just mentioned) word the king of the mice shall hear. Sindhī Read. B. p. 63.

اها ته منهن جي بهين آهي

That very one then is my sister. Amulu Mān. p. 149.

3) In the Accusative the demonstrative pronouns commonly take the postposition ڪهي, if they refer to persons (or animate beings generally) which are to be rendered more prominent; but if there be no stress laid on the demonstrative, the uninflected form of it is used. If the demonstratives refer to things or if they precede adjectively another noun in the uninflected form, they remain uninflected in the Accusative, if the postposition ڪهي be not required for reasons stated at §. 69, 3.

تَنهن هِننِ كهِي ڏسي كهَئي دَرُ پَاتو

She, having seen these, locked the door. Amulu Mān. p. 149.

جَدُهِن هُو لَهو تَه مُون كهِي اچي خَبَر ڏجو

When you find it, come and give me intelligence. Matth. 2, 8.

پوءِ اهو آن ڏسندِيس تَه تو كهِي ٻانهِي ڏٺاري موڪلينديس

Then I shall see that, (and) then send to you a slave-girl. Amulu Mān. p. 150.

هي وَن نه لهنداءِ هوءَ وَن اوڏانهين كهَئا

These trees you will not obtain; those trees there (are) many.

§. 74.

III. The relative and correlative pronoun.

1) The relative pronoun¹⁾ in Sindhī is جو, who, which, and the correlative سو that, which usually takes up the relative. Besides the relative جو, the indefinite pronouns جوڪو, جيڪو whosoever, جيڪي whatsoever may also correspond to the following correlative سو. The place of the relative pronoun may also be taken up by a relative adverb. Instead of the correlative سو a demonstrative may be used, if the stress be laid upon it.

The sentence headed by the relative pronoun may either precede or follow that commenced by the correlative سو, according to the emphasis laid on either

1) The relative جو, when followed by a personal pronoun in the same sentence, signifies 'as' (Lat. quippe qui)

حَيْفَ مُنهن جي حَالِ كهِي جا بُجهي آئون بيڪار

Woe to my state, as I am bad and useless! Maj. 756.

pronoun; for the sake of emphasis the correlatives may be repeated.

When the relative (and correlative) refers to a pronoun of the I or II person, the verb of the relative sentence is usually in the III person, and not in the I or II person.

In poetry either pronoun may be dropped.

جَنهن ڪِڍي پلي هُوڪارَڻو سَو پُن بَهڪي وِڻو

That, which shouted: a coward (is) the cat, ran also away. Sindhī Read. B. p. 64.

سَنڪي تهيندُ سَو چيڪي جَپيندين جَگدِيس ڪهي

That is my native country, where my sweetheart (is). Maj. 86.

لاهيان جي ڌ چتان آلا اُن مَ وِيرانَ

May I not be forgotten by them, whom I do not drop out of (my) mind. Sh. Sām. II, 4.

جي جي وَن چَنڪو پهلُ ڌ تها ڏنن سي سي وڏهي باه

مين تها وجهجن

Those trees, which give no good fruit, are cut off (and) thrown into the fire. Matth. 7, 19.

اَن جا جهڙي جهڙين سا ڪيم رَسندي ڪيني

I, who is (= am) given up in the mountains, how shall she (= I) arrive at Kēc? Sh. Dēsī, III, Epil.

2) The relative pronoun (and, as the case may be, the correlative) usually precedes the substantive, to which it refers, but the relative may also follow, if the substantive has one or more attributes. The subject of a sentence is frequently first expressed by a demonstrative pronoun, and then taken up by the relative and correlative, to render it more prominent.

جَا پلي پَنهن جي بَارَ ڪهي تهي ڪهائي سا کڻي ڪهي
کڏهين جهڏيندي

Which cat (= a cat that) eats her own young one, will that ever give up a mouse? Sindhī Read. B. p. 53.

Give up that traffic, in which there is no jewel. Sh. Surāg. IV, 8.

فَقِيرُ جو پُڄَنائي وارو هو تنهن ڪهي خبر پئجي ويئي

سُو تنهن جي دهڻي سين ڪهلڻو هتھ هني

هو جي وڏا وير وريام سي سڪهنا وڻا سنسار مون

Those, who were great men (and) warriors, went destitute out of the world. Menghō 4.

4) The relative and correlative pronoun may in the same sentence be subject and object, so that the sentence is doubly correlative, the object, if a pronoun of the III person, being likewise expressed by the relative and correlative.

جِي جَن جَا سِيڪَرُو سِي مِيڙين ڪهي تَن

For whom they are longing, with them join them.
Maj. 203.

سو وڙ سِيئي ڪن جو وڙ جڙي جَن سان

That kindness they bestow, which is bestowed on them. Sh. Surāg. IV, 4.

5) In the first member of a correlative sentence (or, as it may be, in the second) سو جو is occasionally used instead of the simple relative جو, which is then taken up again by a following correlative.

تَن جَنهين جي تانڪه سِي بَجَن هليا سِپهر

Those friends, who are wanted, have gone on a journey. Sh. Sam. I, 24.

سِي قَادَر ايندا ڪڏهين تَن جَن جي تات

O Almighty, will those ever come, of whom the discourse is? Maj. 457.

6) With the correlative adverbs the correlative pronouns and adjectives may be joined in the same sentence.

وَخُدُه لَا شَرِيڪَ لَه جَدِهِن چيو جَن
تَن مَنجُو مُحَمَّدُ ڪَارَئي هِيڄان سان هِن
تَدِهِن مَنجَهان اِن اَوَتر ڪَنهين نہ اولئو

When those, who said: he is alone (God), he has no partner,

Respect Muhammad, the intercessor, out of love with their hearts,

Then (none) out of them was entangled in a place, where there is no landing. Sh. Kal. I, 3.

جتي جيتريون لکھيون لوھ قلم مين
تتي ٻيتريون گھڙيون گھارن آيون

Where so many hours are written in fate,
There so many have come to pass. Sh. Maz. V, 9.

7) The correlative adjectives and adverbs (cf. §. 38, 2), when placed after each other, imply an indefinite sense. The same is the case, if a relative be joined with an interrogative.

ٻلي کڻن منجهان جيترا ڪيترا سرهائي سان گهاٽي ويئي

The cat, having eaten some (a number) of the mice with delight, went off. Sindhī Read. B. p. 64.

پاتشاهزادي جيئن ٿئين ڇٽ ٻنڌهي دل وڙهي گڏهايس

The princess, having enticed him somehow, having gained (his) heart, drew him out (i. e. got the secret from him). Amulu Mān. p. 147.

§. 75.

IV. The interrogative pronouns.

1) کيرُ who? is applied to persons and چها and کڙه what? to things only; these three pronouns are used absolutely and not joined adjectively to another noun¹⁾; in which case the interrogative adjectives ڪيهرؤ, ڪيھو, ڪيھڙو which? and ڪيھڙو of what kind? are to be employed.

1) کيرُ is occasionally joined adjectively to a noun in poetry, as:

ڪيرُ منجئون گرهه ٿي بانگو بلا جي

Which hero shall we send to the combat of the snake? Story of the snake v. 59.

The interrogative pronouns are not only used in direct interrogatory sentences but also in indirect interrogatory ones, when the governing sentence contains a negation; but if the governing sentence be positive, the relative جو is preferred. The same rule applies to the interrogative adjectives and adverbs.

پڪي سُدھ نہ آتھم تہ کير آھي

I do not know exactly, who it is. Life of Abd-ul-Latif, p. 13.

آن بہ آوھان کھي نہ تھو چوان کيرھي حُکم سان ھي تھو گريان

I also do not tell you, by what order I do this. Matth. 21, 26.

آن بہ چوندو سائو جنھن حُکم سان ھي تھو گريان

I shall also tell you, by what order I do this. Matth. 21, 24.

2) The interrogative pronouns (adjectives and adverbs) are frequently used, where a negative answer is expected.

قَسَمَتَ قَيَدِ کَياسِ نہ تہ کير آچي ھن کوٽ مین

By fate I have been put into prison; otherwise who would come into this fort? Sh. Um. Mār. I, 8.

§. 76.

V. The indefinite pronouns.

1) ڪو some one, any one, when standing by itself, is applied to animate beings and کي to things only; but when ڪو is used adjectively, it may be joined to any noun; similarly کي also may be put before nouns, when a part or quantity is to be expressed, cf. §. 61, 3.

ڪم نہ ايندو ڪو ٻيو پنهنجي پوکهڻي ري

Nothing else will be of use to thee, except what thou hast sown thyself. Mēnghō 10.

2) ڪو is now and then added to a personal pronoun (expressed or only implied in the inflexional termination of the verb) in an interrogative or negative sentence, for the sake of emphasis, with nearly the same sense as ڪي.

جهڙي تون ڪو چهڙين ويندين هوڙ نہ بهانيم هيئي

Wilt thou, having forsaken (me) go at all to the mountains? O lover, I did not think thus. Sh. Dēsi, III, Epil.

3) When ڪو is repeated in the next sentence, it signifies: one — another.

ڪو چري پئس جن جسي مين ڪو چئي عقل پهرئوس

One says: a demon has fallen into (his) body; another says: his understanding is upset. Maj. 40.

§. 77.

The reflexive pronoun.

1) The reflexive pronoun پاڻ (Sing. and Plur.) 'self', always refers to the subject of the sentence (expressed or only understood); somewhat intricate is the use of its Genitive, the reflexive pronominal adjective پنهنجو 'own'. When the subject of the sentence is a pronoun of the I and II person (expressed or only implied in the verb), its application is clear enough; but when the subject is of the III person (or any noun), the question arises, whether the possessive pronouns 'his', 'her' etc. refer to the chief subject of the sentence (Lat. suus), or to some other subject (Lat. ejus etc.); in the first case the reflexive pronoun must be employed, in the latter a demonstrative.

انهي ڪهيڪاري وڌي آدهڙ بهار سان گڏجي پان ميان ويٺها

Having risen (and) greeted (and) having met with great respect (and) politeness they sat amongst themselves. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 36.

نرمڌ نظارو پيئي پساڙو پنهن جو

O pure friend, show thy face! Sh. Sōr. I, 10.

پنهن جن پيلن سودهو منجه خدمت شاه صاحب جي

اچي حاضر تهڻو

Having come with his (own) servants to the service of Shāh Sāhib, he was present. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 31.

ان بهاگي ان جي سڃاڻن تي اچڙ ڪري پجهانس

That wealthy one, marvelling at his (the other's) recognising her, asked him. Sindhī Read. B. p. 61.

2) In addressing a person the reflexive pronominal adjective جو پنهن is now and then used (like the Hindustānī का आप etc.), instead of the peculiar pronoun, that would be required, as: سانئين هي پنهن جو مال آهي, master, this is your property, which under certain circumstances could also be translated: master, this is our property, when the speaker includes himself, as:

گڏهي منجھ موش کي پنهن جي ڏيهه ڌوار

Send forth some mice of our country and land. Story of the mice and the cat, v. 35.

3) The reflexive pronominal adjective جو پَنهن may also refer to the object (noun with postp., or Dat. and Acc.) immediately following.

پُترُ پَنهن جي پي سَن دهِي پَنهن جي ماءُ سَن ڀڙهائين آيو آنيان

I am come to make quarrel the son with his father, the daughter with her mother. Matth. 10, 35.

4) When the subject of a sentence is a noun with a possessive pronoun, the peculiar possessive pronoun (if such occur with a noun) must be used and not جو پَنهن, because the use of جو پَنهن would give quite a different sense. Similarly when the subject of a sentence is a personal pronoun and when in the next sentence, joined to the preceding by a conjunctive particle, a noun with a possessive pronoun occurs, the peculiar pronoun must be used for the reasons stated above.

ڪو مُنهن جو مُنهن جي مُلڪَ مين هُجي پَهَلَوَان

(If) there would be in my kingdom some hero of mine. Story of Shamsādu, v. 40.

آئون حُڪمي مَڙهون آنيان ۽ مُنهن جي هَتَه هِيَتَه سِپاهي آنيان

I am a man under authority and under my hands are soldiers. Matth. 8, 9.

5) The subject, to which جو پَنهن refers, must occasionally be gathered from the context; but when thus used without a clear subject, to which it may be referred, it generally implies the I person (Singular or Plural).

ڏيهَ پَنهن جي گهرن ڏور تهِي وڃي ڪنهنين کي قسَمَتَ

Having removed far from our country may our lot be made any where! Story of the cat and mice, v. 20.

6) پَنهن جو is also used substantively, signifying my, thy etc. property, friends or people.

پَنهن جو وَڻهُ ۽ وَجُ

Take what is thine and go. Matth. 20, 14.

SECTION II.

THE VERB.

Chapter VI.

§. 78.

The Infinitive.

1) The Infinitive as well of neuter as of active (causative) verbs is treated in Sindhī as a regular substantive. The complement (object), which is required by an active verb, is subordinated to the Infinitive either by the Genitive or by the Accusative in its uninflected form, or governed by the postposition کهي.

جَنُّنُ جَتَ دَهَارَانِ مَعْدُورِ جُو مَسَ تَهِي

The living (= life) of the disappointed one gets on with difficulty without the Jat. Sh. Ābirī V, 9.

مُغَلَّ تَرَارُونِ ڪَهَنِي شَاهَ جِي مَارِنَ لاءِ آيا

The Mughals, having taken their swords, came to kill the Shāh. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 15.

سُرِي چَرَهَن سِيچَ پَسَنُ اِيئي كَمَ عَاشِقِي

To ascent the impaling stake, to see the (nuptial) bed, this is the business of the lovers. Sh. Kal. II, 8.

تَنهن ڪهي مُورَهين جُهڪي مَنجِه رڪهن جُڙُ ناهي

It is by no means proper to put that into the house. Sindhī Read. B. p. 65.

2) The Infinitive is added as an expletive object to the verbs ڏيڻ to give leave, جهڏڻ to let go or allow, ڪُهڙن to desire, and partly also to سڪهن to be able. But when the verb, which subordinates an Infinitive, requires an object (Accus.), it puts the same in the Accusative, according to the signification of the finite verb.

لڙڪي نہ لڪهن ڏين ڪرڻو پون قلم تي

Tears don't let me write (lit. give no writing); dropping they fall upon the pen. Sh. Um. Mār. II, 9.

مغل شاهه صاحب ڪهي آچن نہ ڏيندا هئا

The Mughals did not allow the Shāh Sahib to come (lit. gave him no coming). Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 15.

نر پڪهي رهن نہ تهئون جهڏين

They do not allow a male bird to sit down. Amulū Mān. p. 141.

انهي ڪهي ڪهنن نيين ۽ دهرمين ڏسن ڪهريو هو

Many prophets and pious people had wished to see this very (sight). Matth. 13, 17.

3) The Infinitive may also be turned into an adjective by the accession of the Genitive case-sign جو. In this case the Infinitive itself is strictly treated as a substantive, as regards its government, and جو is nearly used in the same sense as جهو or جهڙو, cf. §. 67, 11.

پَر مَنگَر مَڇهن جي ڪهنن جو ڪي نہ هو

But he was not of the eating of the crocodiles, i. e. he was not destined to be eaten by the crocodiles. Story of Rāe Diācu p. 1.

هيءَ ڪالھ ڏکي چڙچي * نہ ٿيڻ جي آهي

This word is mere joke and impossible.

Chapter VII.

§. 79.

The Gerundive.

1) The Sindhī derives from the Infinitive of active verbs a regular Gerundive or participle future passive (cf. §. 8, 12, b; §. 46), which agrees with its subject in gender and number, except the construction be rendered impersonal by the use of the postposition ڪهي, cf. §. 94, 5. The agent is put in the Dative (like in Latin) or expressed by a pronominal suffix.

تو ڪهي جي ڪو فریاد ڪرڻو هٿي سو تون آچي ڪر

If by thee some complaint is to be made, come and make it. Amulu Mān. p. 150.

مون ڪهان جيڪي تو ڪهي پائڻو آهي سو خيرات آهي

Whatever thou hast to get from me, that is alms (i. e. given in alms). Matth. 15, 5.

هائي جيڪي چوڻو هٿي چو

Now, whatever thou hast to say, say. Amulu Mān. p. 143.

2) But when the construction is rendered impersonal by the use of کهي or when a Dative occurs in a sentence, the agent must be expressed by the Instrumental, to avoid the double use of کهي.

هِنَ کهُؤڙِي کهي تُو جهَلِنُو هُو

Thou shouldst have seized this horse.

جُو تُو کهي مَرُون لَهِنُو آهي سُو ڏينم

What is to be got by me as regards thee (i. e. from thee), give that to me. Matth. 18, 28.

Chapter VIII.

The Participles.

§. 80.

I. The participle present.

1) The participle present agrees as a regular adjective with the subject of the finite verb (expressed or implied).

Is it used, when an action is to be described as lasting or continuing, for which purpose it may be repeated.

سَڄِي شَهَر جُو شِڻلُ ڪَري ڪُهِنْدَا ڪُهِنْدَا پَاتِشَاه جِي
ڪُهَتِيَن مِين آيا

Having made the tour of the whole city they came, wandering, wandering to the lanes of the king. Amulu Mān. p. 140.

Upon them (i. e. on their heads) are (large) baskets and (small) baskets; groaning they come. Sh. Um. Mār. VI, 12.

2) The participle present is very frequently used in the Locative Sing., terminating in ē, or with the emphatic ī or hī, in ēī and *ēhī*¹⁾, to express an action coinciding with what the finite verb declares.

As regards the subject of the present participle, Loc., it is either the same, as that of the finite verb, or it may refer to another noun in the sentence (Genitive, Dative, Accusative etc., usually expressed by a pronominal suffix), or it may not be expressed at all, to be gathered from the context.

When the subject of the present participle Loc. differs from that of the finite verb, it is added in the Formative; the same is the case, if an attribute be joined to the subject (expressed or only understood) of the present participle. But if the Locative of the present participle requires a complement (an object), it is constructed according to the common rules.

ايندي ويندي هي حرف چرندو هو

In coming and going he used to say these words.

Whilst searching about in the mountains some man met him. Maj. 122.

تان کھیندیٹی خباری چرٹو تھٹس چٹ

Then whilst eating her mind became drunk (and) mad. Maj. 178.

1) Occasionally ehī is shortened to ahī, as: سُنیندِہی instead of سُنیندِیہی.

§. 81.

II. The participle past.

1) The past participle of neuter verbs agrees with its subject in gender, number and case; the form in 'alu' is used, when the participle passes more into an adjective. The past participle of active and causal verbs (implying always a passive sense) agrees likewise with its subject in gender, number and case, except the construction be rendered impersonal by the use of the postposition ڪَهي (cf. §. 94, 5).

2) The past participle of active (and partly also of neuter) verbs with a passive signification, is used also substantively, cf. §. 62, 2, and may therefore be constructed with a postposition.

جَارِيَن جُو چِيو ڪَري قَاصِي تَهڻو تَهَارُ

The Qāzī, having done the word (= what was said) of the scouts, became a tyrant. Maj. 296.

بِهَڪِي پُنَجَانَاءَ پَدَمَانِي پَرِي تَهَنُو

After being broken it became beyond (= more) a thousand billions. Sh. Surāg. IV, 17.

3) The past participle of neuter and active verbs is frequently used in the Locative Singular (cf. §. 80, 2); if the subject of the past participle do not differ from that of the finite verb, it is not expressed, but if it do differ, it is added in the Formative. But the subject of the past participle may also refer to a more distant object, or it may not be expressed at all, in which case the Locative is used absolutely. The impersonal construction of the past participle by means of the postposition ڪهي is also retained, though the participle be put in the Locative.

The past participle in the Locative is used substantively, but nouns, depending thereupon, are idiomatically only put in the Formative, and not subordinated by the inflected Genitive case-sign جي.

§. 82.

III. The past conjunctive participles.

The past conjunctive participles (cf. §. 47) very greatly facilitate the conjunction of the different members of a compound sentence and are therefore very extensively in use. They are translated according to the tense of the finite verb.

1) The past conjunctive participles commonly refer to the subject of the finite verb, and in a passive construction, to the agent (Instrumental); but when to the past conjunctive participle of تَهَنَ an attribute is added, it must remain in the Nominative, though the subject (agent) referred to be in the Instrumental.

Then having heard the call, having become glad in (her) heart, she said. Maj. 702.

2) The past conjunctive participles may refer also to the object (Dative, Accusative) in a sentence, and in a passive construction one past conj. participle may refer to the agent (Instrumental) and another to the subject.

تَجَنَ جِي سَارِين تَن رُؤِو وَهَامِي رَانَرِي

تَرَسِي طَبِيبَن چِيَتَهِي هُونَدَ چَنگَا كِيَا

3) In an impersonal (neuter) or passive construction the past conjunctive participles may be used absolutely, without any reference to a subject, which must be gathered from the context.

ڪوڙ ڪيڙو ڪهي تَن سَچِي سُنائي ڪالَهڙِي

What shall be done to them, having made them hear the whole matter? Sh. Jam. Kal. V, 29.

4) The past conj. participles are also now and then used in the sense of the Latin Ablative absolute, when the subject of the finite verb differs from that of the past conj. participle. But constructions of this kind are rather exceptions.

اِنِي پَرِ ميڙِي بَلِيُون مَرِي پاڇِي ساري ڪوڙتِه مَنجِه بَ

بَلِيُون بَچُون

After all cats had died in this very manner, two cats in the whole town were left alive. Sindhi Read. Book p. 63.

5) Some past conj. participles are used quite adverbially, as: 'مَوَڙِي, وَرَاڻِي, وَرِي' (lit. having returned or caused to return); 'وَتَهي' with the postposition ڪَهان from (lit. taking from); 'جَانِي بُجَهي' intentionally (lit. having known, understood), or 'جَانِي وَاڻِي' or 'بَڻِي وَاڻِي' being alliterations.

Chapter IX.

The tenses of the verb.

§. 83.

I. The Present.

1) The Sindhī has two forms for the present tense, one identical with the Potential, to which the inflexional increment تھو, ٿي etc. is added, the Present indefinite, and the other being compounded with the present participle and the auxiliary verb آھيان etc., the Present definite.

The present tense of the passive voice is formed in the same way as that of the active voice, but its use is very restricted, neuter verbs being substituted wherever possible.

There is also a simple and compound Potential, as well of the active as of the passive voice, to express the idea of the present tense (cf. §. 90).

2) The first form of the Present tense, the Present indefinite, expresses our common Present, i. e. an action begun and still continuing in the present.

The increment تھو may optionally follow or precede the verb¹⁾, but when the verb commences a sentence, it is put after it (poëtry excepted). In poëtry تَهو is often separated from the verb by some other words, either preceding or following it.

When the negative adverb نَ, 'not', accedes to the verb, نَ immediately precedes تَهو, and both the verb²⁾; but in an interrogative sentence, or when a particular stress be laid on the verb, they may as well follow it.

In poëtry تَهو is very frequently omitted and the Present indefinite then coincides with the Potential, so that only the context can decide, whether the Present indefinite or Potential is intended. In prose also تَهو is dropped, when the interrogative pronoun چها what? and the adverb جان when, precede the verb.

Instead of the increment تَهو the past participle پئو (from پَون to fall) is also used; but with this difference, that a more enduring action is thereby implied.

سَارِئو سَانِبِهَتَرَن کهي تهي سَتُون ڌڻي سَهَسَ

Remembering (her) guardians she gives a thousand blows. Story of the cat and mice v. 11.

تَهو حُڪَمَ هَلَاڻي پَانِهِن جَا مَالِڪُ مُلڪِ دِهَنِي

The king, the Lord of the kingdom, executes his own orders. Ajāib v. 5.

بُنْدَهَنڌَا نَ تَهَا بُنْدَهَن سُبَجَهَن بِ نَ تَهَا

Hearing they do not hear nor do they understand. Matth. 13, 13.

1) When an interrogative pronoun or adverb, as چها, چهو etc., occurs in a sentence, it generally attracts تَهو.

2) But when in a sentence نَ — نَ neither — nor, occurs, the adverb نَ is put before that noun, on which the stress is laid.

تَن رَنهينَ وِپَرهينَ کهي رَنان راتوڏينھ

For those rich inhabitants of the jungle I weep nights and days. Sh. Um. Mār. II, 11.

جان ڏسَن تہ هڪڙي وڏي کاري بلا ويٺي آهي

When they see, one big black snake is seated (there). Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 16.

3) When occurrences are related, as the narrator or person, he speaks of, saw them, the Present is frequently used, in order to transfer the hearer to the scene of action. The same is the case, when the thoughts are given, which somebody had at a time.

جڏهن مُغلن شاهه صاحب کهي ڏٺو تہ کهر منجه ويٺو آهي

When the Mughals saw the Shāh Sāhib, that he is (= was) sitting in the house. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 15.

What does he see? that his children (and) his wife go night and day about in begging. Sindhī Read. Book, p. 62.

شاهه صاحب هت آهي

Having there built a shrine of the Shāh Sāhib in that very place they sat down: 'because the Shāh Sāhib is here'. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 26.

4) The Present is also now and then used for the Future, to signify thereby, that the action will be done forthwith.

تُون هَانِي آرَامُ كَرِ اَسِين تَهَا دِسُون

Take thou now rest; we see (i. e. shall see). Amulu Mān. p. 149.

5) The second form of the Present, the Present definite, denotes a lasting or habitual action. The auxiliary is occasionally dropped, especially in sentences of general import.

جِيڪو تَنهن جِي مَرِيئِي سَارو هَلَندو سَو مُنهن جو بهاء

• بهين • ماء آهي

Whoever is walking according to his will, that is my brother and sister and mother. Matth. 12, 40.

ماڙهون ڏيئي ميهنا مون ڪهي ڪندا ڪوھ

Why are the people giving me reproaches? Sh. Maṣḍ. V, 14.

§. 84.

II. The Imperfect.

The Imperfect denotes a past action, which is incomplete in reference to some other past action. It implies therefore duration, habit or frequent occurrence.

جِيڪڏهن شاھ صاحب اُنهي ڪوٽھ ڏي ويندو هو تہ

مغل سانس وڙهندا ها

Whenever the Shāh Sāhib was going to that very village, the Mughals were quarrelling with him. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf p. 15.

§. 85.

III. The Aorist.

I. The simple Aorist.

The Aorist implies indefinitely, that an action took place in past time. It is therefore commonly used in narrations, where past events are reported irrespectively of their duration. We may therefore translate the Sindhi Aorist either by the Imperfect or Perfect.

The Aorist of neuter verbs has an active meaning; some neuter verbs though (implying a passive sense) may also be constructed with the agent in the Instrumental.

Active verbs are constructed passively in the Aorist (Perfect and Pluperfect), the agent (subject) being put in the Instrumental and the past participle agreeing with the subject (properly the object) in gender, number and case (cf. §. 92, 2), or being constructed impersonally by the use of the postposition کهي (cf. §. 94, 5). It is understood, that the Aorist (Perfect and Pluperfect) of the passive voice is also used personally, agreeing with its subject (expressed or implied in the inflexional terminations) in gender and number.

آنئون ستي هوء هليا گاهئائئون کنواک

I was asleep, those went off, they drove away the young camels. Sh. Hus. VI, Epil.

هُم جي کاڻ ڪڪورِيا تن لَهي نہ لَلي

Those, who were made tawny by the Kāk (river), the redness does not leave. Sh. Mūm. Rānō II, 4.

2) The compound or habitual Aorist.

The compound Aorist with the indeclinable increment ٿي denotes in the first instance, that an action was done repeatedly in past time or for any length of time; it is therefore chiefly used, when an occupation, habit or manner is to be described. In the second instance it implies, that an action had been commenced in past time and was still going on at the time mentioned, and in this respect it nearly coincides with the Imperfect, with the only difference, that generally a simple Aorist corresponds to it.

The increment ٿي is usually put before the verb, but it may also follow it; it may be also separated from the verb by some intervening words, in the same way as ٿهو. Instead of ٿي, پيئي (the Locative of پئو with emphatic ī, instead of پيئي piēi), is also used, which more strictly points out commencement and continuation.

the Shāh Sāhib died on the second day. Then when Shāh Jamāl heard the message of the removal of the Shāh Sāhib, he was coming again behind (the messenger). Ibid. p. 6.

§. 86.

IV. The Perfect.

1) The Perfect denotes an action, that is completed and finished in the past, so that it extends to the Present.

نَ ڪي تهي جِئان نَ ڪي مُڻي آنيان

I do not live at all, nor am I at all dead. Sh.
Hus. IX, 16.

اُتَهَ مَ اڙڙي اَن اَنڙون ڏاڪهن ڏڏهي آنيان

Do not bring near the camels, I have been tormented by the camels. Sh. Dēsī I, 14.

2) The Perfect is occasionally used to represent an action as done already, whereas it is intended or expected, that it will be done forthwith.

پري ڏٺهو تہ هائي هلائي تهڻو آهي

The fairy saw, that he is (has been) now done for. Amulu Mān. p. 151.

§. 87.

IV. The Pluperfect.

1) The Pluperfect denotes remote past action, which has taken place previous to some other past event mentioned or understood. But in this connexion its use is not strict (as in Latin), the Aorist commonly being employed, where we would expect a Pluperfect.

ڪنهن شهر مين پڻو هو ڪڪهن جو ڪال
اهي ماڙهون ڪاهي مال ڪنهن اوسر سان اُتھي وٺا

In some town there had fallen in a dearth of grass;
Those people drove off their cattle and went away and mice, v. 5. 6.

اهو ويندو هو جي پري چڻو هو تڏي ٻانهي جي ڪهڙي مين وڌهائين

As the fairy had told, so she threw that very nose-ring into the jar of the slave-girl. Amulu Mān. p. 150.

اَوَان ڪا ڏٺهي ڏوتھيا هون تي رتِ هُتي

Had you seen (when you were there) some one at the side of (her) sweetheart, o Dōthis? Sh. Hus. VI, Epil. 2.

2) The Pluperfect is frequently used in Sindhī, where we would use an Imperfect or Perfect. When an action is represented, from the point of the speaker, as completely past some time hence, so that its results were already clear at the time mentioned, or when it is implied, that since an action has taken place, something else has happened, that could be said about it, the Pluperfect is used and not the Aorist nor the Perfect. The Sindhī idiom is much more accurate in discerning the different shades of meaning, than the English, and the correct use of this tense requires therefore a careful attention.

هڪڙي ڏينھ شَاهُ جَمَالُ شَاهُ صَاحِبَ رتِ ويٺو ۽ ٻيا پڻ
ڪهڙا فقيرَ ويٺا هئا

One day Shāh Jamāl sat with the Shāh Sāhib, and also many other faqīrs were sitting (i. e. had seated themselves before). Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 5.

صاحب جي دَرَسَن ڪرَن لاءِ وٺو هو.

Maydūm Sāhib received the intelligence, that Miā Nūr Muhammad had gone (but was no longer there) to have an interview with the Shāh Sāhib. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 29.

§. 88.

V. The Future and Future Past.

1) The Sindhi has two forms for the Future, the simple or indefinite Future and the Future definite.

The first form corresponds to our common Future and denotes a future action in general, the latter form implies, that the future action will last or endure for some time.

اُتھ ڇاريندڻس ان جا ميان جهلي مهار

I shall graze their camels, having seized the bridle of the camels. Sh. Hus. IX, Epil.

انهي محل سفيدي ديوت سو پريون ڇينديون هونديون

At that very time an hundred fairies will be dancing near the Dēv Sufēd. Amulu Mān. p. 144.

2) The simple or indefinite Future is used also to denote possibility, inclination or doubt.

پاتشاهه تو کهي آئون هڪڙي ڪالھ ڪندس

O king, I will speak one word to thee. Amulu Mān. p. 143.

اي جهڙو ڪو ڪهڙو اسان کهي ڏيندين

O boy, wilt thou give us a ram? Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 17.

3) The Future indefinite is also used for the Imperative, when an order is not strictly given, but when it is expected, that it will be done spontaneously; it may therefore alternate with the Imperative.

پنهن جي ماء پي کهي آدر ڏي • پنهن جي پاڙيسي

کهي پان جهڙو ڪهرندين

Honour thy father and thy mother, and love thy neighbour as thyself. Matth. 19, 19.

4) The past Future is seldom to be met with in the sense of a strict past future action, which should have taken place, before another action will be possible, but it generally implies uncertainty, doubt or possibility in reference to a past action, as: هو آيو هوندو, he may have come. Instead of the past Future the Aorist is commonly used in Sindhī, especially in conditional sentences; see §. 98, 6.

Chapter X.

The Moods.

§. 89.

I. The Indicative.

The Indicative represents an action or thought as real, and is therefore used, not only when matters of fact are related, but also when suppositions (in conditional sentences) are considered as really taking place (cf. §. 98b, 3). The Sindhī uses consequently the Indicative in such sentences, in which the speaker makes a subjective assertion, which he considers as true and real, whereas in the English idiom the Subjunctive would be used in such cases.

انهي ڪهان درياهه جي سير مين بڙجن سو چنگو آتھس

It would be better for him, that he were drowned in the depth of the sea. Matth. 18, 6.

§. 90.

II. The Potential.

The Potential is, as stated already, the old Present and expresses therefore only present time; but by means of the present and past participle and the Potential of the auxiliary verb هُونُ, a Potential of the Present definite and Perfect may be formed; these compound forms however are of very rare occurrence.

1) The Potential, in its widest sense, denotes indefiniteness, possibility, uncertainty or doubt.

پوءِ بهانيان تهو آئون تڙ سان گڏ مائي ڪهان

Then, think I, I eat together with thee bread. Amulu Mān. p. 146.

جيڏيئون ڪينئي ڪريان مون ان سين

مون ڪهي هي ڪاهي ڏ ڪڏهي

Wilt thou not pull me out this wood? Amulu Mān. p. 148.

سڙا ڏنڌوارن جي هٿ ڏنائس جيسين هي منهن جو

لهنڙ سبھ پڇاڻي ڏ ڏئي

He delivered him into the hand of the tormentors, as long as he shall not repay all, what is due unto me. Matth. 18, 34.

2) The Potential serves also to express a usual or habitual action.

پاني پڙو پڻ ڪري سبھ سڪائي سڙ

Drinking the water it makes (it, i. e. the river) bare ground, it dries up the whole world. Nānga jō Quissō, v. 40.

مون سين هلي سا جا جيئي متهوئي ڏ ڪري

That one shall go with me, who does not make (= consider) her life sweet. Sh. Ābiri VI, 2.

3) The Potential is frequently used in the sense of an Optative or polite Imperative, especially for the I. and III. person Singular and Plural.

ميان محبتن ڪهي هادي هوت ملن

O friend, may the lovers obtain (their) sweethearts as guides! Maj. 817.

سڪها آئين سڪه مين اها خبر چار

Quickly, with speed, they shall bring this information and intelligence. Story of the cat and mice v. 38.

4) The Potential is used with the Interjections مَآن, شَال would that, with the conjunctions مَ¹⁾, not (prohi-

1) With ڏ the Potential may also be used, if the injunction be more strict.

bitive), مَتَان, مَچَہِن, جَم may it not be, that, lest; تَوَرِّي that, جو, جَان, جِنِّي, that, so that, in order that; although; جِي, جِيڪَڏِہِن, جِيڪَر, جي if (cf. §. 98*b*, 1); and with the adverbs هُونَدَ, possibly, جُکِيس, perhaps etc., if the sentence be indefinite.

§. 91.

III. The Imperative.

1) The Imperative is restricted to the II. person Singular and Plural; for the other persons the Potential must be used.

The Imperative has two forms, the Imperative strictly speaking and the Precative (cf. §. 44). The Imperative expresses a command, whereas the Precative implies an exhortation, request or haste.

When a negation accedes to the Imperative, نَ is used to express a strict negation, whereas مَ is used in a prohibitive sense. With the Precative مَ is commonly joined, but نَ may also be employed, if the injunction be more strict.

شِيَهِنِ چِيُو تُون اَلَكُو نَ كَرِ

چِيَكِي پَاكُ آهِي سُو كُنَن كَهِي نَ دُجُو

2) When two Imperatives are joined together by the conjunction تَ or تَان, the first Imperative is hypothetical.

سِكْهَا مَوْثُوْ سُبْرِيْنَ وَنَجُوْ تَان وَرَجَاْهُ

Return quickly, o dear friend, if you mean to go, then return. Maj. 439.

II. THE SYNTHETICAL PART.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE SENTENCE AND CON- JUNCTION OF SENTENCES.

SECTION III.

THE SIMPLE SENTENCE.

Chapter XI.

Subject and Predicate.

§. 61.

In every sentence there must be a subject and a predicate; subject is called that person or thing, of which something is said and predicate that which is said about it.

1) The subject may be expressed either by a substantive or adjective or pronoun or numeral. It is not expressed, if it be a personal pronoun and its predicate a verb, except a stress be laid upon it, as: آئون ٿهڙ ڏسان تهڙ I see, but آئون تهڙ ڏسان I see (not you). The subject must always be in the Nominative.

2) The Predicate may be expressed either by a verb, or adjective (participle), or substantive, or numeral with the auxiliary verbs هون to be and تهنن to become, to be.

The predicate may be joined to the subject in a threefold manner:

a) by way of assassertion, as: ڙيڻي ٿي the girl weeps.

b) by way of interrogation, as: كَيْرُ آيُو who is come?

c) by way of command (or desire), as: وَرُون go (thou).

3) The subject and predicate, if they be substantives or pronouns, may be nearer defined by an attribute. The attribute is commonly an adjective, but it may also be a substantive in the Genitive (with or without an adjective, pronoun etc.), on which another noun in the Genitive may depend again, as:

a great man came وَدُو مَارْهُون آيُو or: هِي وَدُو مَارْهُون آهي this is a great man the Lord of the kingdom died وَدُو دَهْنِي مَرِي وَتُو

مَلَك چي دَهْنِي جو پُتر مَرِي وَتُو the son of the Lord of the kingdom died.

مَغْرِبَ مَلَك جَا وَيَنْدَا سَبِه مَرِي

All the people of the kingdom (of) Maghrib will go to die. Nānga jō Qissō, v. 51.

4) The subject and predicate, if they be proper names, substantives or pronouns, may also be nearer defined by a noun in apposition, as:

چِينِ وَلَايَتِ دُورِ آهي the country (of) China is far off;

هِي شَهَرُ كَرَاچِي آهي this is the city (of) Karāčī.

Chapter XII.

Concord of the subject and predicate.

§. 93.

1) If the predicate be a verb, it must agree with its subject in person, gender and number. This rule is strictly adhered to in Sindhi, even in such cases, where the subject in the Singular implies plurality, cf. §. 63, 1. 2. A subject in the Singular however may be constructed with the Plural of the predicate, when spoken of politely or honorifically, cf. §. 63, 3.

ماء پئي جو چُونُ آئون ڏه تهي موٽايان

I do not reject the word of mother and father. Amul. Mān. p. 142.

اُٻها پُڇهن پَر ڏه ڪتھي مُحَمَّدُ ڪارني

Standing the strangers ask: where is Muhammad, the intercessor? Nānga jō Qissō, p. 15.

2) If the predicate be an adjective, participle, pronoun or substantive, from which a feminine may be derived (cf. §. 14), it must agree with its subject in gender, number and case. (In the same way every attribute must agree with its substantive in gender, number and case, whenever possible.)

تنهن جي ڪيرهي مَرُفي آهي

What is thy pleasure? Amulu Mān. p. 140.

متهون هڪڙي ٻانهي لتهي

From above descended a slave-girl. Ibid. p. 140.

سڀني ڪتابن سي ڏتھا ڄڏا اوه جوان

By all the companions they were seen, those maimed young men. Nānga jō Qissō, v. 17.

کَا بِلِي بَارِن سَانْدَهِي هُئي كَنِهِن رَنگ وَڌِي سِين رَسَ

Some cat was tending her young ones with some great love (and) pleasure. Story of the cat and mice v. 8.

Chapter XIII.

Enlargement of the sentence by a near and remote object.

§. 94.

1) The verb, which refers to the subject as its predicate, has a double form; it is either of the active voice, if the subject be active, or of the passive voice, if the subject be passive.

The active voice of a verb has a treble signification; it is either neuter (intransitive), or active (transitive), or causal. The verb is called neuter, if the action be restricted to the subject, as: هُو تَهو وَڄِي he goes; active, if the verb necessarily requires a (near) object or Accusative, as: هُنَ ڪَهي تَهو جَهَلِي he seizes him; and causal, if it requires one or two Accusatives.

2) Neuter verbs commonly subordinate only a remote object or Dative, as: مُون ڪَهي نَ تَهو وَڻِي it does not please me; but some neuter verbs may also subordinate a near object (Accus.), as:

رَمِي هَلِئُو سَا رَاهَ

He went that way. Ajāib v. 44.

3) Active verbs subordinate a near object (Accus.), and, as the case may be, a remote one (Dative), as:

اُنَ ڪَهي مَآيِي ڏِي give him bread. Active verbs may also subordinate a double Accusative, one implying the near object and the other its attribute. In this case the first object is generally defined by the postposition کهي by means of which the construction is rendered impersonal and the concord between the object and its attribute dissolved, so that the attribute remains in the uninflected form of the Singular, though the object, to which it refers, may be a Plural. But both may also remain in the uninflected state (Singular or Plural). Some verbs govern a double Accusative, one of a person, and one of a thing, as پُچهنَ to ask somebody a thing, though it may also be constructed with the postposition کهان, to ask from a person, or with کهي.

کوڙهيڻ کهي ستهو ڪڙو

Make the lepers clean. Matth. 10, 3.

جانسين تهِي ڄڻاڻ ڪانده ڌ ڪنڊيسِ ڪو ٻڻو

As long, as I live, I shall not make any other (my) husband. Sh. Um. Mar. VII, 6.

رکھج روڙا رَمَضانَ جا زِرَ رَڪاتون ڏيڃ

Keep the fasts of Ramazān, give (thy) wealth as alms. Golden Alphabet 4, 7.

4) Causals, derived from neuter verbs, subordinate a near, and as the case may be, a remote object (§. 69, 6); and causals, derived from active verbs, may subordinate two near objects (a double Accusative), the first generally being defined by the postposition کهي, and the second remaining in the uninflected state (§. 69, 5).

وڻي وائڙڻ کهي ٺون پياري پرکھ

Having made drink the travellers a bowl try (it). Sh. Jam. Kal. IV, 7.

5) Regular passive verbs can only be derived from active or causal verbs; for the passive form, which neuter verbs occasionally assume, does not essentially alter their signification.

In a passive sentence the near object (Accus.) is made the subject, and the subject of the active sentence is turned into the Instrumental¹), the remote object (Dative) keeping its place, as usual. But with the passive Present, Imperfect and Future the Instrumental is not used, the agent being expressed by means of the postposition کھان, if it cannot be possibly avoided.

Of the passive voice only the past tenses (past participle passive) are in common use, the other tenses being expressed, wherever possible, by a neuter verb.

The past participle (passive) agrees either with its subject in gender, number and case (§. 93, 2), or the construction may be rendered impersonal, the past participle containing at the same time subject and predicate, in which case the (proper) subject of the passive sentence must be subordinated as a remote object by means of the postposition کھی, 'as regards', 'in reference to'.

This impersonal construction must always take place in the passive, when an active verb governs a double Accusative, one implying the near object and the other its attribute. The near object must in this case be subordinated by the postposition کھی, whereas the other object, as the predicate, remains in the uninflected form of the Singular, referring to the (neuter) past participle.

1) In a longer sentence, when the agent is separated by a series of words from the verb, the agent is frequently repeated for the sake of perspicuity, by adding a pronominal suffix, corresponding to the agent, to the verb.

But when a causal verb governs two near objects, the first (implying a person) must be subordinated as remote object by the postposition کھی, whereas the second is made the subject, with which the past participle agrees in gender and number.

تَنِی مَارَهُو جُو پُتُرُ بِہ ہِنِ کھان دُکھوئبو

Thus also the son of man shall be afflicted by them.
Matth. 17, 12.

مَوْتُ قَبُولِئُو اَن دِتھو جَنِ دُکھی کھی

Death was agreed to by those, who saw the afflicted one (lit. by whom it was seen as regards the afflicted one). Sh. Maṣḍ. VII, 16.

کھڑی سَبَب سَقِیم کِئُو اَوھان کھی اَرَار

By what reason (and) disorder have you been made ill? (lit. by what reason and disorder has it been made ill as regards you.) Nānga jō Quissō, v. 24.

پَاتِشَاہ اچي صَيْفَل وَزِير کھی اِہا سَچي کَالِہ بُندھائی

The king, having come, related this whole matter to the Vazīr Saifal. Amulu Mān. p. 142.

Chapter XIV.

Enlargement of the sentence by a nearer definition of the verb as predicate.

§. 95.

The simple sentence may be enlarged to a considerable extent by a nearer definition of the verb as predicate.

1) The verb may be nearer defined by one or more cases, on which again another case may depend, viz.: the Instrumental (agent etc.), the Accusative (of time etc.), the Ablative and the Locative, and by nouns with postpositions generally.

ڪنھين ٿاني مَنجھ ڪو ماڙھون ڏرياهه جي ڪپ تي پَنھن
جي بهان سان ويٺو هو

At some time one man sat on the bank of the river with his wealth (of buffaloes). Sindhi Reading Book p. 59.

اهو پَنھن جي وڏي بهاء ڪهان هڪڙي ورهه ڪهان پوءِ
ختهاب مين وڃن لکو

That one began to go to school one year later than (from) his elder brother. Ibid. p. 50.

2) The verb may be nearer defined by adverbs generally, especially by adverbs of time, place and manner, and by postpositions with pronouns.

مون ڪهي هاني ڪا مصلحت ڏي

Give me now some advise. Amulu Mān. p. 147.

اينئي اوزر تائون پان مين چوڪها مهينا چار

Thus they talked amongst each other four goodly months. Maj. 235.

سو به مون وٽ آهي

This also is with me. Amulu Mān. p. 147.

Chapter XV.

Omission of the verb as predicate.

§. 96.

1) The auxiliary verb آنهيان etc., forming the predicate with or without an adjective etc., is occasionally omitted, especially in poetry and in short proverbial sentences.

جا تَنهِن جي مَن مِين سا مَوَن مَگَالِ سَءاء

Let me hear that matter, which (is) in thy heart.
Maj. 45.

اُونهَوُ كَهوَرُه اُتُهِن تَنهِن جَو لَبهِي دَ تَرُ

There (is) a deep well there; no bottom of that is found. Nānga jō Qissō, v. 38.

کیدی پلُو گاتھی کیدی پلُو گاتھی

Where (is) the cowardly cat? where (is) the cowardly cat? Sindhī Read. B. p. 62.

2) In sentences, which contain an imprecation or curse, the verb as predicate is generally omitted. In such like sentences the Potential of پَوَنُ, to fall, should be supplied, which occasionally is met with.

کُھ آتَنُ بَنِ جِيڏِيُون ڏِيَرَانِيُون ڏُتَارِ

May the courtyard (fall) into the well, the companions into the forest, the sisters-in-law into disease! Sh. Suh. IX, Epil. 1.

کُھ سِي جِنَن ڏينَهَرَا جِي پَرِيَانِي دَهَارِ

(May fall) into the well those days of life, which are apart from the friend! Sh. Dēsī VII, Epil.

SECTION IV.

THE COMPOUND SENTENCE.

Two or more sentences may be so joined together, that a compound sentence arises. This is done either by way of coordination or subordination.

Chapter XVI.

I. Coordination of sentences.

§. 97.

1) Two or more sentences may be so joined, that each one remains independant of the other. This is done without or by the copulative, adversative, disjunctive and conclusive particles (cf. §. 59) and by the negative adverb نَ — نَ neither — nor.

سَاجِنُ مِیْزِیْسِ سُوْرَ سَکْهَ نَ مِیْزِیْسِ سِپَرِیْنِ

The lover was joined to her by pain, the sweetheart was not joined to her by pleasure (= by dint of). Sh. Ābirī VII, 13.

کَهْوَزَا کَهَنِی هِیْتَه بَنْدَهو ۛ اَهِیْن چَرَهی هَلُو

Fasten the horses below and go ye up. Amulu Mān. p. 149.

یَا لَنکَهَائِنِ لَطِیْفُ چَیْیِ یَا دَهْرَانِ کِنِ دَانَهَ

Either they bring them across, says Latīf, or they make a cry from that very spot. Sh. Suh. VIII, 2.

سَدَه اَتَهَمِ پَرِ شَاهَه صَاحِبَ مَکَالِه کَرِن کَهَان جَهَلَتُو آهِي

I know it, but the Shāh Sāhib has forbidden (me) to tell it. Life of Abd-ul-Latīf, p. 44.

2) Sentences are also coordinated by joining together a disjunctive question. In the first member the interrogation is generally not expressed by a particle, but only by the voice of the speaker; in the second (or third) the interrogation is pointed out by the particle کي ki or ڪِ ke.

سَوُ تُونِہِي اُنَہِيَن ڪِ ٻِڻِي جِي وَاتَ ٿِسُون

Is it thou or shall we look to the way of another?
Matth. 11, 3.

Chapter XVII.

Contraction of coordinate sentences into one; concord of two and more subjects and predicates.

§. 98.

1) When two or more sentences have either the same subject or the same predicate or the same object or any other common member of speech, they are contracted into one sentence, with or without a conjunctive particle.

سَانِئِينَ سَلَامَتَ سَپَرِينَ مَوَٽِي مُحَبِّ مِلَنِ

O Lord, may (our) dear friends (and) lovers meet (us) again! Nānga jō Qissō v. 81.

جِنَ نَ ٻُھوُ پَري اُنَہِيَان اَنُورن اِنُسانَ

I am not a jinn, demon, fairy, I am a man.
Maj. 639.

کِیَرھو تَ وَڌو ٻَلِ ڪِ ڊِڏِي

Which then is greater, the sacrifice or the altar?
Matth. 23, 19.

پَرَ ڪَوشَ اِها ڪُفَتارَ پيئي حَسَنَ مِيرَ حُسَيْنَ ڄي

But this discourse fell into the ear of Mīr Hasan (and) Husain. Nānga jō Qissō v. 75.

2) When there are two or more subjects in a sentence, denoting animate beings, the verb or adjective (with the auxiliary verbs هُونُ and تِهَنُنُ) as predicate is put in the Plural; if the subjects have the same gender, the predicate agrees with them, being put in the Plural, but if they be of various gender, the masculine has the precedence.

When two or more subjects imply things (or ideas), the predicate is either put in the Singular, agreeing commonly with the last subject, or in the Plural. If they be of various gender, the Plural of the masculine or feminine is employed, according as one or the other subject is considered more important.

The same rule holds good, when an attribute (adjective etc.) is referring to nouns of different gender.

نَرُ ۽ مَادِي سِرَجًا اَتَهِسَ

A male and female was created by him. Sindhi Read. Book, p. 15.

When I saw from afar the places, houses, cells.

By whom eyes (and) face have been turned towards the buffalo-keeper. Sh. Suh. V, 9.

پُوكُهُون كُدِرْكَاهَ عَالَمَ جَا اُنَ آبِ تِي

The farms and ferries of the world (people) are upon that water. Nānga jō Qissō, v. 36.

3) When two or more subjects of different persons occur in a sentence, the first person precedes the second (or third), and the second the third, the verb being put in the Plural.

اَسِين ءَ فَرِيسِي كَهْنَا رُوزَا تَهَا رَكُهُون

We and the Pharisees keep many fasts. Matth. 9, 14.

Chapter XVIII.

II. Subordination of sentences.

§. 99.

Two or more sentences may be so joined together, that one is not independent of the other, but is only making up for the deficiency of the other. A sentence thus depending on another, is called a subordinate sentence, and the other, that is completed thereby, is called the main sentence.

A subordinate sentence may have another sentence coordinated either with or without conjunctive particles; or it may again subordinate another sentence.

A subordinate sentence may be linked to the main sentence either by subjunctive particles, or by relative pronouns and adverbs or by interrogative pronouns and adverbs.

1) Subordination of a sentence by subjunctive particles.

§. 100.

Particles, by which a sentence is subordinated to the main sentence are the concessive, the consecutive, the causal, the final and the conditional, cf. §. 59.

a) With the three first particles the Indicative is used, if the assertion be positive, and the Potential, if the assertion be more vague or uncertain; with final particles the Potential is always used.

تَوَزِّي كُسَنِ كَاتِ تَهْ بَهْ سَايِي سَلَنِ كِي ذَهْ كِي

Though they be killed by the knife, they do not at all divulge any thing. Sh. Kal. II, 8.

بَاتَاڙَ جَو مَتَهو ايترو بھونئي ٿي هنيانئين تَه سَنَدَسِ

مِنْجُ مُنْجِهَتُو

It threw the head of dejection so much on the ground, that its brain was confused. Sindhī Reading Book p. 58.

اَللّٰهُ اَوَّلَا لَاهِيْنِ جَانِ سُبْجَانُونِ سَجْ

O God, take away the covers, that we may know the truth. Maj. 205.

b) In conditional sentences the subordinate sentence generally precedes the main sentence, but the conditional part of the sentence may also follow that, which is conditioned thereby.

The subordinate sentence is introduced by the particles جي جيڪر, if, and جيڪڏهن if (at any time), and the main sentence by the concessive particle تہ, تان, then, which is generally not translated.

1) If the condition and that, which is conditioned thereby, be indefinite, possible, doubtful or uncertain, the Potential is used in both members of the sentence; in the main sentence the Imperative may also be employed.

ويٽهي هِت مَ هوءَ جي هَلين تہ هُوَ لَهيَن

Be not seated here; if thou go, thou mayst obtain (thy) sweetheart. Sh. Ābirī VII, 6.

تہ تُون مَانين مُورَ جي پَنڊِ اِهاڻي پَارِئين

Then thou mayst enjoy it at all, if thou perform this very advise. Sh. Ābirī VII, 14.

آَن جي ڏِتها هُون تہ اَللَہَ گَارَن مَکالِہَ کَريُو

If they may have been seen by you, then, for God's sake, speak! Sh. Hus. X, 22.

2) If the condition be uncertain, possible or only expected, but if that, which is conditioned thereby, be represented as certain and positive, the Potential is used in the subordinate, and the Indicative (commonly the Future) in the main sentence.

آيلِ آيلِ ٿي جِيانَ لاَ جي سَارِينِ وِو سُرِينِ

O mother, o mother, I live, o God, if my dear friends remember me! Sh. Suh. VII, Epil. 2.

جيڪڏهن تون هت آسان ڪهي مٺجڊ جوڙي ڏئين ته آسين
تو ڪهي ڏينهاڙي ڪعبه الله جي ريارت ڪارينداسين

If thou construct us here a mosque, then we shall let thee daily make the pilgrimage of the Kaaba of God. Life of Abd-ul-Latif, p. 4.

3) If the condition and that, which is conditioned thereby, be taken as certain and positive, the Indicative is used in both members of the sentence.

جي تون آسان ڪهي ڪڏهين تهو ته سترن جي وکر مين
وڃن جي موڪل ڏي

If thou castest us out, allow us to go into the herd of swine. Matth. 8, 31.

جي تون ڳاله ڪندين ته ڪوڙهيو تهيندين

If thou shalt divulge it, thou wilt become a leper. Life of Abd-ul-Latif, p. 44.

4) If the condition as well as that, which is conditioned thereby, is represented as such, that could have happened under certain circumstances, but which has not happened, because the condition was not fulfilled, the Imperfect, Aorist or Pluperfect is used in the subordinate, and the Aorist in the main sentence, or, under certain circumstances, the Pluperfect (cf. §. 87, 2).

جي ڌارون پئندو ته هو ته نه مري وڻو

If he had not kept on drinking liquor, he would not have died.

لکھم تو ڏي خط پر جي هوس پڪهڙو

آيسَ مَنَهَنَدِ كِتَابَ جِي هُونَدَ اُڏامي سَتَتُ

I have written a letter to thee; but if I were a bird
I would likely have come before the letter, having

If the pen would be aware of the heart, it would

سي جِي هَوَتَ سَڻا تَ هُونَدَ نَ ويو نِڪري

If those (cries) had been heard by (my) sweetheart, he would likely not have gone off. Sh. Hus. III, 2.

جيڪرَ ڪهرواري جاتو هو چورُ ڦلاڻي پهرِ ايندو تَ هُونَدَ چيٽيندو رهڻو

If the master of the house had known, (that) the thief will come at a certain watch (of the night), he would likely have remained on his guard. Matth. 24, 43.

جي سي سدومَ مين تهڻا ها تَ هُونَدَ اڄُ توڻي هليو آيو هو

If those (works) had been done at Sodom, it would have likely remained until this day. Matth. 11, 23.

Instead of the Aorist or Pluperfect the Potential (of the Present) may be used (but very rarely) in both members of a conditional sentence, followed by the particle ها; but more commonly ها is added to a past tense, for the sake of emphasis.

جي هُو نَ هلي ها تَ سڄن ڪهي نَ لهي ها

If she had not gone, she would not have obtained
(her) friend.

جي ڪڏهين هيءَ ڳالهه آهڻ جي سُنجهه مين آئي هجي
ها تہ هُونَدَ بي ڏوهن تي ڏوهہ نہ لايو ها

If you had ever understood this word, you would not have condemned the guiltless. Matth. 12, 7.

5) If the condition must have been fulfilled in past future time (Futurum exactum), before that, which is conditioned thereby, shall happen, the Aorist is used in the subordinate, and the Future in the main sentence.

جيڪڏهن مَخْدُومُ صَاحِبُ شاهہ صَاحِبَ ڪَهاَن اَڳي وِصالُ
ڪِئو تہ شاهہ صَاحِبُ اَڳي مَخْدُومُ صَاحِبَ جي جَناري سان

Chapter XIX.

Abbreviation of subordinate sentences.

§. 103.

A subordinate sentence may be abbreviated:

1) by using the present and past participle (cf. §. 80, 81), either adjectively, or in the Locative Singular, which is more common. The participle supplies the place of a relative or conjunctive subordinate sentence, into which it may be dissolved, when necessary, as:

رَوْنَدِي رَاتِ رِهَاءِ چکائيندي پَتِيُون

Pass the night weeping, distilling glasses of liquor; i. e. whilst weeping, or as one who weeps etc. Sh. Jam. Kal. IV, 25.

هوتُ پُنهنون تها نين ٻاروچي ٻولي ڪتو

They carry off (my) sweetheart Punhū, speaking Baluchī, i. e. whilst they speak Baluchī. Sh. Dēsī II, 13.

Chapter XX.

On the indirect oration.

§. 104.

When the words or thoughts of a person are given with the very same expressions, as used originally, the oration is called a direct one; but when they are only represented according to their general contents or purport, the oration is called an indirect one. In Sindhī the indirect oration is never made use of, but the words or thoughts of a person are always represented in the direct oration and generally introduced by the particle تَ.

بہائیائیں تھی تَ کُنہن پَر کُساہی نِکری وَجَان

APPENDIX I.

ON THE SINDHI CALENDAR.

The Muhammadans of Sindh reckon by lunar months after the common Muhammadan aera, called هجرة, the flight of Muhammad from Mekka to Me-dinah, the years of this aera are therefore called هجري¹⁾. It dates, according to the best accounts from the 18th of July 622 p. Chr. Their months commence with the appearance of each new moon and consist of 30 and 29 days alternately, amounting to 354 days and about nine hours; in consequence thereof New-year's-day falls every year about eleven days earlier than in the previous year.

To keep pace with the seasons the Sindhis interpose every third year an intercalary month (لُنْدُ lundu), repeating that month, in which the sun enters no new sign of the Zodiac.

In naming the lunar months the learned Muhammadans follow the nomenclature of the Arabs; but among the common people the names of those Arabian months only are known, which are noted by some special religious observance, the other months being called by the names of the Hindū months then being.

1) Another aera, which is also in use amongst the Muhammadans of Upper India, is called فَضْلِي, or revenue aera; it dates, according to Prinsep, from the year 592³/₄ p. Chr.

The Hindūs reckon by solar years, and luni-solar months. They follow either the Vikramāditya (وِیکْرَمَادِیت) aera, called sambatu (Sansk. संवत् year), dating from the year 57 a. Chr., and commencing with the month of katī, or that of Shālīvāhana, called śāku (Sansk. शाक), dating from the year 78 p. Chr., and commencing with the month of Ātṛu.

The Hindū year is divided into 12 equal portions, which nearly correspond to our solar months. Each month is divided again (by Hindūs as well as Muhammadans) into two parts (يَكْهْ or يَجْهْ lunar fortnight), the first from new to full moon (سُدي sudī), and the second from full to new moon (بَدِي badī). The dates of these two divisions (تَهْ lunar date), fifteen each, are reckoned separately.

پَهَاُنُ phāguṇu,

The Hindūs commence the day at midnight, as we do, but the Muhammadans at the previous evening. In the mouth of a Muhammadan therefore the night of a certain day always signifies the night of the previous day, as: جُمِی جِی رَاتِ Friday night = Thursday night, according to our way of reckoning. There is some difference between the Hindū and Musalmān names of the days of the week, as subjoined.
